They Want It. They Get It. Coolidge's Two Elephants. California's Vote. An Expensive Grave.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

WHAT big men WANT they GET. In New York they wanted an increased subway fare, regardless of a hard and fast contract with the city that put tens of millions into the enterprise.

What big gentlemen WANTED they have GOT, by order of the United States court.

Officials will weep and go through various motions. But the little fish will pay.

"Concentration is the secret of strength," said Emerson. The big fellows concentrate in the right direction.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has contemplated, with a friendly eye, Mr. Ringling's sea elephant, monster of the deep, that eats 400 pounds of mackerel at one meal, and has nothing to do with politics.

SOME cling ot the idea that in spite of not choosing, the President will be lured from his retirement plan by another elephant that lives on land, and swallows campaign contributions as readily as the sea elephant swallows fresh mackerel.

GOV. SMITH wins in California, gathering 26 more votes, and probably will be nominated at Houston on the first ballot.

SECRETARY HOOVER, Republican, got 477,000 California votes, about all there were, against Smith 114,961, Reed 48,511, Walsh 37,422.

Secretary Hoover's friends say even a Wall Street Republican should notice those figures.

Gov. Smith's opponents say many California Republicans registered as Democrats and voted for him. That's just what the Governor expected.

A SMALL plot, corner of Wall Street and Broadway, across from Trinity Church, sells for $7,000,000, $576 a square foot. At that rate a grave ten feet long, four feet wide, would cost $23,040.

Many a man has paid more than that to be buried, financially, in that neighborhood.

Ask the ghosts that squeak and gibber at the back door of the Stock Exchange when the clock strikes 12 above Trinity's graveyard. And don't gamble.

IN EUROPE, here and there, May Day celebrations ended in violence. In America, in New York and elsewhere, many police were ready for hostile May Day demonstrators. But there weren't any. Small crowds attended radical meetings. Nobody showed any deep desire to "throw off his chains" by force and violence.

The wise Bolshevist said it: "You can't do much in a country that owns 24,000,000 automobiles.

MOSCOW Bolshevism showed a real May Day demonstration. Following the Red Army, well trained and armed, there marched a million men and women, also armed, with guns and bayonets. Armored tanks, armored cars, machine guns, cavalry, a tremendous fighting power, such as the Czars never saw, has been developed by the revolution. More than 15,000,000 is the fighting force of Russia.

DR. BUTLER, head of Columbia University, says Aristotle knew all we know about government today. The doctor might add that Aristotle and other Greeks knew one thing that we don't know. They knew enough to take an intelligent interest in government. The learned doctor is not satisfied with democracy "after 300 years of trial" and thinks "Protestant Christianity is one of the chief agents of persecution in our age."

All interesting, and if true, important—to a few.

THE London Express tells Lindbergh his second ocean flight would be "an anti-climax." The two essentials to great achievements are the art of elimination and the art of avoiding repetition.

Lindbergh's business, however, is the art and science of flying. And to that business he devotes himself. He is not interested in anybody's applause, and would be much obliged if everybody would "cut it out." He's a flier, not a showman.

WHEN the energetic British say they mean to increase their foreign markets, they mean it. They have built boats small enough to go through the Welland Canal, and will send low phosphorous pig iron to Chicago, Milwaukee and other American markets, at $26 a ton delivered, duty paid.

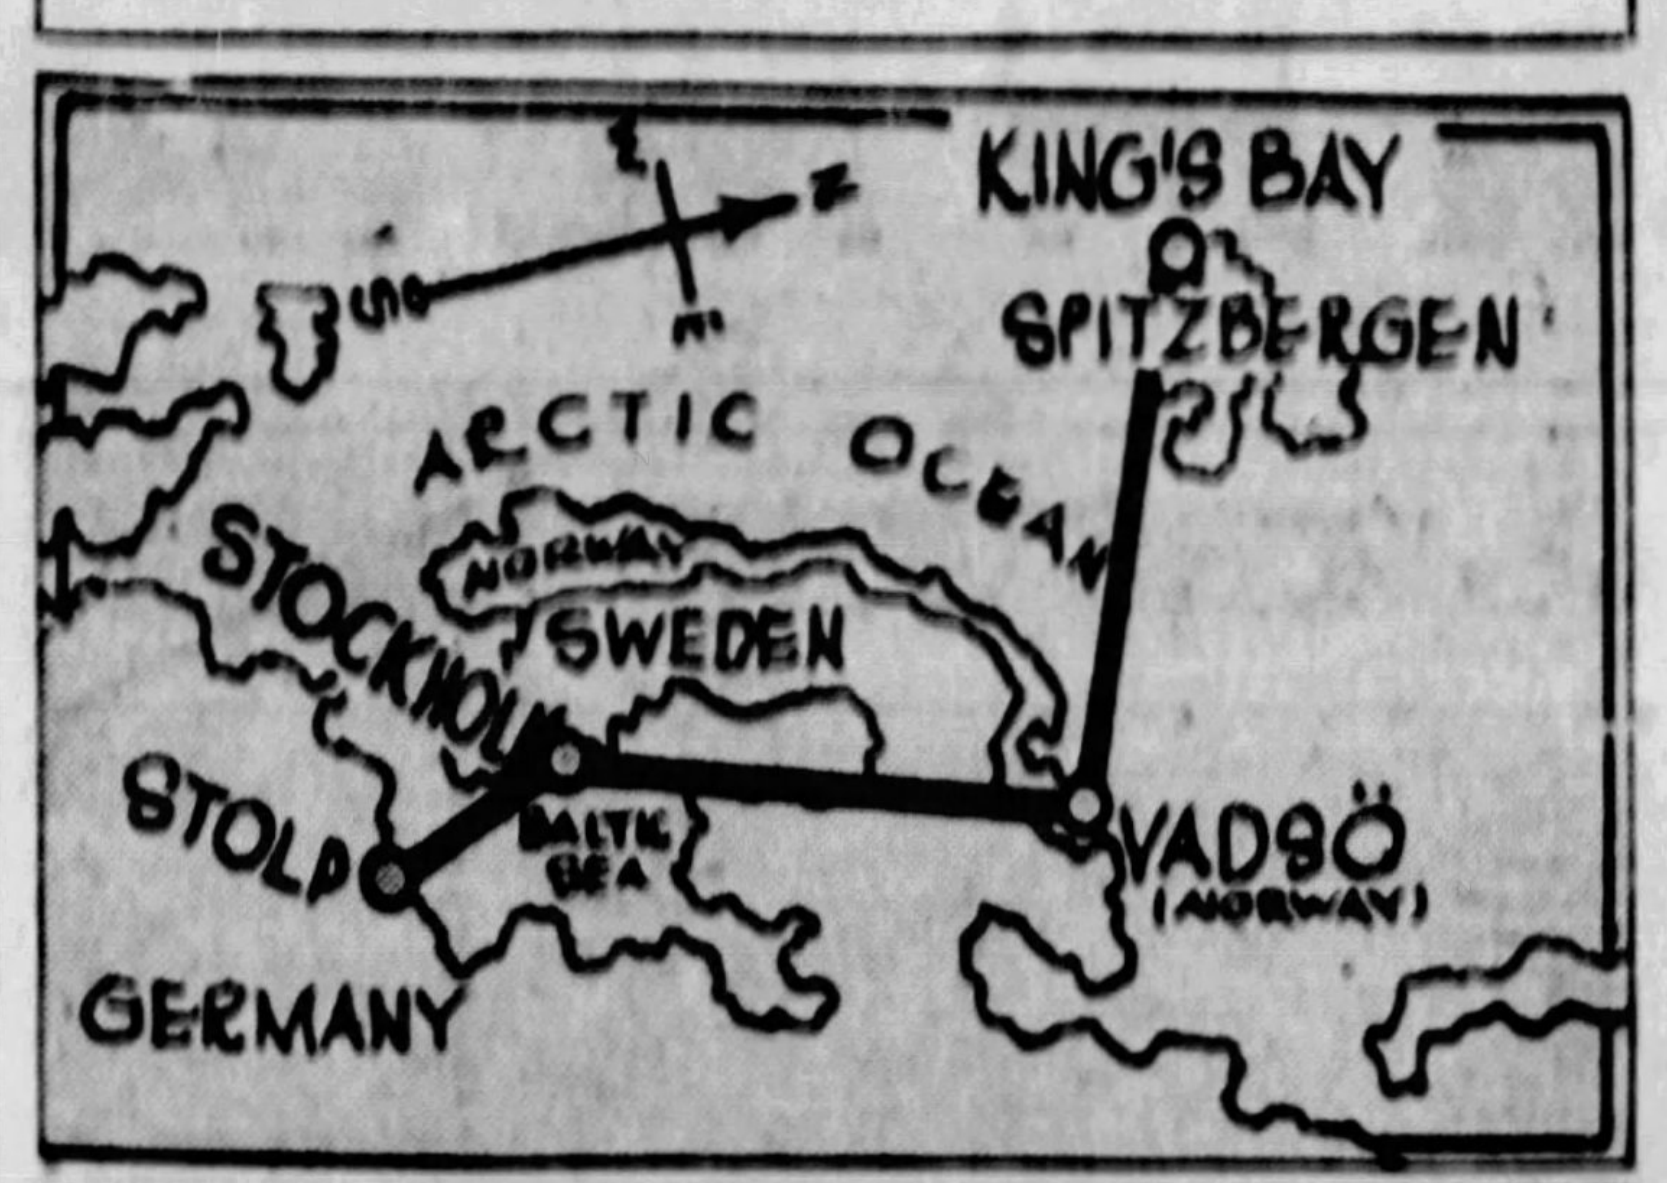
YOU may say that our steel men should be able to compete with foreign prices. Possibly, but in any case our government should see to it that American workers AND business men are protected from foreign competition.

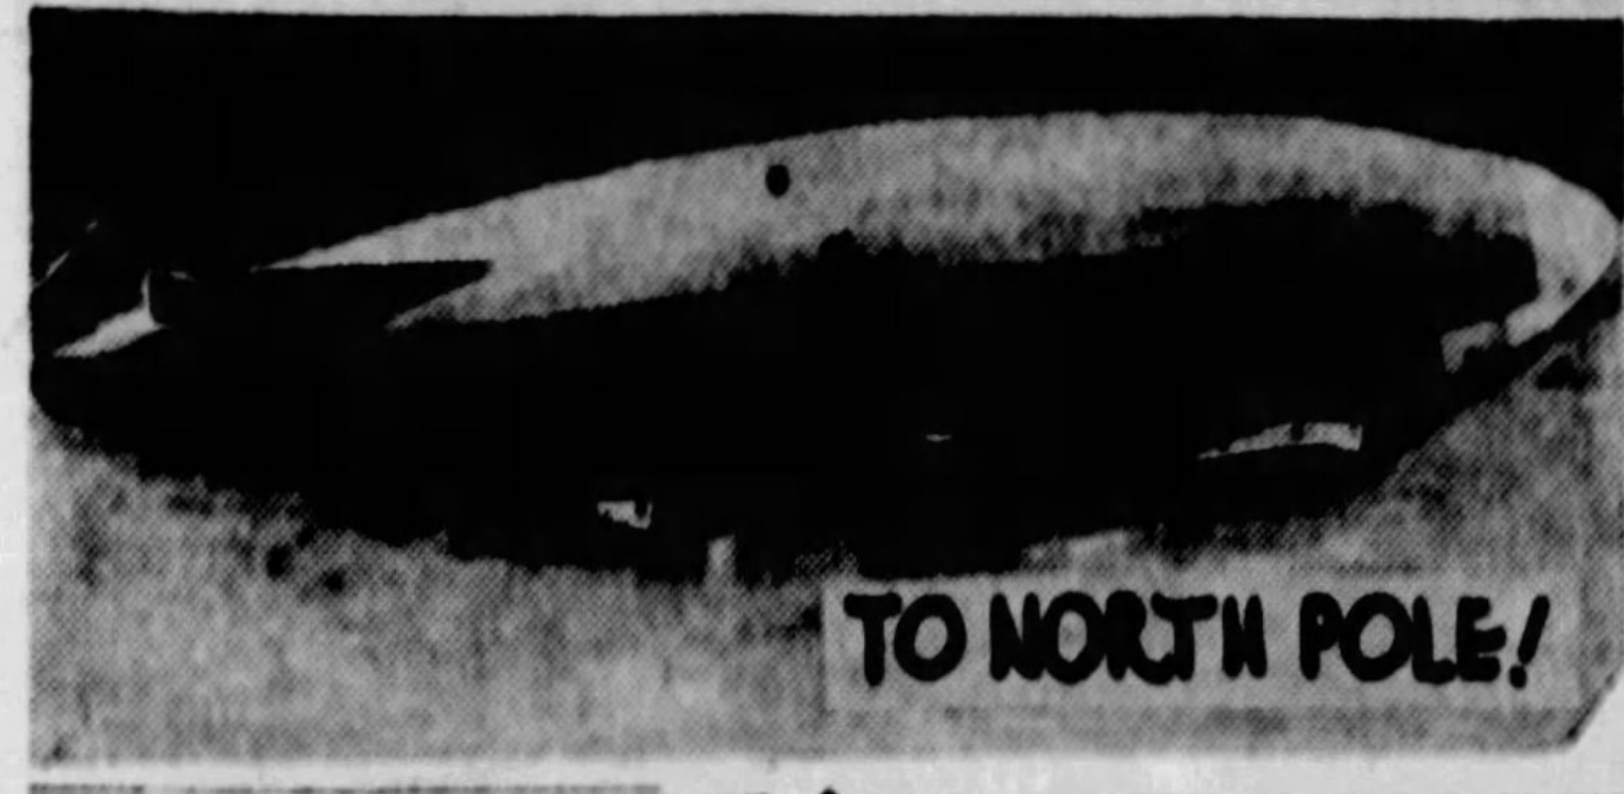
FLORIDA is Democratic, very, and Democrats usually oppose high tariffs. But all depends.

Florida's winter vegetable crop is menaced by Mexican competition, growers are facing ruin.

So Florida, wisely, pledges her candidates for Congress to a tariff "that will protect American labor against destructive foreign competition."

Nobile on Way





GEN. UMBERTO NOBILE

FLYING NORTH

Gen. Umberto Nobile and his crew in the dirigible Italia, after stopping for more than a week at Stolp, Germany, has taken off again on his trip to King's Bay, Spitzbergen, his base of operations for North Polar region explorations. He is aloft now, headed for Vadso, Northern Norway, by way of Stockholm and Gothland, where he plans to refuel for a trip almost at once to Spitzbergen.

RATE TRUCE OFFER IS REJECTED

CINCINNATI, May 3.—(AP.)—Rejecting a proposed compromise differential and failing to agree upon any other medium to settle their rail rate differences to lake ports, northern and southern coal operators and railroad officials adjourned their conference an hour after noon today.

The compromise, on a 35 to 38 cents basis, was proposed by President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio and advocated strongly by President W. W. Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania. It failed through the insistence of Pittsburgh coal interests for a 48-cent schedule, and inability of the railroads to agree upon proportionate increases and decreases which would make the 35-cent rate acceptable.

BOY TUMBLES INTO AUTO'S PATH, KILLED

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., May 3.—Jolted from a road drag in the path of an automobile, John Heiser, 9, of Darlington township, was killed last night. His skull was fractured. C. P. Hancy, salesman of Cleveland, driver of the auto, was released by Coroner H. C. McCarter, pending an inquest.

Solo Flier Half Way To Record

International News Service.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., May 3.—At 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, 27 hours since he took off in an attempt to establish a new record for sustained airplane flight, Lieut. Royal V. Thomas still was circling lazily over Roosevelt Field.

Lieut. Thomas hopes to break the record recently set by Eddie Stinson and George Haldeman who remained aloft for 53 hours, 36 minutes and 31 seconds at Jacksonville, Fla. To set a new mark, Thomas must stay up until 7:07 o'clock tomorrow night.

The flier dropped a note in a milk bottle at 9:30 and it was released for publication at noon. It was addressed to Lieut. Clark and declared "everything going fine. Had a good night."

WANTS MARKET REPORT

Thomas also said that with the time nearly half gone, he was confident of success. He asked that the late quotations on Radio Corporation, General Motors and several other stocks be transmitted to him by radio.

At 12:30 Thomas was flying only about 200 feet above the ground and had throttled his engine down until it sounded no louder than that of a motorcycle from the ground. During the night he flew at an altitude of about 2,500 feet.

The endurance record for a lone flier, 33 hours and 30 minutes, was set by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on his trans-Atlantic flight.

Thomas got away a few minutes after 10 o'clock yesterday morning but was carrying too much fuel, 535 gallons, and the heavy load made it impossible for him to get high enough to avoid a range of hills. He dumped a quantity of fuel and then landed to re-fuel a second attempt.

On the second take-off Thomas carried between 450 and 500 gallons, as a favorable wind had arisen and made it easier for him to get altitude. His monoplane is similar in type to the Columbia, which Clarence Chamberlin flew from New York to Germany.

No one-man attempts to break endurance records have been made recently. The feat resolves itself into one of physical endurance as well as a test of the plane as Thomas will have to spend nearly two and a half days without sleep or rest.

Everything went well with Thomas during the night. Contact between the plane and the field was maintained by means of flares and flashlights.

SECOND IN CONTEST

CHICKASHA, Okla., May 3.—(AP.)—Joe Hart, local aviator, took off alone in his monoplane Chickasha here this morning in an effort to set a new world record for sustained flight.

Despite a cross wind, he managed a neat takeoff before the heavily-loaded plane had traversed a mile of the runway. His official starting time was announced as 5:43:45.

DRY CHIEF CALLS OFF 'PRYING' HERE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Prohibition administrators were instructed today by Commissioner J. M. Doran not to make investigations of jurors who might be called to try dry cases.

The action followed Congressional criticism of Administrator John D. Pennington, of Pittsburgh, who sent out a questionnaire to determine the character, wealth, religion and political affiliations of prospective jurors.

"The duty of the Prohibition Bureau is to investigate liquor violations, prepare cases and make arrests, but not to pry into the private affairs or beliefs of jurors," Doran said.

"That is a matter entirely for the U. S. Courts."

Doran warned administrators to avoid tampering with jurors either directly or indirectly.

Pennington is understood to have informed prohibition headquarters that he made the jury investigations at the request of the United States Attorney's office, but this explanation was unsatisfactory to Doran, who, in substance, advised the Pittsburgh administrator not to exceed his authority.

PENNINGTON IN DARK

No orders to cease the practice of investigating jurors has been received at the local office, Prohibition Administrator Pennington stated today. Until definite orders are received, Mr. Pennington said, he would continue to be advised by the United States attorney.

Here's Evolution Defense Laid to Pgh. M. E. Bishop

Bishop F. J. McConnell

CHARGES against which Bishop Francis J. McConnell of Pittsburgh, may have to defend himself in the Methodist Episcopal General Conference, are based on the following article, published by the American Civil Liberties Union, January, 1927, under the Bishop's name:

"I can see no reason whatever for the present opposition to the teaching of evolution. Of course, I can see the psychological factors causing the present uproar—but that uproar is an unreasonable clamour against a legitimate educational method. The votes of majorities are irrelevant and mischievous when directed against the positions of scientific experts. The truth or falsity of the teachings of scientists can be established only by scientific methods. The only way to train youth in the use of such methods is to introduce them to the problems uppermost in the scientific world at a given time. The only social safety is in such scientific training of youth."

SEA FLIERS MAY COME THURSDAY

Pittsburgh will be included in the good-will tour of the Bremen fliers next week if the united efforts of the city authorities can prevail upon the German embassy at Washington to permit a stop here while the plane is en route from Philadelphia to Chicago on May 10.

Following a conference between President of Council James F. Malone and Mayor Charles H. Kline at noon it was decided to follow Pittsburgh's formal invitation with a personal talk on the long distance telephone.

The entire day next Thursday has been alloted for the flight from Philadelphia to Chicago, and it is pointed out by Mayor Kline that ample time would be available for a stop here about noon for luncheon and an automobile tour through the city and suburbs.

Malone, who sponsored the invitation by Council, said he believed that the German authorities at Washington would recognize Pittsburgh's claim and endeavor to provide for a visit here by a slight change in the itinerary.

A telegram also was sent to the fliers asking them to fix a date at their convenience for a visit to Pittsburgh. A later date may be chosen if it is not possible to stop here Thursday.

The Boston Braves, with Rogers Hornsby as the kingpin of the team's play, will face the Pirates in the first game of a scheduled four-game series at Forbes Field at 3:30 this afternoon, leading the invasion of the eastern clubs into western territory.

Kent Greenfield, who wove a magic spell about the Bucs in several engagements last season, will be on the mound for the Braves today, while Manager Bush of the Buccaneers plans to use his ace, Remy Kremer, in an effort to prolong the local winning streak which has now attained three-game proportions.

The Pirates worked hard and long to win the final game of the series from the Cubs, and, incidentally, sweep the three-game duel with the Bruins. Yesterday's victory was a 9-8 affair, and was achieved only after a 10-inning struggle.

CALL VOTE EXPERT ON CARPET

Maj. William T. Rees, election expert, first aide to C. C. McGovern in the county audit and at present checking the return board as a representative of the Allegheny County Elections Association, has been ordered "on the carpet" by the county commissioners, along with members of four election boards, to explain apparent discrepancies.

Rees, regarded as an authority on election laws, served as clerk to the election board of the First District, Forest Hills borough, at the primaries, April 24. When the returns from this board were unsealed and examined by the return board, with the major in the offing keeping a sharp watch on proceedings, 100 ballot stubs were found missing.

Rees and other members of the board were ordered to appear before the commissioners at 11 a. m. tomorrow and bring the ballot box.

Three other boards, those of the Fifteenth, Eighteenth and Twenty-fifth districts, Eighth Ward, also were ordered to appear. In the first two, the records of the commissioners show 200 and 300 ballots, respectively, sent to the polling places, whereas the boards in their returns recorded only 150 and 250 respectively.

PAYROLL OF POWER TRUST TOLD

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(INS.) — How Pennsylvania utility interests distributed thousands of dollars in Harrisburg to defeat the Pinchot giant power plan and other legislation was told to the Federal Trade Commission today by Walter E. Long, treasurer of the public policy committee of the Pennsylvania Electric Association.

Ex-Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania attended the hearing.

Long testified that during the period between 1922 and 1927 various persons were employed at Harrisburg for work in connection with legislative matters. He identified a number of payments, but said no record of the cash distribution was kept on the association's books.

Much of the money was spent in fighting the Pinchot plan.

STATE LIBRARIAN PAID

Long said $700 was paid in 1923 to Herman P. Miller, librarian of Pennsylvania, for advance copies of bills. Later, he was given $200 for similar work. Because of his position, Miller was able to secure advance copies, Long declared.

Robert E. Healy, commission counsel, questioned Long closely about the nature of the work performed at Harrisburg. Almost invariably Long replied it was "legislative matters."

Long disclosed that he wrote checks totaling $19,500 which were payable to himself as treasurer. He said the cash was turned over to Walter H. Johnson, of Philadelphia, chairman of the policy committee. This money was spent, Long said, for "fees and expenses, attorneys and agents and services."

SOME OF RETAINERS

Payments by the association for work before the Legislature and the State Public Service Commission, Long said, included:

Law firm of Hause, Evans and Becker, retainer $1,500 and a fee of $40,000; John P. Connelly,

BREMEN CREW LANDS BACK IN NEW YORK

3 FLIERS RETURN BY AIR FROM CAPITAL

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The Bremen fliers, Capt. Herman Koehl, Maj. James Fitzmaurice and Baron Gunther von Hunefeld, arrived at Miller Field, Staten Island, at 11:33 a. m. today in the Junkers monoplane F-13, sister ship of the Bremen. They left Washington at 9:28 a. m.

The fliers were met by members of the Mayor's committee, who were to bring them to Manhattan in automobiles.

They were driven uptown to the Astor Hotel, where they were the guests of honor at a luncheon given by the Merchants' Association. They were warmly applauded as they were introduced to the business men at the luncheon.

After dining they were taken on a round of visits to newspaper offices, as well as the plant of the New York Edison Company, the National City Bank offices and the offices of Lindsay Crawford, Irish Free State representative.

Everywhere they went they were recognized by crowds and applauded.

LEAVE CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Glowing and happy over the warmth of their reception in the capital, the Bremen trans-Atlantic fliers left here this morning for New York in the Junkers monoplane F-13, a sister to the famous ship which still lies marooned on Greenley Island.

The German-Irish trio took off from Bolling Field, bound for Miller Field, Staten Island, which they hope to make in about two and one-half hours.

The capital was hardly astir when the F-13 rose in the early May sunshine. Only a group of Army fliers, mechanics and newspaper reporters witnessed the fliers' departure, a fact which was not unpleasing to Baron von Huenefeld, Capt. Hermann Koehl and Maj. James Fitzmaurice, for crowds and mobs have been their lot since arriving in the United States.

The fliers arrived at the field shortly before 8 o'clock. Their big monoplane was already on the line.

Capt. Koehl got into the cockpit and took over the controls, with Maj. Fitzmaurice alongside him as co-pilot. Baron von Huenefeld took up his usual cramp position in the back.

For nearly half an hour the motor continued to purr while Maj. H. C. Davidson, commandant of Bolling Field, explained the route to Koehl and gave him instructions concerning the weather he would likely encounter, and the easiest method of landing at Miller Field. Also in the plane were R. R. Blythe, who will assist the fliers on their American tour, and Pilot Melchior, who flew the Junkers plane down from New York late yesterday.

Finally, Capt. Koehl nodded his head and ejaculated "Ja, ja," several times. Maj. Davidson climbed down, the mechanics pulled the chocks and the doughty German captain taxied the F-13 down the starting line.

With a final wave of hands, the big plane lumbered down the field, gathering speed. Then Koehl "gave her the gun" and she soared off in the early morning sunlight.

DINED AND DECORATED

It was early this morning before the fliers got to bed, after a day such as Washington seldom gives to any foreign visitors. They were welcomed by the State Department, lunched and decorated by President Coolidge, greeted by both houses of Congress, shown the sights of the capital, dined by their diplomats, the hectic day culminating last night with a magnificent government reception, at which they were lionized by more than 2,000 invited guests from the social and official life of Washington.

The present plans of the trio are to remain in New York, as quietly as possible, until the inauguration of their American tour on May 9. They have hardly had an hour's relaxation since they were taken off Greenley Island 10 days ago and catapulted into a series of receptions and experiences such as only trans-Atlantic aerial pioneers could merit.

DISBARRED MARGOLIS WANTS BACK

Jacob Margolis, confessed anarchist about 10 years ago and subsequently disbarred as a lawyer in Allegheny county after considerable agitation during war days, has applied for reinstatement at the bar, it became known today.

Margolis created a national sensation when he testified before a committee of the United States Senate investigating the steel strike about 10 years ago that he was an anarchist and would not defend his wife or home against an attack.

Philadelphia lawyer, $4,000; and oJhn H. Sharpless, of Allentown, $6,182.

Contributions to the association totalled $19,000 in 1922, and none from September, 1923 to September, 1924, and none since September, 1927. Healy brought out that in the same periods when there where no contributions to the association from utility companies the Legislature was not in session.

DEFENDS SECRECY

Johnson next was called.

It is perfectly honorable and lawful, he said, for a man to appear before the Legislature to oppose bills without disclosing that he is being paid by the power companies for his appearance.

Healy had asked Johnson to explain payments in cash to him by Long, which the latter was unable to explain.

"How about the payment in cash to you on December 2, 1922, of $500?" asked Healy.

"I don't know what that was for," Johnson replied.

"How about the payment of $7,500 on March 18, 1927?"

"I do not know what any of these payments were for," Johnson. "It must have been cleaning up matters."

"Who cleaned up?" asked Healy amid an uproar in the hearing room.

"Not in the way you mean," Johnson said, "but we had expenses from time to time that had to be met. We didn't want it known who got it."

"Why?"

"Because it was not good policy, but I will tell you this, every penny was spent hfonorably and lawfully."

MAN WOUNDED TWICE HELD

A mystery prisoner, just recovered from two bullet wounds, is in Central Police Station. Discharged from Homeopathic Hospital today, he told Magistrate John J. Orie in Central Police Court that he was Milton Boeling, 28, of Baltimore, Md., but he was silent on how he was shot.

Police testified that the prisoner, when admitted to the hospital, said he had been wounded in an attempted holdup on the William Penn highway last week. He was held for further investigation.

LESSON GALLOWS TAUGHT FUTILE

CHICAGO, May 3.—(AP.)—Nick Viana killed a man eight years ago, and they hanged him for it.

Nick was only 19, which was young to die. He had played around with the boys of the notorious Cardinella gang. One of their victims had resisted and had been shot dead. From his pockets Viana and his pals got $8 and a few pennies, and on December 10, 1920, the state hanged him.

Mrs. Viana, Nick's mother, went to the death house on the eve of the execution for a last word with her son—he who had once been a choir boy. At her side trudged the condemned mans' 10-year-old brother, Paul, trembling at the sight of his big brother's chalk white face and the gloomy prison walls.

A PROMISE—

"In the morning," said the mother to the little boy, "your brother must die because he did wrong. Promise me, Paul, that you will always be good."

"I promise," said 10-year-old Paul Viana.

And in the graying dawn of the following winter day Nick Viana walked to the gallows singing a song that came tumbling to his lips from a forgotten childhood—"Ave Maria."

"Maybe my death will do more good than my life could have done," he said to his guards. "Maybe it will be a reminder to my kid brother to go straight."

Then he was hanged.

BROKEN

Yesterday Paul Viana remembered—too late. He stood before Judge Comerford and heard the court say:

"The motion for a new trial is overruled. It is the judgment of this court that the defendant, Paul Viana, be imprisoned in the state penitentiary for a term of one year to life."

The sentence was for highway robbery with a gun. The "kid" brother had held up a street car conductor and robbed him of $8.22.

HILL SLIDES, LEAVES TRACKS IN MID-AIR

ON IT'S WAY!

Pennsylvania railroad tracks at Morado Park, west of Beaver Falls (Pa.), are sliding down hill—because the hill's sliding. It's been going on for some time. Repair work is rushed. A clay fill on a rock-bottom bed, put in before the tracks were laid, caused the slide, it is believed.

OUT OF USE

The tracks as they are now could best be used for a suspension railroad for in places the rails and ties do not touch the ground. Note here how the rails have been bowed. A culvert far below here "absorbed" much of the loose rock and earth.

EMBEZZLER IS DENIED WRIT

Sentenced six to 12 years for embezzlement, when the law prescribes five to 10 years, Frank L. Clinefelter, embezzling officer of the Lawrence County Trust Company, must continue serving his sentence Judge James B. Drew today denied Clinefelter's petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

Clinefelter, convicted of embezzling $15,000 of the bank's funds, was sentenced February 7, 1925. In dismissing the petition Judge Drew said he did so without prejudice to the petitioner, who may renew it about the time the five-year minimum sentence would expire.

TECH CAMPUS WEEK OPENS

A two-day's celebration of Campus Week formally began for the students of Carnegie Institute of Technology this morning when a vaudeville show was presented in Carnegie Music Hall under the direction of Donald McClure. A chorus of campus "beauties" assisted in several of the acts. One of the features was the formal introduction of Miss Elizabeth McFadden as the queen of Campus Week.

This afternoon's program called for the qualification exercises for first-year students with freshmen exempted from further campus regulations and a procession from the campus to the athletic field.

At 3:30 the preliminary heats of the annual inter-fraternity weepstakes were scheduled. Nearly every fraternity connected with the school entered a pushmobile and a team of pushers in the competition. The final heat for the winners of today's preliminaries is scheduled for tomorrow morning.

Tonight, at 9 o'clock, Miss McFadden will be crowned as queen with elaborate ceremonies on the steps of Machinery Hall.

"SCARE" SHOTS COST HIM $100

Frank McTamnay, 38, of Fifty-fourth street, fired several revolver shots in his kitchen merely to scare his wife, police testified in Morals Court today. It cost Frank $100.

ROBBERS GET CASH IN 3 HOTEL ROOMS

Sneak thieves Tuesday night entered three unlocked rooms in the Fort Pitt Hotel and stole small amounts of money. A houseman discovered the robberies. City Detectives Frank Boyd and Howard Forner are investigating. The hotel management said the thefts would not amount to over $100.

WOODS RUN DOG BITES THREE

A stray dog, presumably mad, bit three persons, a child, a policeman and a fireman, before it was shot, in Woods Run late yesterday.

Police captured the animal after it had attacked Virginia Giacomo, 3, of 1621 Metropolitan street, near her home. The animal escaped near the Woods Run Police Station and bit Patrolman Leo Fitzgerald and Fireman Kiernan Garvey. Its head was taken to West Penn Hospital to determine if it had been suffering from rabies.

Pittsburgh AS OTHERS SEE US

"Pittsburgh is the heart of the entire nation."
—JOSEPHUS DANIELS.

JOSEPHUS DANIELS

JOSEPHUS DANIELS, editor and statesman, born in Washington, N. C., May 18, 1862, graduated in law at the University of North Carolina but did not practice. At age of 18 he edited a newspaper. He was state printer in North Carolina in 1887 and subsequently held other state offices. Was Secretary of the Navy under President Wilson, 1913 to 1921. Is now editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, and resides in Raleigh, N. C.

If, as Judge Gary once stated, steel is the yardstick of American progress, then Pittsburgh is the heart of the entire nation.

I never knew much about it until I became Secretary of the Navy, and then, particularly during the World War, I found there such a fine American spirit with such hearty co-operation for all the policies of the government toward winning the war, that it has a very warm place in my heart.

CANDIDATE FUND QUIZ OPENS

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Chairman Steiwer of the Senate campaign expenditures investigating committee today sent telegrams to all the known presidential candidates of both parties asking that they name all their authorized chairmen, managers, treasurers and other official representatives.

This action was taken so that the authorized campaign workers might be subpenaed by the committee.

Dispatch of the telegrams marked the first official step in the Senatorial investigation to ascertain contributions and expenditures of the various candidates thus far in the campaign.

The telegram was sent to the following Republican candidates: Secretary of Commerce Hoover, former Gov. Lowden of Illinois, Senator Watson of Indiana, Senator Curtis of Kansas, Senator Norris of Nebraska, and Senator Goff of West Virginia.

It was also sent to the following eight Democratic candidates:

Gov. Smith, of New York; Senator Walsh, of Montana; Senator Reed, of Missouri; Senator George, of Georgia; Representative Hull, of Tennessee; Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland; former Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, and former Senator Atlee Pomerene, of Ohio.

The telegrams were identical as follows:

"Pursuant to Senate resolution, the Senate special committee on presidential campaign expenditures and methods is starting at once to make its investigations. Please wire immediately the names and addresses of all authorized chairmen, managers, treasurers and other representatives acting in your behalf. Also please indicate earliest convenient date for the taking of your testimony."

NOBILE DIRIGIBLE OFF TO ARCTIC BASE

GRISSELHAMN, Sweden, May 3.—(AP.)—Gen. Nobile's dirigible Italia passed over this city at 12:15 p. m. It soon disappeared over the Gulf of Bosnia.

(Grisselhamn is about 50 miles north of Stockholm.)

STOCKHOLM, May 3.—The dirigible Italia, escorted by Swedish naval planes, passed over this city at 10:45 this morning.

DIRIGIBLE TAKES OFF
International News Service.

STOLP, Germany, May 3.—The dirigible Italia left Seddin hangars, near here, at 3:23 a. m. today on the second leg of its flight to the North Pole with King's Bay, Spitzbergen, as its destination.

Gen. Umberto Nobile, commander of the giant airship, stated before his departure that an intermediate landing might be made at Vadsoe, Norway, for refueling, if weather conditions permitted.

Gen. Nobile decided upon starting this morning when he received word that the terrific storms over northern Norway, which had prevented his starting yesterday morning, had subsided.

MASCOT ALONG

Titiana, the Fox Terrier mascot of the Italia, accompanied Nobile and his crew of 16 on the flight. About 200 persons, including the Reichswehr soldiers who aided in getting the ship out of the hangar, witnessed the start.

With searchlights playing on it from the field, the ship ascended rapidly and was soon lost in the darkness. After a few moments, even the drone of its motors could not be heard.

Mme. Nobile and her daughter bade the General goodby affectionately just before he jumped into the gondola of the ship. They smiled bravely and seemed confident of the success of his venture. They will return to Italy at once.

The dirigible is expected to cover the 1,600 miles to King's Bay in between 40 and 50 hours. Its cruising speed is about 80 miles an hour but this will be lessened greatly by expected headwinds.

The Norwegian government is keeping men in readiness to aid the Italia to make a landing at Vadsoe, if Nobile should decide to stop there. Vadsoe is about 900 miles north of here.

Seized in Death of Forrester

Walter Hopper, of Canonsburg, said to be a Washington county politician, was arrested today on a charge of second-degree murder in the death of former Police Capt. Anthony Forrester, who was killed in an auto crash in Washington pike on Friday, April 13.

Kopper's arrest came a few minutes after a coroner's jury had returned a verdict of "accidental death." The charge was preferred by the former Hill district officer's widow, Mrs. Madge Forrester, before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan.

Kopper was "very drunk" when his car collided with Forrester's, State Patrolman Lawrence Putler testified at the inquest. Anna May Christner, 19, of 1702 Forbes street, who was riding with Forrester, testified Kopper was "paralyzed drunk."

MINE LAW IDEAS ASKED

By MAX HENRICI,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Now that the facts as to conditions in the coal industry are at hand, the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee desires constructive suggestions as to what the Federal government can do to give operators a fair profit, miners a fair wage, and the public coal at a fair price. This was the answer given today to the question what course the inquiry would now pursue.

So much testimony is at hand as to the facts that it probably would take two or three weeks merely to read the record of the inquiry; for, in addition to the evidence orally taken, there were filed numerous documents, reports, tables and affidavits. Of the 19 members of the committee not one attended every session of the coal inquiry, and some attended few sessions. They have counted on reading the record, but it is probable that it will not be read in its entirety by any of them.

Hence it has been decided to leave the matter of legislative proposals in the hands of a sub-committee composed of six Senators who have followed the investigation more closely than any of the others.

Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, is chairman of the sub-committee, and all of its members are lawyers except Senator Frank R. Gooding, of Idaho, who, however, has attended the hearings more faithfully than any of his colleagues.

The sub-committee invites suggestions for legislation. It will receive briefs outlining the views of those who have any plans to offer, and will hold hearings, it was said today, if it appears desirable. But it desires constructive recommendations, not merely statements as to conditions in the industry.

There is no expectation of the passage of legislation for the relief of the coal industry at this session of Congress.

Wind Lays Town in Ruins

SIOUX CITY, Ia., May 3.—(AP.)—Strong winds and violent rain storms raked Northwestern Iowa and Northeastern Nebraska last night, causing damage that may exceed $100,000. One man was reported seriously injured by flying timber.

Virtually the entire business section of Clarks, Neb., a village of 800 population, was wrecked. Twenty-three buildings were demolished by high winds.

Near Moville, Ia., 20 miles east of Sioux City, the damage done by wind was roughly fixed at $50,000. The storm lasted an hour during which farm buildings were wrecked and telephone poles snapped.

Cherokee, Ia., reported much wind damage. The roof of the Illinois Central roundhouse was blown off, and the main line of the road was blocked by eight freight cars lifted from a siding to the main tracks. A worker, whose name was not learned, was struck by a flying timber in the roundhouse.

At Thurston, Neb., a cloudburst occurred, and at Homer, Neb., a building was lifted from its foundations. Columbus, Neb., reported hail and the interruption of communication.

Efforts to get a comprehensive estimate of the total storm damage were hampered by telephone facilities made almost useless by the storm.

Wives of Bremen Fliers Want to Meet Lindbergh

Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 3.

THE one ambition of Mrs. James Fitzmaurice and Mrs. Hermann Koehl while in this country is to meet Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The Flying Colonel is now in this city but whether arrangement would be made to have him meet the wives of the two pilots of the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen could not be learned.

"We all admire him so much," said Mrs. Fitzmaurice, "and certainly would like to see him before we return."

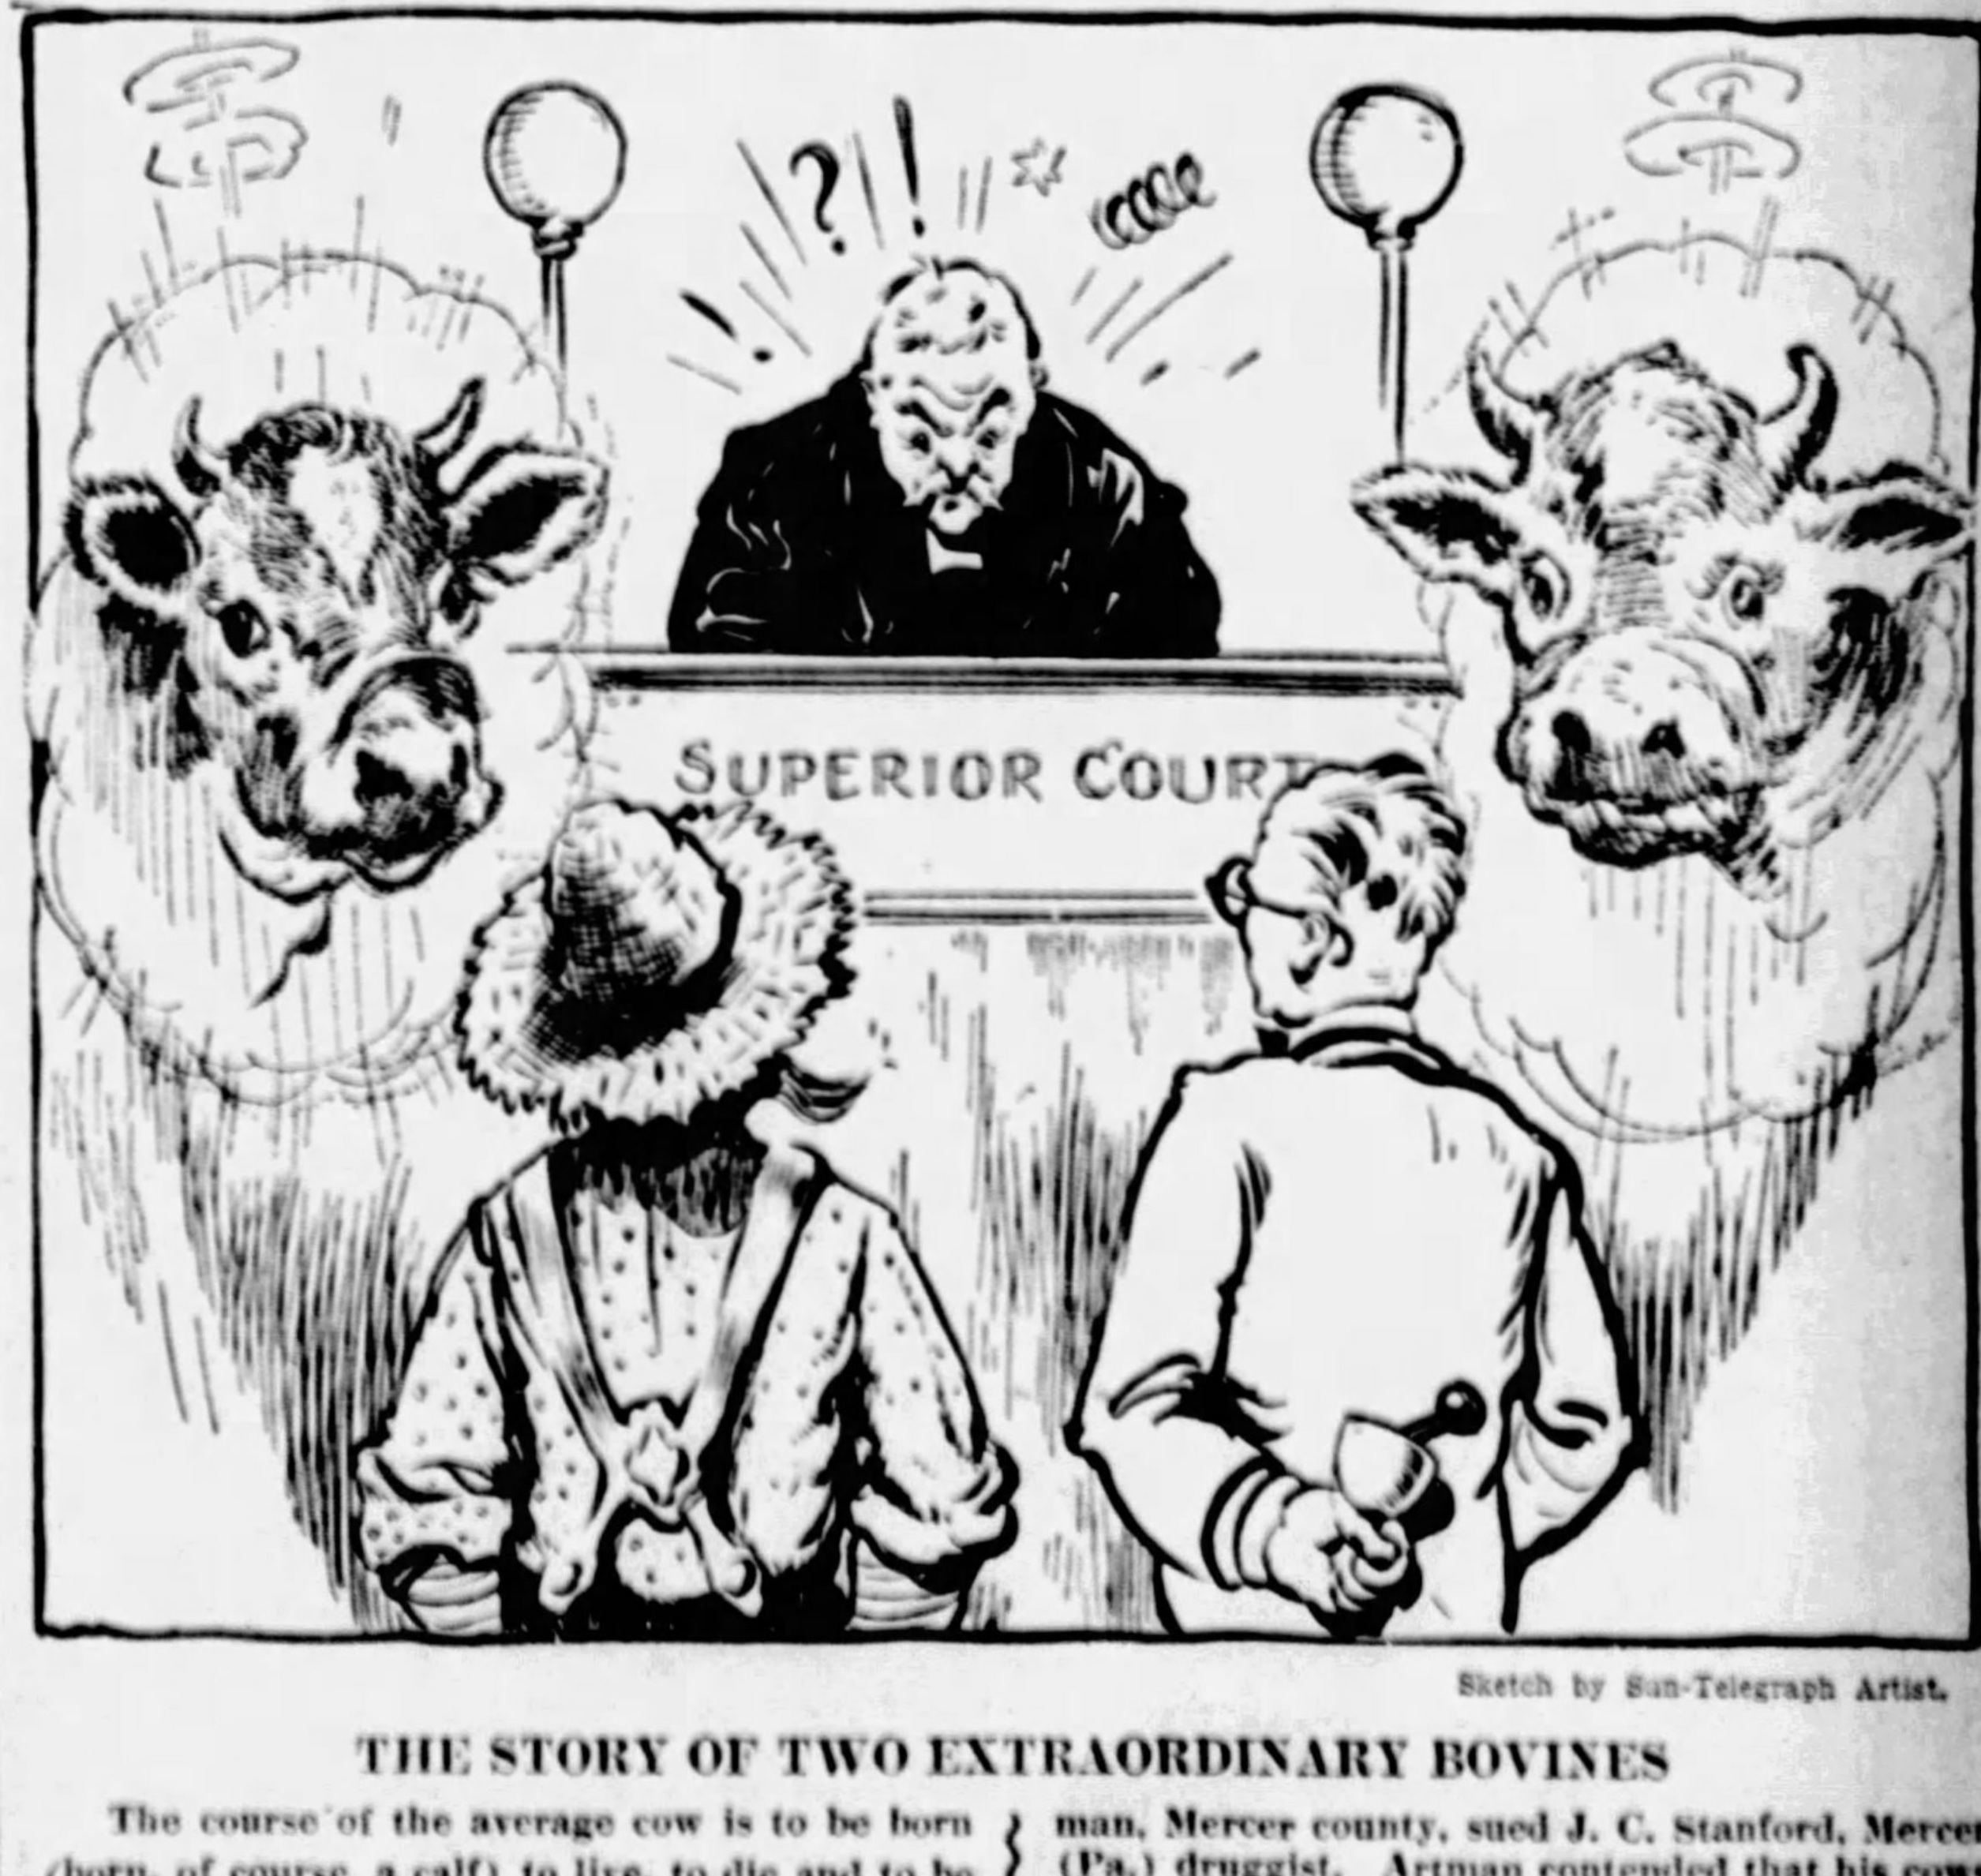
Another hope of the two women is that they may be permitted to wander about by themselves through the shops and the avenues and to see the bright lights of Broadway.

The American girl has impressed both women, while Mrs. Koehl said she also was impressed by the American man.

"I think the women here are collectively prettier than those of London," said Mrs. Fitzmaurice, "although, of course, there are many pretty women there too."

She said she had not noticed the men.

COURT ADJUDICATES ON LATE COWS



Sketch by Sun-Telegraph Artist.

THE STORY OF TWO EXTRAORDINARY BOVINES

The course of the average cow is to be born (born, of course, a calf) to live, to die and to be forgotten. The cow that is remembered after death is an extraordinary cow, and perhaps what this country needs is more extraordinary cows. Here is the story, then, of two extraordinary cows, who, after death, were important enough to occupy the attention of the Pennsylvania Superior Court, sitting in Pittsburgh. Harry Artman, Mercer county, sued J. C. Stanford, Mercer (Pa.) druggist. Artman contended that his cows had died because he drenched them with a preparation which was mistakenly sold to him by Stanford. A Mercer jury awarded Artman a verdict of a few hundred dollars. Superior Court decided he should have just that. Hence litigation goes on and on, while the two cows, long since departed to the fields where departed cows rest in peace.

BEQUESTS MADE IN WOMAN'S WILL

One-third of the $75,000 estate of Miss Mary Elizabeth Alexander, of Darlington road, is left to the Presbyterian churches and institutions, according to her will probated today.

Miss Alexander, who died April 26, left $5,000 each to the Sixth Church, Hazelwood Church, Board of Christian Education, Board of Ministerial Relief and Sustentation and the Board of National Missions. Her sister, Miss Amanda Alexander, is chief beneficiary. Other relatives are remembered with bequests. S. B. Charters and the Union National Bank are executors.

Max Mueller, of Moon township, left his $8,000 estate to a son and two daughters. David H. Reardon, of Brackenridge, left his $12,000 estate to his wife, Mary.

A preliminary order was signed by Judge James H. Gray of Common Pleas Court granting a charter to the Central Pittsburgh Reformed Presbyterian Church.

Treasury Raiders Top James Boys, Rogers' View

OMAHA, Neb., May 3.—Just flew in from Chelsea, Okla., bucking a head wind.

See by the papers that every appropriation bill is being passed. Too bad you didn't ask for something; you would have gotten it. Suppose four different groups from four different parts of the country all want something and all trade votes with each other so that everybody gets theirs what chance has the Treasury got? There is times when it looks like the James Boys got their robbery reputation on mighty scant evidence. If all these appropriations go through, then Judd Gray and Ruth Snyder were innocent.

ALL 6 VICTIMS IN DROWNING IDENTIFIED

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 3.—(AP.)—Identification of the six persons who lost their lives when a rowboat capsized Monday night near Alicia No. 2 mine, was completed last night and another theory as to the cause was advanced by authorities.

The dead, whose bodies still were missing, were Miss Cenneth Gaddis, 20, a school teacher, two children named Scott and three negroes Mrs. Joe Stone and her two children.

Police said that reports that a passenger had tipped the boat were found to be untrue; that the boat capsized when Minor Wilso, Negro, later rescued, used an oar to pry up a cable connecting the boat with another craft.

Relatives of Miss Cenneth Gaddis said reports that the girl had been awarded a Carnegie medal a year ago for rescuing two persons from drowning were erroneous, according to authorities.

PARADE TO OPEN HILLTOP SPAN

Citizens of all the communities of the South Hills district are preparing for participation in the ceremonies of Tuesday afternoon for the dedication of the John P. Moore Memorial bridge spanning the ravine which separates the north and south sections of the Thirtieth ward. The structure is a broad concrete arch, connecting Georgia avenue with Arabelle street, and opens important avenues of traffic in the Hilltop region.

The bridge replaces an iron bridge in the old borough of Knoxville and was built largely through the efforts of the late John P. Moore, former county controller and for many years a resident of Knoxville.

A parade of business men's organizations of the South Hills, Thirtieth ward school children, local military units, the Boy Scouts and decorated automobiles and floats will precede the opening ceremonies. City and county officials will be among the speakers.

Former members of Knoxville borough council compose the executive committee in charge.

VICE PROBE DEMANDS SPREAD

CHURCHES PLAN NEW CIVIC MOVEMENT

Demands for a Federal grand jury investigation into alleged vice conditions in Pittsburgh are coming from church people throughout Allegheny county. Yesterday plans were laid by the North Side Ministerial Association for the organization of a Citizens' Civic Service Commission, consisting of one layman representative from each church in the county, to carry on the war against commercialized vice and liquor law violations. The East End ministerial body which sponsored a big protest meeting last Sunday, was invited to cooperate.

Possible union in the vice probe of East End and North Side church bodies was indicated earlier in the day by the Rev. Dr. A. R. Robinson, chairman of the East End executive commitee. Dr. Robinson said the two organizations were working for the same purpose and felt it would help the cause to work together instead of having three separate organizations in the field for the same purpose.

He did not, however, favor a union with the Citizens' League, which has been probing conditions here for several years.

Nine Negro pastors met in the Center Avenue Y. M. C. A. yesterday at the suggestion of the Rev. A. V. Hightower, president of the Afro-American Brotherhood of the World, and plans were made for a mass meeting of Negro church members from all parts of the city.

ROUTE NO. 75 SURVEY TO BE STARTED SOON

BUTLER, Pa., May 3.—County commissioners have received word that survey would begin soon on route No. 75, which runs from Oneida, three miles north of Butler, toward Emlenton. The state and county will share alike in the paving of this highway which will open a shorter route to Oil City and towns farther north. The improvement will cost about $400,000.

WEST VIRGINIA STATE FAIR SECRETARY DIES

WHEELING, W. Va., May 3.—Bert H. Swartz, secretary of the West Virginia State Fair Association for the last 20 years, died yesterday in the Ohio Valley General Hospital.

'ODOR' MILL OPENS DESPITE PROTEST

Opposition to the offal disposal plant of the North Side Packing Company by residents of Spring Garden avenue reached the climax today when the bone crusher was put in operation. The people declare that it is in fact a "fertilizer" factory and will produce all the offensive odors common to that kind of a plant.

Headed by Mrs. F. A. Sauer, property owners and tenants, yesterday complained to City Council that the plant constituted a public nuisance and asked for relief in measures for its abatement.

The plant adjoins the John Burroughs public playground, which is to be opened July 4, and it is declared that the 1,000 children of the neighborhood will not have an opportunity to use the playfield if the offal disposal plant is permitted to operate. The hearing before Council was enlivened by a tilt between Councilman W. Y. English, an officer in the packing company, and Mrs. Sauer. English claimed that the disposal plant would be immediately closed down if it proved offensive.

Fayette to Dump Liquor Valued at $15,000

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 3.—Into the sewer it will go—several thousand gallons of liquor seized in raids in different sections of Fayette county 'n the last year or two. On petition of District Attorney N. W. Rosenberg, the court ordered Sheriff Tom Aubrey to make "public destruction" of the liquor, most of which is moonshine. The bonded liquor will be preserved for hospitals. The liquors to be destroyed have a bootleg value of about $15,000.

TWO SEMINARY EXERCISES TONIGHT

Thirteen seniors will be graduated and degrees of master of sacred theology will be conferred upon seven post-graduates at the one hundred and first annual commencement exercises of the Western Theological Seminary tonight in the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue. The Rev. Dr. J. R. P. Solater, pastor of old St. Andrew's Chruch, Toronto, Canada, will deliver the commencement address. The Rev. Dr. James A. Kelso, president of the seminary, will confer the degrees and present the diplomas.

The one hundred and third annual commencement exercises of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary will be held tonight in the First United Presbyterian Church, Union avenue, North Side. Eleven seniors will be graduated and degrees will be conferred upon four other men for post-graduate work. The address will be delivered by the Rev. James I. Vance of Nashville, Tenn.

Naming 'Albert' in Sleep Harmless, Wife Says

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 3.—Just because she mentioned the name of another man when she talked in her sleep is no just cause for her husband to get a divorce, in the estimation of Mrs. Goldie Zimmerman, pretty Connellsville woman. She was in court yesterday contesting the divorce action with a counter claim of cruel and barbarous treatment.

She charged her husband treated her so cruelly that she had to leave home.

The husband testified that one night he was awakened by his wife, who patted him affectionately on the cheek and called him "Albert." He also stated that his wife made certain admissions as to "Albert."

¶ This is the first time that Frank & Seder ever issued an advertisement like this! But then, it's the first time that Frank & Seder ever staged a Birthday Sale as unusual as the one that's now going on! We are certainly giving Bargains—and HOW! And the crowds! Well, you'd think the whole population suddenly decided to come to our Birthday Party!

¶ But the Advertising Department went up in the air. What kind of an ad to put out for the second day? To list all the Birthday Bargains would take a dozen pages of a newspaper. Besides, practically all the items for today's selling are continued on sale tomorrow. So what's the answer?

¶ We decided to use a Giant Broadside like this. Even the busiest person can read while he runs. And catch some of the spirit of this tremendous Ten-Day Retailing Event. Just to give you an idea of the standard of value-giving adopted for this event, we mention a handful of the thousands of offerings from Top Floor to Basement.

¶ Women's Pure Silk Full-Fashioned Hose for 99c is a bargain—and the mere announcement is enough—but when we tell you that we have Women's Coats for $19, we can't convey the fact that it is just as sensational as the hosiery item. You have to see the garments to realize that they are worth $30 to $35. And when we tell men they can buy Paris Garters for 17c, they know it's a big bargain—but Men's Hart Schaffner & Marx Suits and Topcoats at $28 are equally as outstanding values!

¶ O. N. T. Spool Cotton, 6 spools for 19c; Rayon Bedspreads for $2.49; Washable Window Shades for 77c, and Kotex at 25c, are just picked at random. 25c Turkish Towels, each 15c; Women's Arch-Healer Shoes at $3.98; 9x12 Velvet Rugs at $18.50; Women's Silk Dresses at $12.95 are another group that will help to establish in your mind the fact that we are selling merchandise At Cost, a Little Below Cost, and a Trifle Above Cost. If you could see the Coats, Suits and Dresses on our Apparel Floor and French Rooms, you would enthuse over the values as we do!

¶ Printed Crepes at $1.29; Muslins at 8c yard; 9x12 Linoleum Rugs at $6.95; Wall Paper at 7 cents—yes, and Fur Coats, too! Instead of packing them away, we're going to sacrifice our stock, and you certainly will get a Birthday present! Dresses and Coats at $5 are only two of the thousands of features in our Basement! You can buy Girls' Organdy Dresses on our Third Floor at $2.69; Women's New Visca Hats at $2.55; Reading Lamps on the Balcony at $1.19!

¶ And just as likely as not we skipped the very best offerings. That's why you must come and see the bargains and the crowds to realize what it's all about. It's hard for us to pedal down to ordinary statements. We're right in the middle of things, and when it comes to trying to tell somebody the story we don't know where to begin or where to end.

¶ We hope to goodness we have enough help—with the hundreds of extras we've added—but if you don't get quick service, the wonderful Bargains you're getting will more than make up for any slight inconvenience.

¶ The whole Birthday Celebration is just too big to picture to you in a newspaper ad—It's the biggest thing in town!

¶ Give the Family Purse a run for its money—bring it around tomorrow!

DRIVER ADMITS PALS HAD GUN, POLICE SAY

BEAVER, Pa., May 3.—Mrs. Ella Temple and Mrs. Edrie Batzel, both of Aliquippa, held in jail here as material witnesses, deny to State Police they witnessed the fatal shooting of their husband and brother, Albert Temple, 20, at South Heights early Sunday.

The two women, with Keith Ely, Aliquippa, were arrested in a hotel at Ellwood City and turned over to Corp. Marcus White of the State Police at New Brighton.

Solomon Rubkin, poolroom proprietor, 1417 Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, arrested by Pittsburgh detectives, is held in the county jail here by State Police as an accomplice in the shooting of Temple.

Rubkin, police say, admits he was driver of the car which brought the two women, Pete Batterie and another man, known as Patsy, to South Heights Saturday night.

Rubkin said police report, that he had had a fight with Harry Crain, Temple's pal, and had returned with the two women to Pittsburgh, after Pete and Patsy, with drawn revolvers, had entered the boathouse. He denies seeing the shooting.

Rubkin is said to have told police that after returning to Pittsburgh he got a gang of five men to return to South Heights to help "Pete" and "Patsy," but met the two men in Corapolis, on the return trip.

Batterie is sought as the actual killer of Temple, police say.

SITE OF SCHOOL AT MORGAN OPPOSED

Judge James H. Gray of Common Pleas Court stated yesterday from the bench that he doubted the court's authority to assume jurisdiction over the management of school boards, when he was asked to restrain the school board of South Fayette Township from building a $100,000 high school and public school at Morgan.

Attorney Thomas L. Kane, representing the school board, declared all the school authorities, both local and state, had approved the site.

Attorney A. G. Smith, for Martin Rainer, plaintiff, declared the site not suitable. Rainer seeks to have the school built on a large tract on the hill, at Morgan. He asserts the present one-acre site does not afford sufficient playground room, is too close to a slack pile, which may ignite and cast off fumes and that the land is underlaid with coal, removal of which might endanger the building.

Judge Gray said he would render a decision later.

BLAST DAMAGE SUITS FILED

Damages resulting from a gas explosion at 503 Ross street March 11, 1927 caused two $20,000 damage suits to be brought in Common Pleas Court yesterday. One was instituted by F. Frangeskos against the H. M. Netherland Company, contractor building the Plaza building adjoining the scene of the blast. The other was brought by the Eastern Cigaret and Tobacco Company in which Frangeskos was a partner.

It is charged that the contractor, by blasting for the foundations of the Plaza building, damaged the gas pipes in the adjoining building. The explosion occured when Frangeskos entered the store. Thrown through a window to Fifth avenue, he charges he was severely hurt and that his hair turned gray.

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c, 30c, 60c.

"My left arm broke out with watery pimples up to my shoulder. The itching and burning were so intense that they almost set me frantic. I could not keep from scratching it, which caused eruptions, and the trouble spread to other parts of my body. There was an eruption on my left limb the size of a dollar bill, and my clothing used to aggravate it. It hindered my ordinary work, also my sleeping.

"I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I purchased more, and in about thirty days the eruptions had entirely disappeared. I was healed." (Signed) E. M. Sinclair, 117 Center St., St. Marys, Pa., Oct. 7, 1927.

NAB THREE BOYS WITH STOLEN AUTO

After escaping from the Juvenile Court detention rooms in Forbes street yesterday afternoon, three youths were returned to Pittsburgh from Greensburg early today, following their arrest in that place last night. The machine in which they were riding was wrecked in a traffic accident. It had been stolen in Pittsburgh, police say.

The boys, Bryer Craig, 15, of 229 Zara street; Andrew Kuzniewski, 14, of North Braddock, and John Tinko, 15, of Homestead, will be arraigned in Morals Court today. Detectives say that Craig led his two companions in the escape, took them to the South Side, where an automobile was stolen, and then drove them to Greensburg.

Now! meal time is a happy event

"IT is all so wonderful, I can hardly believe my eyes. When I think how badly you used to feel—didn't want anything to eat—perhaps sometimes a little grouchy and miserable, and just driving yourself by main force, I almost shudder. I know it worried you, too. You seemed to feel as though you were slipping. Then one day you brought home a bottle of S.S.S. and told me you were going to give it a trial. That was only a few weeks ago. Today you look like a new person. Your appetite is keen, your flesh is firm, and your whole being seems to radiate happiness and I am happy too, because you are well and strong again."

Loss of appetite only a symptom

It is a known fact that when one's system gets "run-down," they haven't the resistance to ward off disease. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play.

Rich, red blood builds and sustains

Your physician will tell you that lowered vitality is the result of an insufficient supply of red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

When you get your blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, rheumatism, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again; sleep soundly; solid flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You fell strong; and your nerves become steady.

NEW YORK CAR FARE BOOSTED

CITY'S BATTLE FOR FIVE-CENT RATE LOST

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP.)—The principle of the 5-cent fare, maintained since the start of rapid transit in New York City, and long a political issue, today stood denied by Federal Court decision.

The five-cent fare is a provision of the contract under which there is private operation of city-owned subways. Efforts of companies since the war to gain an increased fare because of higher prices of labor and materials hitherto have failed.

The court's decision held the five-cent fare to be confiscatory in that it provided earnings of only 2.52 per cent last year, according to the I. R. T. figures.

MAY DELAY RAISE

Determination of a permanent "fair and reasonable" rate is to be referred to a special master to be appointed by the court. In the meantime the fare can be raised by the Interborough to 7 cents upon posting of a bond which would guarantee return to the passengers with interest of any additional amount collected over the fare which is finally fixed. This bond, it is estimated, would be $10,000,000 to $15,000,000. But no immediate higher fare is expected to further litigation.

The city took immediate steps looking toward an appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

In granting the increase asked by the Interborough the court left open the way for a further increase in the fare to 8 or 10 cents, said William H. Ransom, counsel for the I. R. T.

ALLOWED 8 PER CENT

The decision held that the I. R. T. had the right to earn 8 per cent a year upon all property used in the operation of elevated and subway lines. To give the company an 8 per cent return upon its valuation of $898,793,648 the car riders of New York City would have to pay $49,286,731 more than last year. The 2-cent increase would give the company only about half that amount.

The court's decision was the climax of a court fight which was started three months ago, after refusal of the transit commission to consider the Interborough's request for an increased fare.

POPE DEPLORES GIRL ATHLETICS

ROME, May 3.—(AP.)—Athletic competition in public by girls is disapproved by Pope Pius. The Pontiff has sent an open letter to Cardinal Pomili, vicar of the Rome Diocese, protesting against a gymnasium competition for young girls which was to have begun tomorrow.

The letter complains that the games, which the Pope regards as unseemly and contrary to the spirit of womanhood, should occur under the very eyes of the head of the Catholic Church. He approves remonstrances already made on the subject by various bishops.

The athletic competition is especially disagreeable, the Pope writes, since it comes in the month of May, which is dedicated to the blessed Virgin.

"The Bishop of Rome," says the letter, "cannot in fact fail to deplore that here in the Holy City of Catholocism, after 20 centuries of Christianity, the sensitiveness and attention to the delicate care due to young women and girls should be shown to have fallen lower than pagan Rome."

The letter criticizes public performances by young female athletes, saying that the methods of physical culture now pursued in Italy are contrary to "good sane pedagogy." It continues:

"Nobody can think that Christian education excludes or does not appreciate all that gives the body agility, grace, health, true good and force on the condition that this is done in a fitting place, manner and time, avoiding everything not agreeing with reserve and modesty, which are ornaments and the bulwark of feminine virtue, and omitting any incentive to vanity or violence.

"If the hands of women must be lifted, we wish and pray that it will always and only be in the act of prayer or of good action."

Frank facts… about body odor!

How this purifying toilet soap prevents odor

HOW offended we always are when we detect body odor in others. Respect, friendship, love—all wither before this grave offense.

Yet we are all subject to body odor. We'd die if we didn't perspire. Even on cool days—our pores give off invisible perspiration—often as much as a quart of waste each 24 hours.

This body moisture, whether you see it or not, is odorous. And it plays no favorites. Bank president or laborer—society leader or servant—all may offend unless they take precautions.

Easy to keep safe

Unfortunately, we cannot tell when we ourselves are guilty of body odor. For, once an odor becomes familiar to us, our own sense of smell becomes deadened to it.

Yet there's no need to risk offending. Just wash and bathe often with the delightful toilet soap that millions enjoy—Lifebuoy—it deodorizes.

The same mild and abundant antiseptic lather that helps protect health by removing germs—prevents body odor by purifying pores. Note, too, how clear and fresh Lifebuoy keeps complexions.

WOMEN Doctors despise.

"They don't take care of their bodies," declared one doctor angrily. "They let the poisons of constipation accumulate in the system—and wonder why they always feel dragged through a knot-hole." One reason for this is that women have shunned ordinary laxatives. Cathartics that wrack the system—health foods that take weeks to act . . .

Feen-a-mint is different!

It's just like a bit of delicious chewing gum. You don't swallow it—you chew it!

Its magic laxative principle is released slowly, the way science meant it to be released. It actually becomes part of the digestive fluids—does not disturb digestion. It works with the body—not against it!

It won't torture you with griping pains. It won't poison or weaken the system. It won't enslave you to laxative pills. Get Feen-a-mint at your druggist's. Correct constipation—now!

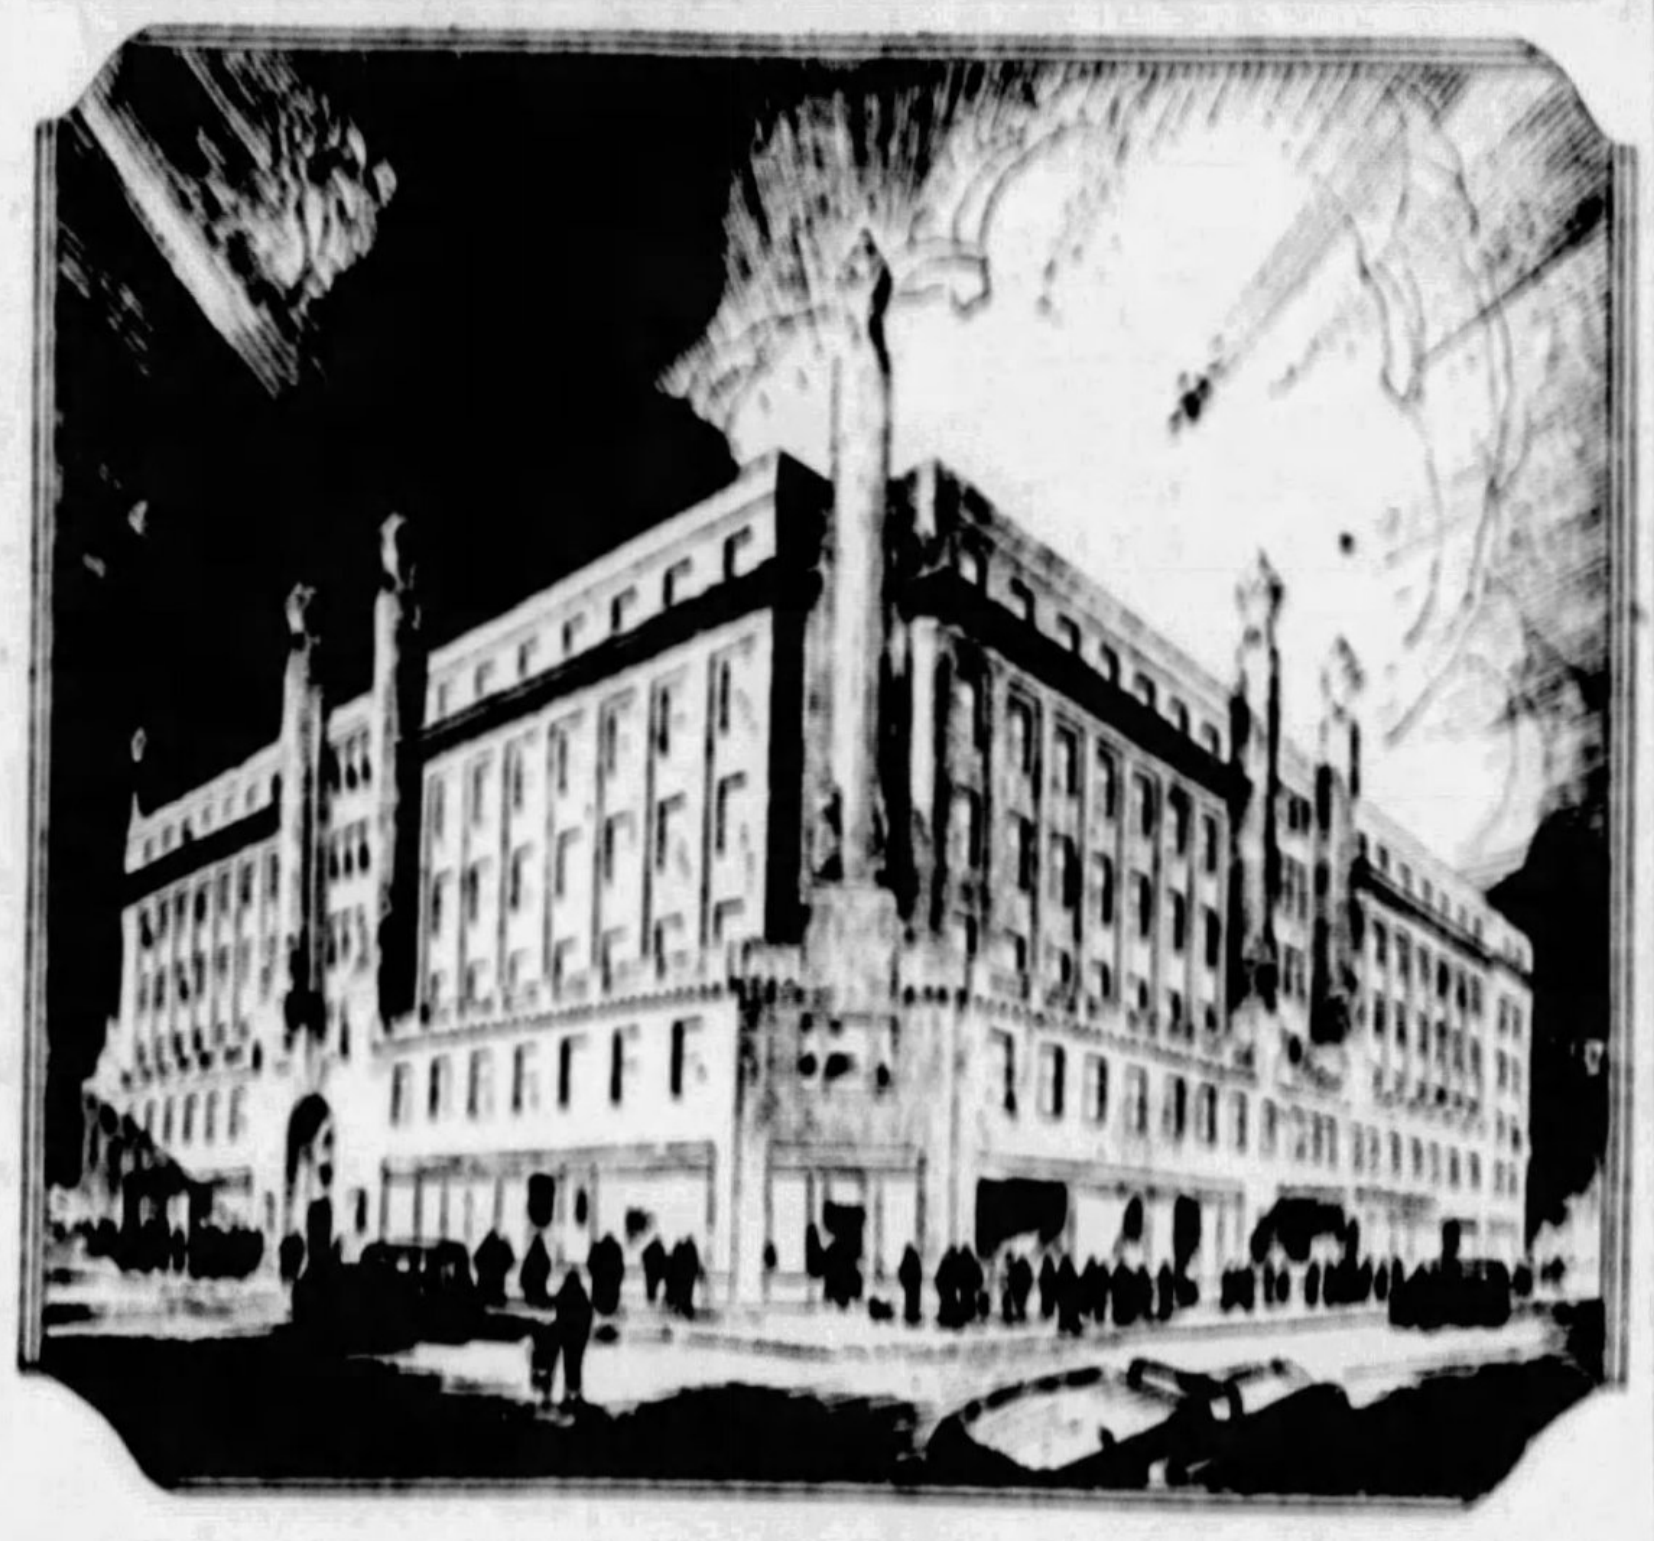
NEW HEARST BUILDING



This new, modern building at Fifty-eighth street and Eighth avenue, New York, houses the Hearst newspaper and magazine executive offices, which were moved recently.

HEARST OFFICES IN NEW HOME

NEW YORK, May 3.—The executive offices of the Hearst newspapers have been moved to the new International Magazine Company building on Eighth avenue at Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh streets. They will occupy the Fifty-seventh street side of the sixth floor of the new building, which was constructed to house the 10 publications of the International Magazine Company, together with the general offices of the Hearst newspapers.

The Hearst newspaper executives, whose offices are now located in the new building, are Col. Frank Knox, general manager of the Hearst newspapers; W. E. Miler, secretary of the executive committee; Austin H. Clark, chief of the accounting department; E. M. Carney, supervisor of promotion and editor of Exchanges; Victor H. Polachek, T. V. Ranck and John Hastings, members of Col. Knox's staff.

The entire promotion department and accounting department will be located in the new building.

The International Magazine Company Building is a six-story structure, built on a plot extending 200 feet on Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh streets and 200 feet on Eighth avenue. It is so designed that seven additional floors can be added without basic changes to the present building.

The facade is of precast limestone and the upper stories are strengthened with massive piers. Joseph Urban, the architect who designed the building, departed from the conventional in some features of the building. One of the unusual features is the setback at the third story from the baseline. The special motifs of the design consist of engaged columns and allegorical figures representing music, art, commerce and industry.

Eight huge columns extend from the third story set-back to a short distance above the roof of the building, and the capitals of these columns are a departure from the strictly architectural. Instead of the usual classical motif of one of the five orders of architecture, decorative urns have been used to crown the columns.

Frontage on three streets provides for outside light in all offices facing the streets, and a large court around which the three sections of the building are constructed provides maximum daylight for inside office. The ground floor of the building is designed to accommodate 23 stores.

The second floor is reserved for office renting purposes. On the third and fourth floors are located the business departments of the Hearst magazines, and the editorial departments of the magazines are on the fifth floor. The offices of the Hearst executives occupy the sixth floor.

The panelling of the magazine editorial offices is executed in mahogany, American walnut, California redwood and Norwegian pine.

Among the Heart magazines that will be edited from this new building are Cosmopolitan, Good Housekeeping, Harper's Bazar, Town and Country, International Studio, Smart Set, McClure's, Motor, Motor Boating and American Druggist. The Cosmopolitan Book Corporation will also have offices in the building.

How Yeast and Iron Builds Quick Flesh and Health

Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—weight-building Yeast and strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt, and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured yeast, concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value.

This Yeast is treated with pure, vegetable iron, the same as in spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form Iron is easily assimilated by the body, making rich, red blood and toning up nerves and muscles.

Only when Yeast is Ironized in this way is it more effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building, strengthening values of Yeast. By this special formula Ironized Yeast gives you results in half the time required by yeast or iron taken separately.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator from New York

Watch Child's Weight; It's an Index to Health

IT is a sad commentary on our care of children that at least one-third of them are underweight and undernourished. No matter where we go, whether to Fifth avenue in New York or to the slums of the cities, we find the same percentage of undeveloped children.

I can endure the sufferings of grown people with a fair degree of calmness. But when I witness the discomfort and lack of normal growth of little children I am deeply stirred.

DR. COPELAND

The serious part of this kind of undernourishment is that its effects run on into adult life. Unfitness in grown-ups is frequently the result of malnutrition in infancy.

There are two chief causes for undernourishment. The first one relates to bad food habits. The other is the presence of some uncorrected physical defect.

Too many children have some obstruction in the breathing apparatus. In consequence, in infancy there is marked interference with nursing. Catarrhal conditions, adenoids or other definite cause for obstruction are among the factors having to do with lessened air supply.

There cannot be proper assimilation of food or development of body unless there is an unfailing supply of pure air. That is one reason why ventilation is so important. The room occupied by a baby must be freshened constantly by an abundance of fresh air. It is even more important for a growing youngster to have air than it is for grown-up persons.

Unless matters like this are given attention, it won't be long before there are symptoms pointing conclusively to serious undernourishment. The child becomes irritable. The slightest effort tires. There is no endurance whatever.

Other signs are dark rings around the eyes. Instead of that wonderful complexion we admire in a sweet baby there may be waxy pallor of the skin. The mouth is open and the breathing is difficult and noisy. The glands may be enlarged.

You should weigh the infant regularly. No household is quite complete in its equipment unless scales are provided. Without regular weighing there can be no accurate knowledge of what progress is being made. There must be steady increase in weight or there is something wrong.

If there is serious undernourishment and no growth whatever, the condition demands action. A blood test may reveal a condition which will explain the failure to grow. Your doctor will explain this to you.

The temperature may be disturbed. If it is, then more concern is warranted. But find out what is wrong so that appropriate treatment can be given.

Of course, the most common cause for underweight is something wrong about the food. There can be nothing haphazard in the feeding. It must be regular. It must consist of properly mixed foods. It must be varied with the age and condition of the child.

Everything else will fail if the cause of the undevelopment relates to the food. You should talk with your family doctor about this matter. He will examine the child and see where you have failed in your handling of the food.

There cannot be satisfactory growth in height and weight unless the baby is well nourished.

IT IS seldom one hears the detrimental and untrue gossip that goes around about one.

But I heard a choice bit about myself the other day!

I heard that someone had heard that someonse else had heard that I was seen pie-eyed!

Now I will confess that I am always pie-eyed where custard, apple and deep-dish are concerned. Only one of my faults is the fact that I never take a drink!

And this just goes to show how gossip can get started and end. It started by someone saying that they had heard I had been seen carrying a law book. So I must be studying for the bar. And it ended up by someone saying that they heard I had been seen hanging to a bar!

There you are!

No! I am not studying law! I was carrying the law book merely to prove to a girl friend of mine how such a book can keep one from being annoyed by flirty strangers when alone.

She had complained about a handsome stranger annoying her. She hadn't encouraged him one bit. But I told her the reading matter she had in hand was encouragement enough!

That brainy stuff scares guys like that away!

I have also found a tinfoil star pinned to my dress an excellent weapon to drive away these fresh birds who will sit next to a woman when a movie theater is full of empty seats!

Meditations of a Married Woman

By HELEN ROWLAND

ONE of the most striking phenomena of this restless age is its restless husbands.

Wives have always been restless. But now you hear, every day or so, of some man who is chafing at the bit, after trotting along comfortably in the matrimonial harness for ten, twenty or thirty years, and who is planning to junk the old side-partner for a brand new this year's model soulmate.

* * *

He has discovered that, after all, he and the woman who has been ladling out his spring tonic for two or three decades are not "truly mated;" and that his real spiritual affinity is some little thing, at least ten years his wife's junior, and often her inferior in brains and pulchritude.

HELEN ROWLAND

The truth is that he is yearning, not for the other woman, but for a brand new AUDIENCE! He is bored, not with his wife, but with the old routine. He is tired, not of monogamy, but of monotony.

He is longing for somebody who will admire him, flatter him and jolly him. Somebody who will pretend to enjoy listening to the things his wife got tired of listening to five or ten years ago.

* * *

He wants somebody to give him fresh compliments and spontaneous applause—somebody who will look at him from a new angle and discover new charms in him. A new cheer leader!

He is pining for somebody to whom he can "give ADVICE," and to whom the old platitudes and truisms will sound like brand new pearls of thought.

* * *

He is subconsciously yearning for someone to whom his old line will seem bright and new and original, and who will feel a new thrill at his glance, his touch and his kiss.

He wants somebody around, to whom he can play Santa Claus and Conquering Hero, and who will burble joyfully, instead of looking suspicious, when he brings her roses and bonbons, or admires her new hat.

* * *

He is looking for someone who will believe all his old alibis and have faith in all his old excuses—someone whom he can fool for a little while, anyway. Someone who will help him fool HIMSELF into thinking that he is noble and wise and strong and wonderful.

* * *

He longs to hear the ripple of spontaneous laughter at his old jokes, and of genuine applause when he tells his after dinner stories.

* * *

Oh, yes. It isn't his love of another woman that leads a man astray half so often as his love of novelty or adventure. It isn't his yearning for romance that makes him restless, it's his yearning for a CHANGE!

* * *

It isn't that the new woman is any more congenial, it's just that she's more impressionable. He fancies that what he needs is a brand new heart-interest to keep up the glow of life. But what he is really looking for is just a brand new AUDIENCE!

Horoscope

Friday, May 4

THE adverse positions of important planets, particularly the opposition of the Luminaries to each other, presages a difficult and anxious day generally. Those in the employment of others should be especially on guard against meriting criticism, censure or dismissal.

Those whose birthday it is may not experience a very progressive or satisfactory year, unless they manage their affairs with much discretion and calmness. Impulse and turbulence will not attain much and may result in lost property and position. Safeguard the employment.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be quarrelsome and impulsive, thereby endangering its best interests in life.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" By Adele Garrison

FROM Lillian's seat she could see the library door, so that it was several seconds after her first glimpse of Mr. Veritzen and Mary Harrison that they came through the front entrance door to the veranda. The great man's hand held Mary's elbow lightly, and indeed the child appeared in need of some guidance to her chair, for her face wore the dazed expression of one recovering from a blow or a swoon. There was no despair in her eyes, however, such as I had feared would be there if Mr. Veritzen had turned thumbs down upon her continuing her career. Nevertheless I was on nettles until he should go and we should have a chance to hear Mary's story. I knew Lillian was as anxious as I, and I guessed that she shared my longing to cut short Philip Veritzen's prolonged and flamboyant farewells to all of us by swiftly propelling him down the steps and to his waiting car.

But he finally bowed himself away, and waiting only until his machine had vanished around the bend in the road, we turned to Mary, who had sat silent, almost motionless from the time Mr. Veritzen had put her into her chair.

"Will he let you go on?" I asked.

"Honestly, I'm so flattened out that I don't know whether I'm on my head or my heels, as Granzie says," she began. "If you'll tell me that those are sure my own feet," she pointed to her pretty sports shoes—"maybe I'll realize where I am."

I saw Lillian's eyes narrow as she followed Mary's pointing finger and knew that she shared my thought. Dicky's young niece was sparring for time, saying the first nonsensical things which she could summon from her brain until she could pull herself together.

"They look very like your feet," Lillian assured her gravely. "Of course I could not take oath to the fact, but I think you may be reasonably sure that they are."

"Reasonably!" Mary echoed. "If I ever hear that word again I think I shall scream. For the last 15 minutes I think Mr. Veritzen has used it on an average of three times a second."

We made no comment upon her absurdity, and the next instant she dropped her exaggerated manner and spoke in ordinary tones.

"Please forgive me," she said. "I'll try to give you the low down on this thing straight. In the first place, he knew all about that masked dancer thing before I told him."

Lillian suddenly sat upright.

"Who spoke of it first, he or you?"

"I did," Mary answered. "In fact, I didn't give him time to say anything. I wanted to get the blame thing over with, and the minute I got into the room I said, 'Mr. Veritzen, I have a confession to make to you, and I want to do it quickly, while I have the courage!'"

"Then," Lillian said, and I saw that she was watching the girl intently, "I suppose that he said, 'I know all about it, Mary,' or words to that effect and didn't let you go into details."

"No," Mary replied slowly, "that wasn't the way he acted at all. If he hadn't told me afterward that he knew all about it, I should have thought he expected me to tell him something altogether different."

Over Mary's unconscious head Lillian flashed a swift, questioning glance at me.

"For instance, Mary?" she asked.

EVERYWHERE today you meet conflicting theories regarding the cause of tooth decay and gum infection. To get authoritative information on the matter, we asked 50,000 practicing dentists to give us their opinions as to this cause. Their answers definitely establish these points:

(1) Acids are the most frequent cause of tooth decay and infected gums.

(2) The most serious trouble occurs at the place where teeth and gums meet—known as The Danger Line.

(3) The best product known to neutralize acids in the mouth is Milk of Magnesia.

There could be no more convincing evidence as to what constitutes the safe correct mouth hygiene.

Use Squibb's Dental Cream regularly. It contains more than 50% of Squibb's Milk of Magnesia in the most convenient and effective form to neutralize the acids at The Danger Line. When you use it, tiny particles of Milk of Magnesia are forced into those pits and crevices that your toothbrush cannot reach.

Squibb's Dental Cream cleans beautifully. It relieves sensitive teeth and keeps the gums healthy. It is safe for all to use.

To care correctly for your teeth and gums, see your dentist regularly and use Squibb's Dental Cream. 40c for a large tube. E. R. Squibb & Sons, New York. Chemists to the Medical Profession since 1858.

CONSTIPATION CAUSES
NIGHTMARE DAYS

But the road to relief is simple

What a terrible thing it is to drag through the days! Dead-tired. Listless. With aching head and drooping shoulders — telltale symptoms of neglect! Yet, constipation is making life just such a round of despair for thousands of men and women. And leading to serious disease in the end.

What a pity they don't know that ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to give prompt relief—safe and easy prevention. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran—100% effective. Doctors recommend it. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

A delicious, healthful cereal—in place of habit-forming drugs. Serve with milk or cream, or with fruit or honey added. Use in cooking too. Sold at all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

"Ask Me Another?" Says Balieff, Mortician of Noah Webster, And Oracle of "Chauve Souris"

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

GEORGE SEIBEL

COMPLACENCY personified, Nikita Balieff couldn't be anything but a philosopher. When he is not elucidating the attractions of the "Chauve-Souris" for the audiences at the Alvin Theater this week, he is gathering materials for his great work on "Einstein and Elinor Glyn." He looks like Buddha and he talks like an oracle. Of course it is impossible to reproduce his sneezes without Cyrillian type.

"Where did you learn English—and how?" he was asked.

"I ees Armenian," he replied. "I tooken my first lessons during a massacre. Eenglish ees a langoowage not to be spik, but to be massacre."

He was born at Erzeroum, and is the only descendant of a family that descended from Mount Ararat, where the Ark landed. It was this maritime streak in his blood that led him to venture across the Atlantic for the discovery of Gotham.

"You are very clever at explaining things," he was told.

"Eet ees easy more much to explain than to oonderstan'," he answered. "What I no know, I explain him; den the odder man him no know neither—and him oonderstan' as clear like me."

A series of difficult questions was propounded:

"What will the Bolsheviki do with the Signs of the Zodiac?"

"Dey veel be abolish," he announced. "Leo ees Breetish and Taurus ees from Wall Strit—an' de rest has been find in bad company. So eet weel all be abolish de Zodiac."

"Is it true that you and your Wooden Soldiers were refused admission to the Peace Palace at the Hague?"

"Ve was no admit by de front door—but ve march een sideways on de bias. Ve carree a vhite fla-ag of truss—an' so ve are admit."

"What do you think of American politics?"

"Chemeestry ees one stoody I have dig in dip, and have discover great discoveree—dat oil an' ber no go mix."

"Are you a baseball fan?"

"No, I belong to ze Armenian orthodox church."

"What do you think of jazz, knee skirts, the Nicaraguan situation, dance marathons, the Ku Klux Klan and companionate marriage?"

"Yess—yess, as I said already—yes!"

"Do you think the Monongahela is as fine a river as the Volga?"

"Eet depend on de vetness or de dryness—eef de vetness of de dryness ees not dryer dan de dryness of de vetness—de one off de odder, or anyhow!"

"Is Gertrude Stein your favorite author?"

"I like mooch better her brother Fred Stone."

"Do you believe the Princess Anastasia is alive?"

"Eef she gif her worrd I vould belief her vord—eet ees oblige of a gentleman to belief a lady vhen she gif her vord how she is not killed or vas not haf bin shoot. How ees posseeble not to belief a lady vhen she gif her vord she haf be alife?"

Stanley Jubilee to Feature Howards

Willie and Eugene Howard, well known stage comedians, will feature the Jubilee Week celebration of the Stanley Company of America. They are booked to open in the Stanley Theater Monday. Willie Howard is a character comedian and his brother plays "straight." During their Pittsburgh appearance the Howards will sing a group of new songs and revive some of the old favorites.

HARMON MAY OPEN NEW SANDERS' SEASON

The management of Sanders, Aspinwall, is now booking feature recording orchestras for the summer season, which it will inaugurate soon. Maurice Schwartz and the entire Yiddish Art Theater Company will appear in the Gayety Theater on May 8 in "Americaner Chsidim," which just closed a successful run at their New York playhouse. This is a farewell tour for Maurice Schwartz on the Yiddish-speaking stage before his debut next season on the English-speaking stage.

"Girls From the Follies" is the burlesque booked for the Academy next week. In the cast are Fred Binder and Gladys Youth Clark.

Louella Lee, dancer, is featured in "Rah, Rah, Rah," to be presented in the Penn next week. The screen attraction is to be D. W. Griffith's "Drums of Love," with Mary Philbin in a featured role.

"Square Crooks," adapted from a stage play, will be on view in the Olympic as a Stanley Jubilee Week attraction, beginning Monday. Dorothy Dwan and Johnnie Mack Brown has the featured roles.

Priscilla Dean, taking a vacation from the movie studios for a tour in vaudeville, is to be the leading stage attraction in the Aldine, where she will make "a personal appearance." On the screen will be "The Golden Clown."

"The Private Life of Helen of Troy" is the Stanley Jubilee Week screen feature in the Stanley, opening Monday night. Maria Corda, famous Hungarian stage and screen actress, is making her American screen debut in this picture.

The Siamese Twins are to be the featured attraction in the Sheridan Square next week. They are the only native born girls, Mary and Margaret Gibs. They sing, dance and play piano. "Square Crooks" will be on the screen.

The cast of "We Americans," which opens in the Grand Monday, includes George Sidney and Patsy Ruth Miller.

THE GREATEST ADVENTURE STORY OF MODERN TIMES

Jungle War Quickly Won by the Trading Outfits

Horn Studies the Ways of Gorillas and Disperses a Family With a Shot

What Has Gone Before.

Trader Horn, writing at 73, recounts his adventures among the cannibals of Africa over half a century ago and tells how he met Nina T——, the white goddess to the Isorga and ascertained that she came of an aristocratic English family. He also discovers a beautiful ruby in the josh house during a ceremony in which he is made a member of a native secret society, the first and only white man to be so honored. He gives many exciting incidents in connection with trading for ivory and rubber and describes how a witch doctor, who claimed that he could not be shot, ordered his own execution. He goes through the blood-brother ceremony of the Fans.

Slaves Satisfied With Their Lot

CHAPTER XIX.

THE next few days of holiday were spent in picking out posts for a new station which was built about one mile below Carl Woormans down the river, as our present location was up stream and we had the canibals thickly settled close to us on the east and a troublesome tribe of Galwas on the north and west. It was a dangerous postion to be in.

ALFRED A. HORN

In fact the Galwas declared war on us, but these people were easily conquered. Mustering a force of cannibals, which I led and all the spare force of native employes we had, we rushed their town, which was quite a large one. The Mpangues advanced in two lines in extended order like Europeans, whilst a strong force of spearmen crept leisurely in the rear.

The firing, which took place as we neared the town, was systematically poured in volleys like drilled troops and continued for some time so as to give the spearmen a good rest at charging distance. The battle cry of Anjuna now rolled out and the town was in our hands in short order. There was very little loss on either side.

The chief was captured and sent to Gaboon, where he received a sentence of three years to Sennagal. This had quite a good effect on those troublesome natives. The loss on the Galwa side would have been heavy, but the cannibals had orders to wound and kill as few as possible.

Ways of Gorillas

Both Herr Schiffe and Sinclair were very pleased with this little battle which put an end to the small rows which were continually

MRS. GLADYS M'CULLOUGH

Mrs. Gladys McCullough, 24, 1236 Sheffield street, testifying in divorce action, admitted she had "tipped off" police that her husband, Irwin Ellsworth McCullough, "was bootlegging." Angered by his arrest, he deserted her for the third time, she said—so she sued for divorce, charging indignities. They formerly lived in Bellevernon and have two children.

PGH. AGENT RUN DOWN IN RUM RAID FIGHT

ERIE, Pa., May 3.—A rum runner was shot, eight were captured and a Pittsburgh prohibition agent was run down by an enemy auto in a pitched battle which ended with the government in possession of 300 cases of Canadian whisky near Walnut Creek early today.

The gun battle ensued when the runners, after loading the whisky from a ship upon four trucks, refused to heed the calls to surrender by the agents, who were working out of the Pittsburgh office.

Assistant Prohibition Administrator Joseph A. Prayne said the agent who was run down, but not seriously injured by the rum truck, was John D. Knight. Other reports identified him as W. T. Walker.

The alleged rum-runner, John Brodie, 28, was in Namot Hospital, a bullet in his back. One runner was said to have escaped.

MRS. CHARLES F. STEEDLE IS SUMMONED BY DEATH

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Kirch Steedle, 77, mother of Dr. Joseph E. Steedle, a member of the State Legislature, died this morning at her home, 1037 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks. Mrs. Steedle was a resident of McKees Rocks for the past 25 years. She was a member of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church and the L. C. B. A., Branch 103. She leaves her husband, Charles F. Steedle; her son, one daughter, Mrs. Mary Heiser; one sister, Mrs. Mary Gulentz; one brother, George Kirch, and one grandchild.

Miners' "Attack" March Is Walk To Funeral

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., May 3.—A gathering of miners at the Union Temple, Bellaire, reported to National Guardsmen here as a probable preparation for an attack by "Save the Union" adherents, proved only a group of miners making ready to march to a funeral.

ALE RUNNERS' DEPOT SEIZED

A storehouse for ale brought into the Pittsburgh district was seized last night, prohibition agents say, when they raided a warehouse in the rear of South Sixteenth street, near Muriel street. They reported almost 4,000 pint bottles of ale discovered on the first floor. Furniture was stored on two upper floors. Investigation was begun to determine the identity of the person operating the place.

A 100-gallon still, 30 gallons of moonshine and 30 barrels of mash were confiscated, agents reported, in a dwelling at 6498 Monitor street. Saverio Riatano, an occupant, was arrested. Saverio Raitano, 32, of 1622 Branchport street, was arrested in an automobile near the residence. Twenty gallons of moonshine were said to have been found in the machine.

In a raid at 652 Becks Run road agents arrested John Hanula, 45, and discovered, they state, a 15-gallon still, 17 pints of home brew and two gallons of moonshine. At Carnegie constables raided the homes of John Tudas of Lee street, Nazarine Talmont of Chartiers avenue, and John Meyers of Second avenue.

SIDE-WALKS OF PITTSBURGH

BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

NEWSPAPER TALK: Bad taste is on display among the reporters who covered the Gray-Snyder murder trial. They have formed a club known as the Sashweight Club and plan a dinner. It seems here there is nothing funny about the idea and if the boys listen to a lecture from the provinces they will disband. . . . In Washington, although the incident happened more than a year ago, they still tell about the intrepid young reporter and the frank and engaging Mrs. Nicholas Longworth (Alice Roosevelt). The news bureaus had heard whispers that Mrs. Longworth was expecting a blessed event. But how to verify such a story. The young reporter solved it. He got on the 'phone. "Mrs. Longworth," he said, "are you going to have a baby?" "Yes," said Mrs. Longworth, "in March." And so the story was sent out.*

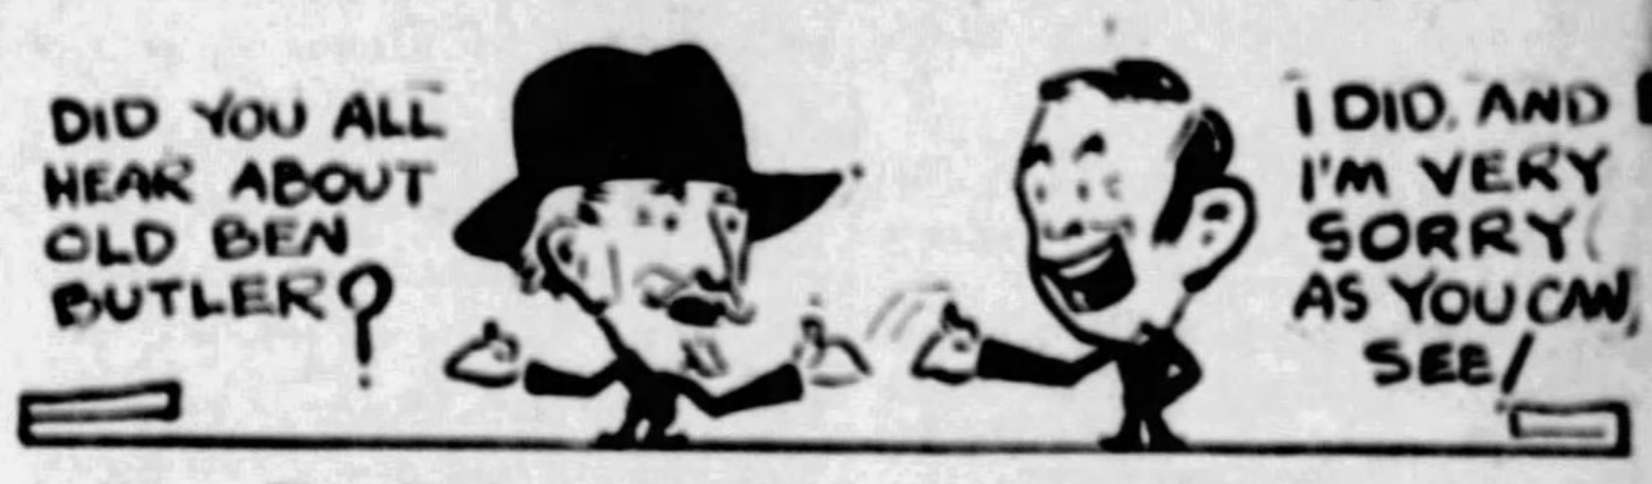
A VETERAN Pittsburgh newspaperman who in his youth worked in Chicago was assigned to handle the telegraphic opinions of other newspapers on the death of Gen. Ben Butler, a Northern hero, who was not considered such in the South. One opinion was so unique he put it in his scrap-book. House-cleaning time came the other day and he ran across the clipping, now yellow. The clipping is from the Nashville American. It said: "Old Ben Butler is dead. Early yesterday morning the angel of death, acting under the devil's orders, took him from earth and landed him in hell. In all this southern country there are no tears, no sighs and no regrets. He lived only too long. We are glad he at last has been removed from the earth, and even pity the devil the possession he has secured."



DID YOU ALL HEAR ABOUT OLD BEN BUTLER?
I DID, AND I'M VERY SORRY, AS YOU CAN SEE!

* * *

NICE boys in those old days. They believed in putting a punch in every line. . . . John McKirdy recalls the story of another day which concerned a riot caused when some boys put red-colored spectacles on a bull. . . . Jimmy McKay seeks to reorganize the Piano Movers' Association, a body of local reporters who cut capers when the town was as open as the great outdoors.

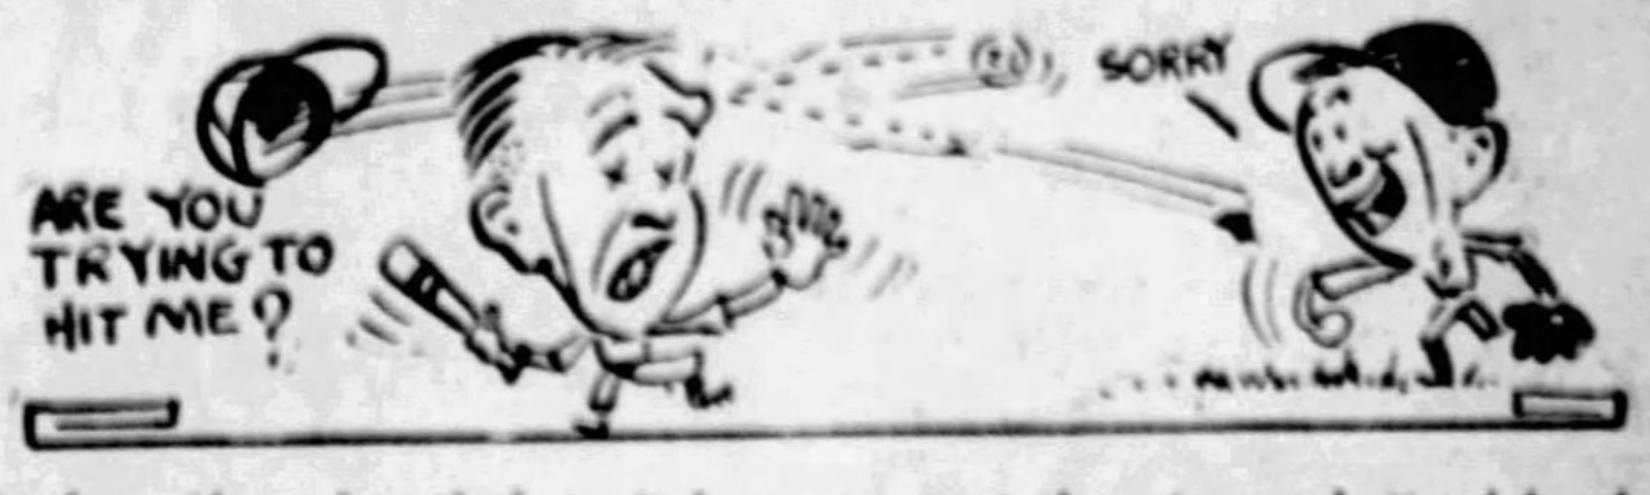
SMALL TOWN PERSONALS: Warren Brown, Jim Crusinberry, Harold Johnson, all of Chi, were recent visitors to our city. . . . Hazen Cuyler and Chas. Grimm were in our midst. . . . Cuyler is the boy who was in a baseball jam here last season and as a result got a one-way ticket to Chicago.

* * *

THERE is a local baseball controversy on concerning whether Pirate pitchers are dusting off Cuyler. That means, throwing at him to scare him so he can't hit properly. If Pirate pitchers are not throwing at Cuyler they are going against one of the oldest conventions of the game. Pirate pitchers throw at all dangerous hitters and, of course, enemy pitchers throw at the Waners, Traynor, Wright and other Pirates.



SORRY
ARE YOU TRYING TO HIT ME?

In fact, if we heard that pitchers were not throwing at batters' heads any more we would begin to doubt the honesty of the game. There was an armistice once, we believe, on the morning Ray Chapman, struck by a pitchd ball, was buried. But there was no game that morning. This cynical view is not our own. It is the ball players' viewpoint.

Pardon the digression.

MOVING and transfer companies are experiencing their busiest period of the year. The men who work on the big vans never get prizes, but they go through endurance contests worthy of note. They work 18 or 20 hours a day in the moving period and their work consists of juggling pianos and buffets that won't pass through narrow doorways. For some reason or other it always has seemed a job that we wouldn't care much about. The reason may be that there does not seem to be enough chance to exercise.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Turns to Sewickley Debuts as Prospective June Brides Fail to Pick Wedding Dates

HAVE you noticed how comparatively few June wedding dates have been announced so far? Usually at this time of year the calendar for the month is half filled, at least, and we are able to cross off a number of engagements that were announced during the winter. But for some reason or other the girls who are planning to be married in June are just a bit slow in making their arrangements known. Of course, even if June does "fall down" this year as a bridal month, we will still have our small list of Sewickley debuts, which makes up for it all.

It almost seems that May is getting ready to step into the place vacated by June in the way of weddings, and, as you probably know, there are several quite important ceremonies scheduled for this month. Some of these May weddings are quite large, but several of the girls whom we expected to have elaborate church weddings with big bridal parties have decided to make everything as informal as possible and have one, or no, attendants.

Martha Converse Gleffer, daughter of Mrs. Harry Wilson Gleffer, of the Negley apartments, who is going to marry John Murdoch Clarke, of Philadelphia, son of the Robert S. Clarkes, next Wednesday afternoon, is to have just one attendant, I understand. She will have her cousin, Mrs. Arthur B. Van Buskirk, for her matron of honor. Mr. Clarke's brother, Hugh M. Clarke, of Lancaster, is to be his best man and the list of ushers includes Dr. Marshall Fulton, of Boston; Gordon Hardwick, J. Tyson Stokes and Chester A. Osler, all of Philadelphia, and John Titzel and Arthur B. Van Buskirk, of Pittsburgh.

The ceremony is set for 5:30 o'clock and will be performed in the Church of the Ascension. The Van Buskirks are going to give the rehearsal dinner Tuesday night in the University Club.

This just slightly warmer weather is already luring local folks to the seashore, which is at its most attractive season in the spring. I hear that Mrs. Walter Leland Ingham, of Church lane, Edgeworth, and Marie Beggs McBride, daughter of the William McBrides, of Grant street, are leaving today to spend some time in Atlantic City. Marie was a debutante last winter, you will remember.

* * *

A small rectory wedding of yesterday morning was that of Janet Way Bowie, daughter of Frank M. Bowie, of Avendale place, and Walter Gerald Flood, of South Negley avenue. The ceremony was performed in the rectory of St. Paul's Cathedral by the Rev. Vincent Burke and only the two families were present. There was a breakfast in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association after the service, and later Mr. and Mrs. Flood left for a motor trip.

I hear that a local girl is planning to go abroad this summer to continue her study of the harp with a French teacher. She is Margaret Brill, daughter of the Alfred Polland Brills, of St. James place, and with her parents she will sail June 23 for Europe. She will be a pupil of Morcel Grandjany in Paris. Margaret's sister, Joan, and her brothers, Polland and Ruud, are sailing with them.

* * *

Another has been added to that quite lengthy list of benefits, this one to assist in the summer work of the Kingsley House Association. It is to be given, I understand, on Wednesday afternoon, May 23, in the home of Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, in Morewood avenue, under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary Board of the association, and if the weather will permit it, it is being planned to have the tables set out on the veranda. Mrs. Houston Hill is general chairman.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Dannals, Jr., of Crafton, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Nelson Dannals, and James A. Wright, of Carnegie.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. William Day Wilson, of Clarion, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Sara Wilson Koch, and Dr. Charles C. Stanton, of McClure avenue, North Side, which was solemnized Monday.

The marriage of Miss Doris Estelle Gibbons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd M. Gibbons, of Freedom, and Donald Miller Cook, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank N. Cook, of Rochester, was solemnized yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in the Arlington Avenue Evangelical Church by the Rev. Charles M. Faulk. The bride wore Lido blue crepe and lace with a picture hat to match and carried butterfly roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Gladys A. Gibbons was her sister's maid of honor and Robert C. Dixon, of Millvale, was best man. Mrs. Edward K. Doherr, of Dormont, sister of the bride, sang, accompanied by Mr. Doherr. Only the families were in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Cook will take an eastern motor trip and after June 1 will be at home in South Park, Rochester. Mr. Cook is a graduate of Pennsylvania State College and a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Braddock Council No. 911, Knights of Columbus, will hold its closing card party of the season in its home in Holland avenue Friday night, May 18. Frank Hughes is chairman.

Miss Charlotte MacGregor, of San Francisco, national inspector of the Zeta Tau Alpha fraternity, who is coming to Pittsburgh to visit Chi chapter at the University of Pittsburgh, will be guest of honor at a bridge tea to be given May 10 by the alumnae chapter in the chapter house in North Craig street.

* * *

The Highland Country Club will open the season with a dinner dance tonight. Dr James M. Mullen heads the committee in charge, which includes Mrs. Allan W. Cruikshank, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Gass, Mrs. John Hughes, Mr and Mrs. Greer C. Orr, Mrs. E. E. Zimmerman, H. H. Woods, Sr., Howard L. Keally, D. W. Boss, A. H. Bowman, Joseph H. Caughey, Arthur Evans and David A. Hendershaw.

TECH WOMEN CONCLUDE SEASON WITH LUNCHEON

A most delightful affair in every respect was the luncheon given yesterday by the Woman's Club of Carnegie Institute of Technology in the Faculty Club. Mrs. Charles D. Stanton, Mrs. E. M. Ashe, Mrs. L. J. Moore, Mrs. John C. Arrowsmith and Mrs. Samuel E. Dibble, the hostesses for the day, served the charmingly appointed luncheon which closed the club's season, for which covers were laid for about 80. The program, presented by the New Comers' group, was equally delightful. There were piano solos given with artistry by Mrs. Maurice Lee Carroll, Jr., contralto solos sung with nice expression and tone by Mrs. T. Douglas Mylrea, who, by the way, had charge of the program, violin solos by Mrs. Roscoe Smith, duets (contralto and soprano) by Mrs. Mylrea and Mrs. J. Vick O'Brien and readings of poems by Mrs. Howard W. Russell. Mrs. Mylrea's solo offerings were three German songs, one of which, "Wo?" had been translated into English by Mrs. Carroll's husband.

Mrs. Robert M. Leighou, the retiring president, presided at the short business meeting, during which the club voted to contribute $150 from the proceeds of its recent bridge benefit to the Carnegie Endowment Fund for the student activity building. Mrs. J. C. Morehead announced the committees appointed by the incoming president, Mrs. Harold L. Lang, and announcement was also made of the club's outing, to be held at Riverview Park, June 27.

Dr. M. C. Elmer, head of the sociology department, the University of Pittsburgh, will speak on "Women in Business" before the year's last conference of the Women's Council on Efficient Living, to be held in Heinz House at 11:30 tomorrow.

* * *

Mrs. Henry H. Hanna is to be hostess for Monday's meeting of the Tourists' Club at her home in Brownsville road. Election of officers will be followed by the program.

The thirty-second annual Pennsylvania meeting of the National Society United States Daughters of 1812 will be held Wednesday and Thursday of next week in the Hotel Schenley with the Dolly Madison Chapter as the hostess group. The opening session will be at 1 o'clock Wednesday, Miss A. Marian Cowen, regent of the hostess chapter, welcoming the guests and Mrs. Reinoehl Kulpe, state president, responding. Dr. John W. Oliver, of the University of Pittsburgh, will be the speaker that afternoon and will have as his subject, "The Search for Local History." There will be greetings from the honorary state presidents and reports of state officers. An informal reception will be held Wednesday night and the following morning standing committees and chapter regents will make their reports, this to be followed by luncheon, a program of entertainment and election of second and fourth vice presidents and a registrar.

Installation of the new officers will take place tonight at the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Delegates will be elected to the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs to be held in Williamsport May 18 and 19.

The next meeting of the Woman's Club of Library, which is scheduled for Tuesday, will be held in the Congress of Clubs with Mrs. Elmer S. McIlvaine as hostess. The study subject for the afternoon is "Early American and Modern Poets."

* * *

The evening department of the Woman's Club of Aspinwall, the first and almost the only evening department in the State Federation, has elected its new officers. They are as follows: Chairman, Mrs. A. B. Corbin (re-elected); vice chairman, Miss Sara Tesh; recording secretary, Miss Jennie McMorran; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ray McKean.

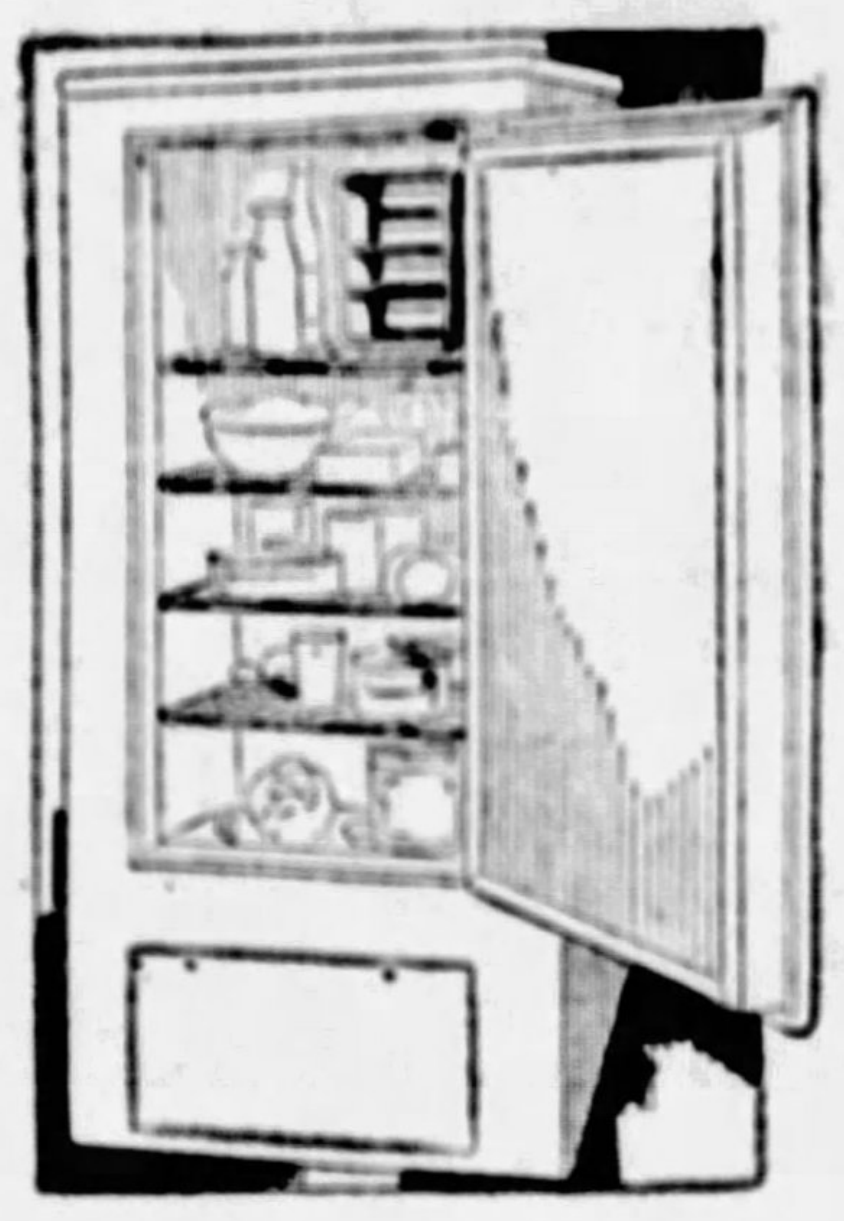
GAS— YOUR ALL WEATHER SERVANT

Gas is more than a cold weather servant. It's there for you to use every day of every season. Now it not only cooks your food but keeps it cold—preserves it—through the use of the gas refrigerator. And characteristically it does this job better and at less cost than any other way —it's cheaper than ice itself.

You can take a year to pay for a Gas Refrigerator.

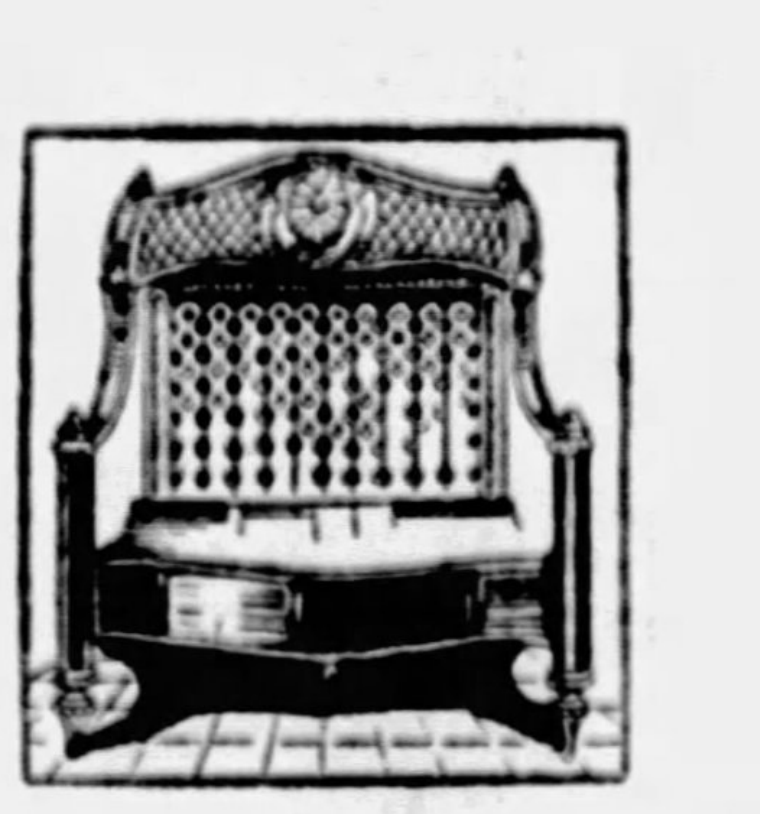
Prices from $225 upward, including installation.



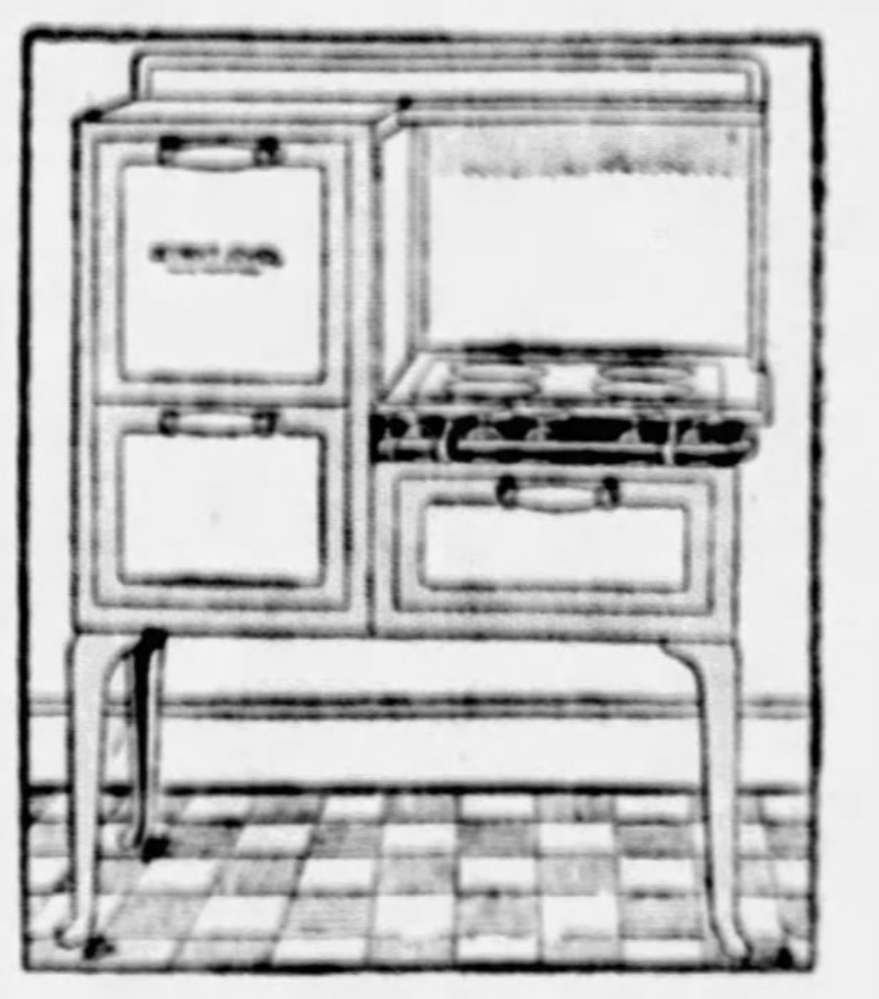
Hot water is a necessity in the American home—we must use it many times every day for a score of needs. And the one way to have an unfailing, constant supply is with an automatic hot water storage system.

It is the economical way, too. The thermostatic control sees that only enough gas is used to keep the water hot. Once hot, the water stays hot with but little gas since the insulated tank retains the heat.

You can get a dependable Automatic Water Heater, approved by the American Gas Association Laboratories, from $75.00 up, including installation. And you have 12 months to pay.



Some cool mornings and chilly evenings still are on the calendar—times when a little heat will be mighty welcome. If you have a Radiantfire or two, you'll save the trouble of firing up the furnace. Genuine Humphrey Radiantfires are inexpensive—from $15 up. You have six months to pay.



Springtime is new range time. Time to trade in that old range on a beautiful new enamel one. But looks are not all. Cooking and baking qualities count most. You'll find them unsurpassed in the Detroit Jewel. There's a model to suit your needs from $43.95 upwards. Year to pay.

Sanitation demands this new, quick, clean way for the disposal of garbage and rubbish. An incinerator in the cellar is inexpensive health insurance for your entire family. Incinerators are also sold on the convenient long time payment plan.

TRADER HORN--OUTFIT QUICKLY WINS JUNGLE WAR

occurring and were often accompanied by fatalities. The precincts of the trading stations were afterwards sacred and no fighting was allowed there. Whilst engaged in picking out trees for the new station my hunting boys came in with the news that they had sighted gorillas about three miles inland in a valley near a small creek.

It was about noon when we came up with them and as their hearing and sight is keen it is necessary to use great caution if you want to get near them. Being still a youngster it was my custom to watch the natural antics of animals, and as gorillas were easy to be had I often went to watch them.

We had a splendid view of this bunch. There were five, one mammy with a big youngster, two medium sized and one big one with an odd looking face, his eyes were more sunken and he had large bushy eyebrows. They were drinking from the water vines. One would climb up the vine, which was a large one, whilst the mammy stayed below and the youngster watched progress from 50 feet away.

The vine they swung on was about 25 feet from the ground, but held tight. They wanted either to pull a long length of it down or had some other object in view. Presently it gave a little and down came the lot.

All but One Escape

All lighted without mishap and after a few moments in which the young ones executed a few turns they mounted the vine again. The smaller ones first, then the mammy had a go nearer the ground where they swung and tugged a while; now the old man gave a grunt and jumping clear of the ground grabbed mammy round the waist. Mammy was fast held with the hands and feet and the old man swung around and now and then would give a high jink up and down.

The old girl must have been strongly built round the waist to stand this stunt. Eventually down came the vine. Instead of drinking at once they all, baby as well, began to pick something like a large wood lice from the fallen water carrier. Mammy was the first to break a hole in the vine which baby began to drink or suck from, she then burst another hole which must have been rather large as the water drenched her like a hose; she jumped back and shook her head when one of my boys laughed and spoiled the game.

As quick as lightning the youngster jumped on mammy's chest and off went the gang all but daddy, whom I had covered. He was quite a big fellow and I buried him in an ant-heap. He was a fine specimen, not so tall as some I have shot, but he made up for it in chest measurement. The ants soon consume the flesh and leave a clean skeleton in short order.

Fatal Curiosity

On our way back we surprised a group of black monkeys, but they scampered off into the dark forest so quickly that all got safely away. These monkeys grow to a good size and their skins fetch a good price on the London market. The natives get them by still hunting and kill them with poisoned arrows.

After being shot at they will scamper away quickly, always choosing the darkest shades and as they are jet black they are hard to shoot. They are curious, and after one is killed by a poisoned arrow they will break away, but will soon return to see what has taken place. In this manner I have known a lucky native to get more than a dozen in three or four hours.

I returned to the station and the next morning before sun up I was off for the head waters of this big river, the Angani, which lies about southeast from the Anjuni. My orders were to make a navigation chart of this important river and even if possible to continue above Samba Falls to Ashira, as down this river came yearly large supplies of rubber, ebony and a little ivory. I slept on a sandbank near Njuki's town, a very powerful chief who claimed to own the river as far as Samba Falls.

All traders call at Njuki's place and as he was powerful and kept peace in the river as far as he held sway he was considered a man it was necessary to keep on good terms with. I made very many trips up the Anjuni and very seldom had any trouble and could always settle bother that occurred between our traders (who were many) without bloodshed.

Parrots and Hippos

At Njuki's town in front of the chief's house was a large spreading tree and this tree had been the home of beautiful parrots who made the air pleasing with their wild notes as they came to and fro. These parrots were never molested and were looked upon as sacred.

The nights, which were mostly spent on the sandbanks, were deliciously cool and the river breeze chased away the flying pests such as midges, mosquitoes, etc. The harmless hippos could often be seen feeding on the banks and showed up plainly by a phosphorescent glow around the jaws as they chewed their food, whilst often the elephants made you aware of their presence by their low trumpetings and breaking off of branches.

Many crossed in the night and it was not difficult to shoot elephants at their crossings, which were numerous between Njuki's town and Samba Falls.

The river had been used by slave traders time out of mind by the White Encomi of the coast, who exchanged their home-made salt and salt fish for slaves. The sandbanks were the home in the dry season of all kinds of aquatic birds. These were well fed on the various kinds of fish which came from the far ocean to spawn yearly. The Okelleys inhabited both sides of the river and were paid tribute by both traders and slavers, but the amount paid was what the traders wished to give.

The next river of note is the Rembakoi (called rembald or long river). This river rises or runs far away through Ngilla, the capital of the Okelleys. The chief trade occupation of the people inhabiting the Angani is rubber cutting, which is considerable. About one-half of the rubber that finds it way to the trading stations of the Ogowe comes from the Angani and its tributaries.

The dawn is called by the natives Injuma or the gorillas awakening, as the noise they make, commencing with a scream, ends with a tremendous roar which can be heard afar and is followed by a beating of the broad chest of the male and sounds not unlike a drum.

Some of the natives I have heard imitate the gorilla to perfection and likewise his finishing grunts, which they say are his language.

Happy Slaves

After leaving the old Chief's town we passed many villages which were all situated on the west bank of the river whilst animals of various kinds held sway and roamed at will in the forests of the east bank, which was a hunter's paradise, as the forest trees were tall and allowed an easy passage below their wide-spreading tops and afforded a welcome shade to the traveler or hunter.

We passed several large canoes with their cargoes of slaves bound for the coast. Contrary to what you might expect, they were a happy lot, boys and girls mixed with elderly Negroes and their families all seemed happy, as they knew that they were bound for the coast, where they would be able to eat salt, saltfish, etc.

In fact, I have talked with many old slaves who had dwelt on the coast for years and I never heard any who were not contented with their new homes and masters. Count Debrazza sent word up the rivers and down the rivers for native slaves to go up country and live happily and in perfect freedom in his new town of Brazzaville.

But after waiting a while and advertising this amongst the natives the amount of slaves who joined him were very few, in fact not a canoe load, which I thought was very discouraging. In fact, as I already have said they preferred to stay with their masters rather than endure the hardships they had gone through in their inland countries, which are practically saltless.

JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait · by Elenore MEHERIN

Jerry and Stephanie Discuss the Different Ways of Making Love

TWENTY times that next Sunday morning—that dramatic Sunday of her homecoming, Jerry sketched and re-sketched the scene, the words, the interviews. Stephanie wept.

"We would have been in time, Jerry, if we'd only gone down there instead of going to Del Monte. Oh, how he would have rejoiced! I told you, didn't I? And he had an oil painting made of me? How vastly exciting! How terrible he died defeated!"

And for a long while they looked at each other with misty, blinking eyes. For a long while they whispered in bewildered happiness: "How strange! How heavenly!"

Marza was pitifully affected; mute with the intensity of her feelings. Brought back to that flaming past. At times her emotion was only prayerful as though a fearful crisis were passed, a long-dreaded danger vanished.

Days before the unlooked-for episode was accepted as a fact and the reality of it became commonplace.

"They will sell the house, Jerry."

"If you wish."

"I should love to see it. But I'll tell them to sell. You're sure I can have that money in a lump sum?"

"That's what he said. I can't believe you're so mercenary."

"How much may they get for it?" Stephanie went on, blithely indifferent to Jerry's criticism.

"Lloyd O'Connor said they should get $17,500 for it, but they must hold property in Los Angeles at an exaggerated price. Here you'd be lucky to get $15,000 in the best times."

"Seventeen five! I'll pray for that then since it's no more than just! And clear the mortgage and take an independent breath—thanks to grand old Stephen, once again!"

In the middle of the week came a letter from Lloyd O'Connor.

CHAPTER LXVIII.

O'CONNOR'S message came Thursday. It was addressed to Stephanie. The case was settled; the proceeds from the trust fund would henceforth be at her disposal. Three hundred a month. A check for this amount was enclosed.

Folded with the check was a yellow paper to which O'Connor made a note: "I though you would want to keep this."

It was the original statement written in long hand by Stephen Marsh declaring that he was the father of a girl baby born July 31, 1906, to Marza —— in the city of New York. "That Marza and I, Stephen Marsh, had lived as husband and wife for one year and a half prior to the child's birth; that during this year and a half G——, legal mate of my child's mother, was continuously absent in Russia, and we, Marza —— and I, shared a secret home and otherwise lived as a married couple.

"That it was our intention and most passionate wish to legalize our union. The return of the husband when our child was eight months old ended our hopes. Four years and four months have passed since our enforced separation.

"I herewith declare that I have formed no subsequent ties and that the little girl, Stephanie Marsh, above mentioned, is my first born and only child and the heir in so far as I can make her such of all that I now or may, at any later date, possess."

The statement went into details and ended with a poignant and affecting tribute to Marza, and a prayer for the return of "such joy as makes mere mortal peer of God."

Stephanie put the statement with other treasures in the carved ivory box that had belonged to Marza.

She closed it with a pang. "Men have forgotten such ways of love as Stephen knew, Jerry. Fancy a man of 28 writing like that to you or to me! We of today have lost many things, haven't we? Do you think our gains are sufficient compensation?"

Jerry, slumped deep in the old fire-side chair and now dreamily watching the flames, stole a look in her sister's face.

They were alone this stormy November evening. They had pushed a table to the fire and made their dinner of canned raviolas and coffee. The dishes were carried to the sink and soaking.

So they would now sit here in luxurious intimacy—talking, reading, confessing.

It was Stephanie's habit to precipitate these burning discussions with some blithe demand for the wild times to begin, or with some cautious inquiry into the ways of men and maids when in love.

But tonight, lying there on the couch, the merry, gallant eyes regarded Jerry somberly.

"I think you're right, Jerry—we couldn't have chosen a harder time to be born than this in-between epoch. The romance of yesterday is gone; it was beautiful. The honesty of tomorrow is not yet achieved. It, too, will be lovely. But what for us who are caught at the end of one era and before the commencement of the next?"

"Temple shattering, ole dear. We're the generation of wreckers—an unlovely but necessary crew. We're smashing up the old, musty temples. We're doing it noisily and without much reverence for the beauty they once enshrined. We're knocking down old idols, jumping on them, kicking them in the face to show our disdain.

"We're unpleasant from start to finish, but we're clearing the ground for new social structures such as the partnership marriage.

"Yesterday we had the chattel marriage, with the wife doing 80 per cent of the work, bearing the children and running a home that was a small sized factory.

"Today we have the parasite relation, with the girl taking all and giving nothing, the apartment house liaison, which the quaint courtesy of the day calls a marriage.

"Tomorrow we'll really achieve the fifty-fifty arrangement."

"And," interrupted Stephanie, on fire with her own problems and in no mood for this heavy talk, "do you mean to say that all this petting and ginning and promiscuous kissing and mauling is the way to bring about the vast reform?"

Jerry's eyes widened suspiciously. So Stephanie wasn't liking her initial taste of the long coveted wildness?

In the last two weeks she had been for the first time to a dinner at Tait's. She had attended the theater; she had been driving three evenings with various young men and once she had gone with Marza and a party to watch the dancing at Shorty Roberts.

"Why pick on the petting?" asked Jerry deliberately stupid. "We were discussing the whole difference between yesterday and tomorrow. Petting is merely a temporary excess—a way of showing our contempt for the repression of our mothers. Like the man who is newly turned atheist and who must go about shouting against God. Silly, isn't he? Why shout against a being who doesn't exist?"

"We were talking," said Stephanie, going on with her own thoughts, "about the way a man loved in Stephen's time and the way they love today. I don't believe there is any genuine emotion today. And I think all this petting is responsible. We're the counterfeit generation—the make believe crowd!

"Jerry, does a man always kiss a girl when he takes her out?"

"He always tries to."

"What exactly is meant by petting?"

"Depends on the petter and the petted. Use your own imagination, ole dear. Petting as done by some means all the red, riotous things you blush to think about."

"I mean as done by a person supposed to be decent, such as YOU?"

Jerry grinned. "Well, if I were you, Steve, I'd confine it to a few kisses. A kiss is a delightful thing when properly executed. And a girl—even the monogamous type to which unfortunately you and I belong—should have a few as a basis for later comparison when she is restricted to the ONE."

"Did you enjoy being kissed by everyone?"

"There are a few of the gallant young blades in San Francisco whose osculatory gifts are unknown to me. So I can't give a truthful answer."

"Well, I'd rather be Sylvia than mauled by every man I meet! Life's not half as exciting as I expected. If that's being wild, then being wild is just about the tamest and most boring and time wasting attraction that could possibly be thought of.

"Why do girls go in for it?"

"You mean girls who are not natively of the crimson tint? Well, they go in for it because they're conceited. They think it's their terrific appeal that arouses men. They think they're irresistible, and that it's proof of their knockout charms when the man seeks to pet them. Each girl thinks she's the little vamp that gets attention that another wants but can't achieve.

"The man thinks it a great personal victory to make a girl—his pride in his Casanova-like technique blinds him to the fact that any man can win.

"The girl's conceit in her Helen-like appeal fools her into thinking she has some unique attraction. But she hasn't!"

"Well, is there any graceful way without being snooty to evade?"

Careless Washing Spoils the Hair

If you want beautiful hair, ordinary old-time methods of washing will not do. To bring out the real beauty, the hair must be shampooed properly.

Proper shampooing is what makes it soft and silky. It brings out all the real life and lustre, all the natural wave and color, and leaves it fresh looking, glossy and bright.

While your hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why discriminating women, everywhere, now use Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo. This clear, pure and entirely greaseless product brings out all the real beauty of the hair and cannot possibly injure.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather which cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

It leaves the hair soft, silky and easy to manage and makes it fairly sparkle with new life, gloss and lustre.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store.

A four-ounce bottle lasts for months.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Dawson Forces His Own Hard Luck to Change By Fine Pitching and Hit That Opens Way for Victory—Mack Rates Waddell Speediest Pitcher—Trend of Buc Batting Averages Mainly Upward.

NEW evidence that Ralph (Joe) Dawson, Pittsburgh's aviator, has routed the hoodoo that stuck so persistently on his trail last year, can be seen in the outcome of yesterday's game, in which the Pirates made a clean sweep of the three-game series with the Cubs.

Joe Dawson.

In a similar situation last year, Dawson probably would have suffered defeat through a bad hop or some other adverse break giving the enemy the winning run after the score had been tied, but yesterday Joe was master of the situation from the time he stepped upon the mound to relieve Miljus in the sixth inning.

DAWSON put a stop to the hitting of the Cubs, held them runless four consecutive innings, gave them but two hits, and finally opened the way for the triumph of the home team in the tenth reel by smashing a three-bagger to center.

That drive developed into the winning run, as after Brickell had been put in to run for Dawson and Harris had been passed, Adams brought Brickell home and ended the game with a sacrifice fly to Cuyler. So, all in all, it must be conceded that Dawson had a thing or two with winning that game for Pittsburgh, and by reason of his fine pitching and his valuable triple he must be given credit for changing his luck. It wasn't luck that won for Dawson yesterday. It was merit.

THE winning of yesterday's game, Pittsburgh's sixth victory in the last eight contests, meant quite a bit to the Buccaneers. For one thing, it marked the first time this year that the Bushmen have won three straight games; for another thing it put them at the .500 mark with eight victories to balance eight defeats, and for still another thing it enabled them to pass the Cardinals and land in the first division as the holders of fourth place. The Forbes Field athletes have not been in the first division nor as high as the .500 mark at any previous time this season. The jump to fourth place was made possible by the fact that the Reds extended a helping hand and beat the Cardinals three times in succession.

Bob Grove.

THE Redbirds have now lost four games straight and are not nearly so cocky as they were a week or so back. They are learning, among other things, that no club can hope to stay up in the race with only one catcher of major league caliber, and with none of that type to replace Bob O'Farrell when he is injured.

SPARKY ADAMS had an off day in the field yesterday and was charged with three errors, but he made up for it all by knocking in the winning run for the Pirates in their first extra-inning game of the year.

That was the second time in the series that the little second sacker pounded home the run that beat his former mates, as on Monday it was Adams' single to center in the eighth frame that scored Miljus with the tally that defeated the Bruins, 8 to 7.

The Bruins have lost more games than any club in the league, being charged with 12 defeats, though this is due partly to the fact that they have played more games than any other team in the Heydler loop. Singularly enough, Chicago's American League club also has lost 12 games, but does not lead the Barnhard girdle, as Detroit has dropped 13 games. The longest losing streak of the year in the majors was broken yesterday when Washington beat the Yankees after eight defeats in a row.

IT ISN'T the strength of a pitcher's arm, but its balance, that enables him to throw a ball at terrific speed, according to Connie Mack.

When Bob Grove of the Athletics was asked to what he attributed his great speed he replied: "Oh, I just throw that way." Grove's pitching arm is by no means overly muscular or powerful looking, so Austen Lake carried the question to Mack.

Wilbur Cooper.

"WE ALL know that balance is in a bat or a golf club," Connie explained. "Well, the same thing applies to a man's arm. The comparative length of bones and tendons in the upper and lower arms give a man more or less advantage in pitching. Johnson had this wonderful balance and so did old Rube Waddell.

"It isn't the strong, massive type of arms that make the best pitchers. A heavily-built man might not be able to throw across the diamond, while a light, wiry youth might be able to knock the glove off his catcher. Nature gives a boy an arm and he merely acquires skill in its use . . . but it is what nature has done for him that determines whether he will be a great pitcher or none at all. . . . They're born more than made."

"Can Grove pitch a ball faster than Waddell used to?" was asked.

"Well—I don't think that any man ever lived that could throw a ball as fast as the Rube. No—I wouldn't say. And Waddell had a wonderful curve."

JOE GOLDMAN, who follows baseball as closely as he follows basketball, writes to suggest that Wilbur Cooper might look well in a Pirate uniform at present.

Cooper has been pitching great ball for the Oakland club in the Pacific Coast League this spring. Recently he lost a tough duel with Elmer Jacobs, another former Pirate, now with San Francisco, by a score of 1 to 0.

Wilbur really outpitched Jacobs, allowing only five hits, two of which were infield taps by Babe Pinelli, but in the seventh inning, Hollis Thurston, former American League pitcher, was sent in as a pinch-hitter for Solly Mishkin and cracked a double to center, scoring the only run of the day. Jacobs, by the way, had 35 straight runless innings to his credit and was still going at last reports.

AS FAR as the results of the games played between the clubs thus far are concerned, Pittsburgh has borne out the winter dope and holds the edge over Chicago in the Cuyler-Adams-Scott trade.

For of the seven games played today between the Pirates

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

A GALLANT climb has brought the Pirates up to the 50-50 horizon in the baseball sky and the league champions, only three games removed from first place, today are making plans to climb to heights more fitting to a team of their reputation.

The Slattery-Hornsby Braves arrived in town this morning and they expect to stage four running fights with the Freebooters ere they depart next Monday night. Despite sickness and injuries that would discourage many a club, the new Boston entry has played good ball regardless of their lowly position in the standings.

It is likely that Manager Jack Slattery will call on the clever Kent Greenfield to face the Buccos in their first clash with the Pirates. Remy Kremer will do the twirling for the home team.

The noteworthy fight of the Buccaneers had a happy climax in the tenth inning of yesterday's contest when Fred Brickell, running for Pitcher Joe Dawson, scored the winning run in a spectacular fight with the Cubs. The score was 9 to 8.

SWEEP CUB SERIES

The victorious finish of the third game of the feverish series with the Cubs meant that the Oaklanders made a clean sweep over their natural rivals. Each of the three clashes had many exciting incidents, but the farewell scrap was loaded with the kind of thrills that the baseball fans love.

It was noticeable that none of the four pitchers taking part in the delightful ball game threw any "dust-off" pitches. On the previous day this practice marred the sport, but the flurry came to a head quickly and then subsided just as suddenly.

Loose play on the part of Sparky Adams gave comfort to Sparky's former mates, but the same little fellow who has such a miserable day in the field came up to spank over the winning run in the tenth.

TOPOGRAPHY OF COURSE

NEW COURSE

Emil Loeffler was the architect who designed the golf course of the new Wildwood Country Club, near Allison Park, which was formally opened today. The layout will be ready for play Memorial Day. It is of a rugged nature and calculated to provide a real test of skill. The clubhouse (above) is as beautiful inside as it is artistic from the outside.

MEN WHO WILL GIVE MEMBERS SERVICE

One of the finest golf instructors and players in the district is Nelson Zimmerman, the new club's pro. Nelson formerly was with the Westmoreland Country Club. He has been busy on his new job for some time.

Wildwood's greenkeeper, Ernest Loeffler, is a brother of Emil (Dutch) Loeffler, architect and builder of the layout. He is working hard to help bring about an early opening of the course.

The club's smiling manager, Adolph T. Stormanns, is not new to this district. He formerly was affiliated with the Country Club of Allegheny County. His varied career has found him steward and manager at some of the best clubs and hotels in Europe and America.

Stoneham Methods Scored

NEW YORK, May 3.—In a formal statement, in which he accused President C. A. Stoneham of the National Exhibition Company, which operates the New York Giants, "of handling the funds of the New York baseball club as though they were his own," Judge Francis X. McQuade, ousted treasurer of the corporation, stated that he will carry the matter of his removal to the courts, and expose the methods of Stoneham.

START SECRET RING PROBE

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP.)—Despite the assertion of a member of the State Athletic Commission that that organization had canvassed the Sharkey-Delaney fight of Monday night "from every angle" and were convinced "the bout was above reproach" it has became known that a rigid, secret inquiry is under way.

Chairman John A. Farley has refused to comment on the steps reported to have been taken and there was equal relutance on the part of other officials. Those close to the commission, however, said if the finding were that there was something shady in the sensational one-round defeat of the once formidable Delaney, definite action would be taken.

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP.)—Here are a few of the outstanding "naturals" in prospects as the outdoor competitive whirl gathers headway:

Lee Barnes and Sabin Carr in the pole vault competition at the intercollegiate in Cambridge late this month.

Helen Wills and Betty Nuthall in women's tennis competition, in France or England.

Charley Paddock and Charley Borah, the Southern California rivals, in the Olympic sprint tryouts.

NEW WILDWOOD COURSE OPENS

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER

Possibly there will be no bells to ring out the glad tidings, nor no national radio hook-up to spread the news throughout the land, yet at the Wildwood Country Club today there will be much jumping up and down or some such expression of joy and jubilation—for today, friends, the realization of Western Pennsylvania's newest club will be marked with a formal opening.

One of the fastest of all club developments in this district is to be found in Wildwood, and indications at this time are that it will be one of the most esteemed of any club in the section once it gets going and gains a place among its neighbors.

HONOLULU, May 3.—(AP.)—Clarence Crabbe, national mile swimming champion, has announced that he will enter Yale University next fall.

Irish Netters Defeat Pitt

By JESS CARVER.

PROVIDED the boys get a half way decent break of weather, and by the same token, a fairly dry track and turf, it is not at all unlikely that some meet and possible district records will be shattered at the annual Carnegie Tech track and field championships here Saturday.

The entry list, comprising close to 1,000 high school athletes from three states, is a fine one, spotted with a host of individual stars of the first magnitude. Besides the cream of the tri-state district, athletes from Ohio, Eastern Pennsylvania and West Virginia will be on hand.

The green and gold ribboned squad from Cenral High of Columbus, defending champions, will be on hand and will make a mighty bid to retain its laurels. Last year the Columbus team had a fairly easy time in trekking off with the championship cup, and boasted a well rounded team.

One record that will be heavily assaulted will be the pole vault mark. Among the most likely winners of this event will be young Bobby Pusch of Beaver High School, who is a consistent 12-foot man, and certain to vault that high on Saturday. He will have the celebrated Allen of Salem, O., High to compete against.

The meet is an all-day affair, with preliminary and trial heats scheduled for the morning and the finals booked for the afternoon.

PITT NETTERS LOSE

Notre Dame's varsity tennis team completed its two-day stay in this city with a victory over Pitt. The Irish downed the Panthers, 3 to 2, winning both doubles matches and one singles engagement, while the Panthers were able to count twice in the singles.

The surprise of the meet came in the opening singles match when Markey of Notre Dame defeated Capt. Byron Baur of Pitt, Western Pennsylvania singles champion and one of the strongest players in the tri-state district. Markey won his match 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

Dick Cable defeated Griffin of Notre Dame, 6-2, 7-9, 7-5, and Johnny Lauler downed Rucklehouse of Notre Dame in straight sets, 6-1, 6-3, for the other Pitt triumph.

In the doubles John O'Laughlin and Lawler were beaten by Griffin and Markey, 7-5, 6-2, and Capt. Baur and Haddon lost to Burns and Rucklehouse, 6-2, 9-7.

Notre Dame opened the Pittsburgh invasion with a 6-0 win over Duquesne.

BOHREN AT BELLEFONTE

Karl (Jakie) Bohren, former all-America halfback at Pitt during the golden regime of Pop Warner, has been named varsity football coach at Bellefonte Academy and will return to the institution that gave him his athletic start in that capacity this fall. Jakie and Jimmy Hughes, generalissimo of all this athletic and otherwise at Bellefonte come to terms yesterday.

Jakie played on the Pitt varsity teams of 1921, '22 and '23 and was graduated from the college in 1924. During his final year as a varsity player, he won for himself a place on Walter Camp's all-America team as a halfback.

Bohren coached at St. Vincent's College after leaving Pitt, but has been out of coaching since 1926. He was dickering with St. Bonaventure College when signed by Bellefonte.

and Cubs, the Bushmen have won five, and at that one of the two games won by the Bruins was protested to National League headquarters.

Adams batted safely in every one of the seven games, and knocked in the winning run in two of Pittsburgh's five victories. Cuyler went hitless in four of the seven.

Sparky Adams.

LLOYD WANER is out of the .300 class by the well-known eyelash as a result of his failure to make a hit yesterday. Today his average is .299. Comorosky also slipped out of the select circle, but Wright broke into it with a mark of .313, Grantham boosted his figures to .463, Adams went up to .317, and Traynor and Paul Waner also helped their marks. Batting averages do not mean a great deal at this early stage of the proceedings, but it's rather comforting to observe that the Bucs are traveling in the right direction and that averages are rising practically all along the line.

JUNIOR RIVALS CLASH TODAY

A quartet of interesting appearing Junior League contests are listed on the day's scholastic baseball program, two being carded for each section of the city loop.

In section One, Gladstone and Ralston will clash on the Ralston diamond. Arsenal and Taylor Allderdice will meet on the Arsenal nine's in a second first setional fray.

Two old rivals, Latimer and Oliver, will stage a Section Two setto of importance on Oliver's diamond on Brighton Road. Knoxville and Carrick have a battle in store when they meet on the Carrick grounds.

LETTERS AT SUN-TELE

Letters await James (Red) Mason, Dick Guy and the manager of Garfield Johnson at this office.

Grimm Worried; Ranked With Swat Leaders

To be among the five leading hitters of the National League is fame to some baseball players but to Capt. Charley Grimm of the Cubs it means a jinx.

When informed yesterday he was now among the select, Grimm told this one on himself:

"That same thing happened to me several years ago and I was tickled. But the next day, I went to bat nine times in a 16-inning game, didn't get a hit and have never been among the best clouters until today."

BIG LEAGUE SOCCER PLAYED AT NIGHT

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP.)—In the first big league soccer game ever played at night, the New York Nationals defeated Fall River, 1 to 0, in an American League contest at the Polo Grounds last night.

Bucs Sweep Cub Series

Adams flied to Cuyler who's fine return to the plate was dropped by Catcher Gonzales. Brickell slid over in safety as the ball rolled away. Nobody knowns how the action would have terminated had Gonzales held the difficult chance. The doubt was in favor of the runner and batter and Sparky was credited with driving over the winning tally on a sacrifice fly.

GRIMM BANISHED

Capt. Charley Grimm of the Cubs gave the fight a stormy scene in the ninth when he was called out on strikes with victory for the Cubs in the offering. Ki Cuyler was on third and Riggs Stephenson on first when Umpire Moran waved the Bruin leader out on a called third strike. Grimm protested so violently that he was ordered from the field.

A few minutes after Grimm had been ejected Gonzales stung a savage liner to centerfield. When the ball left the bat it looked like two Chicago tallies and curtains for the Pirates, but Sprout ran down the smash and brought it safely back to the field for the third out.

Arthur Nehf, lefthander of the Chicago team, who is charged with the defeat, pitched better than any of the four sharpshooters involved, but Nehf was the victim of Hack Wilson's loose play in the tenth which converted Dawson's single into a three-bagger with one out.

Manager Bush decided that Joe Harris was a better bet at the plate than L. Waner under the circumstances, so Sprout went to the dugout and Joe advanced with a big stick. Brickell ran for Dawson. But the Cubs did not give Coulter Joe a chance to sock one; he was passed intentionally, thus putting the important matter up to Adams who drove in the needed tally. The Adams feat atoned for three fielding bobbles charged against him.

WILSON HIT DOUBLE

Wilson walloped a double to the right-center fence in the sixth to score Beck and Cuyler, the two tallies knotting the contest at eight all. From this point to the finish the battle raged without any scoring.

Loose play played a heavy part in the scoring on both sides, although the Pirates deserved to win on the merit of hitting. The Bushwhackers outbatted the enemy, 15 hits to 11. Glenn Wright, with three singles, was the hitting star of the afternoon.

John Miljus pitched good ball, but the Penn avenue athlete was the victim of some of the loosest fielding any Pirate team has displayed in years. Dawson relieved Miljus in the sixth.

MONONGAHELA WINS VALLEY TRACK TITLE

CLAIRTON, Pa., May 3.—Monongahela High School's well-balanced track and field team won the annual Monongahela Valley scholastic meet here yesterday afternoon, scoring 52½ points and leading the local high school team, which finished in the runner-up position, by 12½ points.

Monongahela won eight first places and carried off second honors in four. The mile relay was won by the Monongahela team, with Simms, Hazzard, McCarty and Thomas running in 2:51 8-10.

NORMAL, Ill., May 3.—(INS.)—Reports that Promoter C. C. Pyle's $25,000 bungalow bus, in which he and his attendants are accompanying the coast-to-coast runners had been attached by a Champaign bank, were met with the following statement issued by William Pickens, Pyle's publicity director:

"Believing that his runners need his personal leadership, Mr. Pyle has decided to leave his $25,000 bus tempararily in Joliet and accompany the runners on foot. Reports that Mr. Pyle is planning to walk out on the rest of the walkers are libelous and untrue."

Receivers of the bank said the note was given by Pyle without security three years ago.

The truck, weighing 12 tons, has been the home of Pyle and his followers since leaving the Pacific coast, March 4, with the trans-continental runners. It cost $25,000, and is equipped with berths, a kitchenette, shower baths, electrical refrigeration and everything found in the modern home.

The bank's receivers said they had a writ of attachment also against Harold (Red) Grange, former University of Illinois football star and one of Pyle's aides, for $21,502 to satisfy a note they said he gave the bank without security.

Peter Gavuzzi, of Southampton, England, sheared his bristled beard, while his competitors in the trans-continental bunion derby trimmed his long lead in the lap from Lincoln, Ill., to Normal, yesterday.

Three runners, John Salo of Passaic, N. J.; Olli Wanttinen, New York, and Harry Rea, of Long Beach, Cal., finished the 34.6-miles lap in a dead heat for first place, while Gavuzzi came in with William Kerry, of Minneapolis, to tie for sixteenth place. As a result, his general lead over Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla., the runner-up, was trimmed 35 minutes and one second. The Englishman still has a four hour and 51 minute lead over the field of 71, however.

Pope Condemns Entry of Girls in Meet

ROME, May 2.—(INS.)—In a letter condemning the girls' athletic meet to be held in Rome next month, Pope Pius has declared that admission of young women to competition in such sports showed "less respect for girls than pagan Rome which excluded them from athletic competition."

The letter was addressed to Cardinal Pompieli and deplored the plans for holding a girls' athletic meet in Rome May 4.

"The Roman bishops must deplore that after 20 centuries of Christianity Rome is showing less respect for girls than pagan Rome which excluded girls from athletic competitions," the letter declared.

WAGNER TO MAKE REGAN PRESENTATION

Honus Wagner has consented to make the presentation of the fans' gift to Bill Regan of Brookline, second baseman of the Boston Red Sox, on Sunday, June 3, when a delegation of the local lad's admirers will go in a body to Cleveland to see him play against the Cleveland Indians. Wagner should be a big attraction in the American League city and will add much color to the occasion.

The special train over the P. & L. E. Railroad will leave at 8 a. m., daylight saving time, and depart from Cleveland returning at 7 p. m., eastern standard time, arriving back in Pittsburgh about 11:30. All arrangements will be made for reservations of seats at the game, taxicabs and lunch at the Hollenden Hotel for the flat rate of $7.25 per person for the outing.

Reservations are being received at Alm's Pharmacy, Brookline; depot and city offices of the P. & L. E.; Wagner's sporting goods store, and at Gus Miller's and Henry Hirshberg's stores in Oakland. It was in Oakland that Regan began to play baseball on the sandlots. It is expected that upwards of 500 persons will make the trip. No reservations will be accepted after May 26.

CLAIMS BENEFITS WERE WONDERFUL

Beechview Citizen Says Ten Herbs Was Fine for Kidneys, Nerves and Bowels.

"Three bottles of Ten Herbs certainly made a wonderful change in me," was the statement of Mr. Martin Joyce, 306 Lamasco Avenue, Beechview, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Ave., Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this new herbal compound to crowds of people.

MR. MARTIN JOYCE

"My worst trouble seemed to be my kidneys," continued Mr. Joyce, who is a plasterer. "I had to arise three or four times a night, and had severe pains across the back. In the morning I would be so stiff I could hardly get out of bed. My bowels were irregular, and I was continually taking salts or pills. I became so nervous that I could not sleep at night. I must have been bilious, for if I sat down to read a newspaper I would fall asleep.

"Ten Herbs made me feel like a new man. My kidneys are working the way they should, as the pains have left my back and I do not have to get up at night any more. My nerves have become quiet, and I sleep the night through. My bowels are regular and biliousness has left me. Food has a better taste. Ten Herbs seems to have given my whole system a thorough cleansing, with the result that I feel better and stronger in every respect. Your medicine helped me so much that I intend to give it to my nineteen-year-old son. He needs a good tonic, and I am sure that your preparation is just what his system needs. I shall always be glad to recommend Ten Herbs."

Try Ten Herbs and feel the way it relieves your burdened, gassy, painful, sick stomach. Let it awaken and invigorate your sluggish liver, and thus relieve headaches, dizziness and attacks of biliousness; let it regulate your bowels; let it tone up your kidneys and relieve the soreness and stiffness in your back and limbs, and put an end to night-rising. Ten Herbs has helped many in this section and why not you?

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Ave., Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

buffet and dinner dance on the day of its inauguration; the links necessarily will be kept closed until well seasoned, an opening being contemplated for Decoration Day, although everything is dependent upon the weather. More than 500 persons are expected to attend today's ceremonies.

Emil (Dutch) Loeffler, Oakmont's noted greenkeeper, was the architect and builder of the layout. We believe that it is going to be one of the most popular playgrounds for golf in the tristate district. The general topography of the grounds, with a rather mountainous scenic background, is perfect for a course, and this, put together with the skillful touch of Loeffler and his associates, has given Wildwood something that other clubs may learn to envy in time. Emil's brother, Ernest, is to be the club's regular greenkeeper.

President George Wittmer, it is said has worked diligently to put the club across—and he has more than accomplished his purpose. The clubhouse itself is model. From the approach, the exterior is most pleasing to the eye. It is a magnificent building, being fashioned after a mansion-like country home. The interior, spacious and complete in conveniences, is of exquisite, modern appointment; not too guady, yet rich enough in color and conservative enough to gratify even an artistic critical eye. Its grill room is the most original of any club in the district.

Other executives of the club include C. Chalfont, vice president, A. Bradford, treasurer, and Walter E. Reinenman, secretary.

Wildwood fortunately has secured the services of a manager who has had international hotel and club experience. Adolph T. Stormanns, at one time at the Country Club of Allegheny County, has been affiliated with the Hotel Adelphia in Philadelphia, the Hotel Riesen at Furstenhof, Hotel Royal at Boun and a Coblenz hostelry. He served his apprenticeship at the Hotel Kaiserhof at Elbenfeld. Among the many dignitaries he has cared for are the presidents of France and Germany, and the Prince of Wales, along with lesser notables.

Nelson Zimmerman, the club's first professional, most likely will be welcomed, by his friends at the club—he has many of them throughout the district. While at the Westmoreland Country Club, Nelson earned the reputation of being an excellent golfer and an able instructor. The club will be well fortified in this department.

Stormanns' assistant by the way, James Leemann formerly of the Rolling Rock Country Club, took personal care of the Prince of Wales during his recent tour of Canada.

New York Not Responsible For Huge Loan Expansion

By B. C. FORBES

ARE banks throughout the country more responsible than New York banks for the inordinate expansion in brokers' loans?

The official figures answer "yes."

THIS may astonish Senator La Follette and many of those favoring his resolution "that the Federal Reserve Board should admonish all federal reserve banks to take steps to advise against further expansion of loans to member banks for purely speculative purposes." Incidentally, the resolution directs the reserve board to report to Congress "what legislation, if any, is required to prevent excessive use of the funds and credit of the federal reserve system for speculative purposes."

No serious quarrel can be found with this recommendation to Congress. That the unprecedented ongoings in Wall street would incite radical politicians was easily foreseeable.

LET us examine the actual figures covering brokers' loans.

A year ago the total was $2,882,994,000. They now aggregate $4,144,386,000. This shows an increase of no less than $1,261,392,000.

That reveals wholly unprecedented expansion.

BUT who have been responsible for the feeding out of this swelling total? New York bankers have been responsible for a much smaller share of the increase than have out-of-town banks and others.

Loans to brokers and dealers made by New York banks for their own account have increased, as compared with a year ago, $264,629,000.

But similar loans made for the account of out-of-town banks have expanded $470,346,000. The greatest increase of all appears under the cryptic heading, "For account of others," namely, $526,417,000.

The official figures are as follows:

April, 1927.
Loans to brokers and dealers for own account	$ 935,588,000
For account of out of town banks	1,143,294,000
For account of others	804,112,000
Total	$2,882,994,000
April, 1928.
Loans to brokers and dealers for own account	$1,200,217,000
For account of out of town banks	1,613,640,000
For account of others	1,330,529,000
Total	$4,144,386,000

WHO are the "others" who are renting out so much money in Wall street at present? Corporations and other business interests who have found themselves unable or disinclined to employ all their liquid funds for ordinary business purposes "by reason of slackening business," to use the phrase employed on this point by the National City Bank of New York, which says of this money: "It is there to make earnings until it is needed elsewhere, and the same may be said of considerable country bank money."

The fact is that superabundant money at low rates encourages many business concerns to raise large amounts of additional capital to take care of future requirements. Surplus funds thus created are being employed temporarily where they bring some return, namely, in Wall street, where they are loaned out on ample security.

THIS total of $4,144,386,000 of brokers' loans and the increase of $1,261,392,000 during the last year look rather staggering. Let it be said in mitigation, however, that the number of issues, the total par value of issues, and the market value of issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange have likewise reached unparalleled totals.

Comparisons covering par values cannot be given because many [illegible] wadays have no par val[illegible] see how the market val[illegible] the shares listed on the [illegible] hange has increased dur[illegible] [illegible] ast three years.

April, 1928	$52,371,329,870
April, 1927	40,126,835,948
April, 1926	32,270,247,369
April, 1925	26,893,314,077

THESE facts and figures admittedly remove some of the sting from the expansion in brokers' loans. Nevertheless, the rate of expansion of late strikes one as abnormal, unhealthy and fraught with danger. True, commercial interests have been and still are able to borrow freely at very reasonable rates. The danger lurks, rather, in the speculative conditions which have been fostered. If general business greatly improves, then many millions will be withdrawn from the stock market. If business should become poorer, then profits would suffer. In either case the logical consequence would be a fall in stock quotations, now at heights never before approached.

THE nation's bankers, in New York and elsewhere, should charge themselves with the responsibility of considering the whole situation in its broadest aspects and of exercising financial and business statesmanship.

WINS PRIZE FOR SCHOOL SPELLING 'COLOSSEUM'

WHEELING, W. Va., May 3.—Charlotte Talbott, of Sisterville, W. Va., hung up the second public school spelling championship in three years for her home town when she spelled "Colosseum." That word caused the downfall of her remaining opponent, Christine Taylor, Bellaire, O.

STOCKS MOVE IRREGULARLY HIGHER

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP.)—Speculative uneasiness over the credit situation subsided somewhat today and prices moved irregularly higher as pools resumed activities in a wide assortment of stocks. A plentiful supply of call money at the renewal figure of 5 per cent, followed by a drop to 4½ in the early afternoon, and Secretary Mellon's assurance that the meeting of Federal Reserve governors was without special significance and that no important action was contemplated in connection with the broker's loan situation, helped to revive bullish confidence.

Motor shares were bought heavily on reports of large current earnings, General Motors leading the advance with a gain of 4 points. Chrysler mounted to a new high level in anticipation of a record-breaking first quarter report after the close of the market.

Higher earnings also provided the background for the advance in public utility issues. Montana Power soared 9 points to 175 and was followed into new high ground by American Telephone, International Telephone, Philadelphia Company and Columbia Gas, the gains running as high as 4 points. New York Tractions quickly climbed to new peak prices and then lost their gains on the traditional "selling on the good news" which followed the announcement that the Federal Statutory Court had granted the Interborough Rapid Transit's application for a seven cent fare.

Oils were again reactionary on selling presumably inspired by the reported failure of Seminole field operators to reach an agreement for extending the curtailing arrangement which expires May 15. Fresh selling also developed in some of the tobaccos with Lorillard touching a new 1928 low. Coty broke 6½ points on realizing.

Rails were mixed. Southern Railway touched a new record high at 163. Missouri Pacific common crossed 59 to a new peak on buying influenced by expectations of an early report by the committee appointed to study a plan for paying off back dividends on the preferred. New York & Harlem which recently broke from 505 to 226 on odd lot transactions was again in demand, moving from 226 to 270. Chicago & Alton issues were again under selling pressure after their rapid advance of Tuesday.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP.)—Bonds of New York traction systems spurted forward rapidly in today's market, influenced by the Federal Court decision yesterday granting the Interborough an increase in fares from five to seven cents. New peaks were reached by practically all listed transit mortgages, New York Railway 6s, Third Avenue 5s and Interborough 5s leading the way.

In other sections of the list there was no more than nominal activity, and prices failed to establish a definite trend. Traders apparently were marking time to discover what action, if any, will be taken this afternoon regarding the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate.

New issues continued to receive a good welcome, prompt oversubscription being reported of the $20,000,000 Union Pacific 4s and $4,000,000 Ruhr Chemical Corporation 6s, both offered this morning.

The foreign group again was quiet and steady. Federal government obligations showed little change in the early dealings, when transactions were few and small.

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

GENERAL LIST IS QUIET

Lone Star Gas dominated the trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, rising to new high ground on the current movement in response to rumors of possible amalgamation with another large utility.

Interests usually in touch with the company do not place much stock in stories that Lone Star will tie up with Columbia Gas and Electric, although recognizing the close relationship now existing between the two concerns. The fact that H. C. McEldowney, president of the Union Trust Company and a director of Columbia Gas, accompanied a party of officials on an inspection trip to Texas, was seized upon as a bullish card this morning by traders favoring the stock. Several hundred shares were handled in the first hour on a rise of about a point from yesterday's low figure.

The miscellaneous list was dull, but prices held steady around the levels prevailing on the close last night.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, May 3.—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 1 to 3 points on reports of improved weather conditions in the South.

Selling was only moderately active at the start, but became heavier after some stop orders were uncovered on the decline which extended to 21.22c for May and 20.90c for October, or about 25 to 27 points net lower. These prices seemed to bring in a little more buying and the market steadied up 10 or 15 points from the lowest before the end of the first hour.

Part of the early selling was attributed to private reports of showers in West Texas, where, in contrast with the balance of the belt, moisture is said be needed.

Private cables reported liquidation in the Liverpool market on fear of unsettled labor conditions in Manchester, with offerings absorbed by trade calling at the decline.

The market was steadier after the absorption of the early offerings. The decline evidently brought in a renewal of trade or commission house demand, while there was covering and rebuying by some of yesterday's sellers who probably saw less rain reported in West Texas than was expected. The outlook for further showers may have brought in some selling, but the market held steady, and at midday showed rallies of about 20 to 25 points from the lowest, the active months ruling only 2 or 3 points below yesterday's closing quotations.

A shoe which contained part of the girl's foot, a coat, hat and signet ring initialed "R. K." found along the tracks were identified as belonging to the girl.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Motors Leads Again.

General Motors shifted into the lead position in today's market with stock showing all the vigor and activity witnessed in the sensational upturn a few weeks ago. Blocks of stock ranging to 5,000 shares and above were taken as the price moved steadily forward to within shooting distance of the 200 mark, where it halted the last advance. Approach of the dividend meeting at which a generous extra is expected to be declared was offered as one of the reasons for today's strength, while another was the remarkable showing of the automobile companies in April as gauged by the preliminary production and sales figures. Chrysler went along with General Motors on the rise. There was a strong "top" on Chrysler in the Street and rumors of an ultimate consolidation with General Motors were revived.

Standard Oil of New York.

Standard Oil of New York buoyed a rather shaky looking oil share market today as buying on the same scale witnessed last week was resumed around the noon hour. The Street is as yet in the dark as to the real reason for New York's sensational action over the past 10 days, but the feeling is general that some special development occasioned the rise. While other oils have gone ahead with New York on the move, none of them has displayed the same smashing strength and for this reason the traders are more or less anxiously awaiting the "news" on the stock.

P. R. R. Denies Alton Rumors.

Gen. W. W. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania Railroad denied today that his company has been buying Chicago and Alton stock in the open market recently. Alton's gains over the past few days have been credited in Street rumors to buying by the Pennsylvania in furtherance of plans for enlargement of its system in the west. Gen. Atterbury told a representative of the Wall Street News in Chicago last night that "the Pennsylvania Railroad has not bought a single share of Chicago and Alton stock." The Alton sold off on the Atterbury story today, but there seemed to be fair support a little under the market.

The deficit after dividends was $477,757 against a surplus of $20,426 in the previous year. The company announces it lost money in January and February but in March, when the turn in the industry occurred, a substantial profit was made.

Grisson, collector of internal revenue for North Carolina. —$—

Golden Center Mines.

Golden Center Mines, which has a large following in this territory, sold up to a new record today on the New York Curb following announcement that George L. Johnson, chairman of the board of the General Outdoor Advertising Company, had been elected a director. The company owns a tin property in Bolivia and is drilling gold claims in California.

Firm Tone in Rails.

Rails were firm in today's market, but there was no straightaway advance, probably because of the nervous feeling in some quarters over the brokers' loan report to be issued after the close. Washington reports to one of the brokerage houses said an early decision on the Nickel Plate merger was probable, and another factor was the better freight loading statement issued yesterday.

Pittsburgh Coal Production.

This compares with 680,296 tons in March and with 453,632 tons in April, 1927. Reduction in April as compared with March was due to poor market conditions.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, May 3.—Late reports of further heavy rains today in the West and Southwest led up to sharp fresh breaks in wheat prices today at the last. Some places in Kansas reported two inches of rain, and the downpour still unabated. Under such circumstances, indicating substantial relief from drought, wheat rallies based on frost predictions proved to be only transient, and the corn market also broke, owing to acute weakness of wheat.

Influenced by the fact that the wheat market had declined about 10c a bushel from the recent high point, and that the effect of better moisture conditions had been largely discounted, a good class of wheat buying developed speedily at times today. Indications of freezing temperature in parts of Nebraska and Kansas did much to encourage bullish traders to reinstate sold out holdings, and likewise did relative firmness of wheat quotations at Liverpool.

Corn, as well as wheat, developed notable rallying power despite an early show of weakness. A report which a leading crop expert issued regarding stocks of corn on farms was construed as bullish. He estimated the amount at present as 590,000,000 bushels against 730,000,000 bushels a year ago, and 996,000 bushels two years back.

Investment buying and the reduction in the renewal rate for call loans from 5½ to 5 per cent, thereby minimizing the fears of a possible increase in the federal reserve rediscount rate today exercised a cheerful sentiment which offset marked weakness and extensive realizing in various shares. All of the local traction stocks lot their early gains and something more besides, and Chicago and Alton common went down to 13 and the preferred to 18, compared with yesterday's maximum figures of 19¾ and 26⅝ respectively. Numerous gas and power shares showed exceptional strength, both Columbia Gas and Montana Power rising four points each.

How much does Trust Service Cost?

Persons planning to name this company executor or trustee are usually surprised at the moderate charge. Knowing the many advantages of a corporate executor or trustee, they expect to pay more for service than to an individual.
Yet the facts are these: Statistics compiled from Orphans' Court records show the percentage of shrinkage in estates administered by individuals is greater by nearly 10 per cent than in those administered by trust companies.
Fidelity trust service is economical.

IT is natural and proper that successful men maintain a scale of living, for themselves and families, in keeping with their present income.

Increased success automatically establishes new standards, and the luxuries of yesterday become the necessities of today.

How easy it is, when the going is good, to forget the necessity of creating adequate reserves to insure the continuance of the accustomed scale of living, if a man's major income should cease by reason of his premature death.

Life insurance, plenty of it, in any good company, is the only logical answer for the man whose major income depends primarily upon his own efforts.

And this insurance should be planned in a sensible way—it should be protected, it should be made to do its fullest duty, it should not be wasted or lost through business inexperience on the part of heirs—in short, it should be protected by a LIFE INSURANCE TRUST.

When you create a Life Insurance Trust with this old institution, we will conserve the family capital provided by your life insurance, in safe and profitable investments. We will distribute both the income and the capital in the way you direct through the trust agreement.

You can give us discretion to meet misfortune and respond to the unexpected need.

The Life Insurance Trust can be made a most flexible instrument of financial safety, capable of meeting changed conditions as they may arise in the future.

A most interesting booklet, explaining full details, will be mailed, without obligation, upon request. Call or send for your copy.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP.)—Trends in the curb market were confused today, and, while some groups, such as mines, utilities and industrial specialties, were strong, there were sagging tendencies elsewhere. Traders apparently were awaiting action of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York this afternoon on the rediscount rate.

Consolidated Copper Mines advanced to a new high at 12⅛ on buying inspired by belief that merger of Kennecott with Nevada and other companies would be a benefit through acquisition of new contracts. Golden Center and New Mont Mines also advanced to new tops, but Bahia, Hudson Bay and others encountered profit-taking. Foundry and machine tool shares continued strong, Campbell Wyant and Bullard invading new high ground. A feature was Brooklyn City Railway. Buying inspired by the granting of a seven-cent fare lifted the issue to a new top at 9¼ on a large turnover.

Utilities again showed group strength, with General Public Service, Lehigh Power Securities and Mohawk Valley making outstanding gains.

The oils were weak, Penn-Mex Fuel sagging more than 6 points. Vacuum moved upward against the trend.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The raw sugar market was quiet early today, with no sales reported. Both refiners and operators appeared indifferent, and while offerings were not aggressive, holders seemed willing to make further sales at last paid prices of 4.52 for Cuban duty paid.

The raw sugar futures market opened irregular at 1 point advance to 1 point decline, but soon eased off under renewed liquidation and trade selling with prices at midday 1 to 2 points net lower. The volume of business was not large, and operators were inclined to limit fresh commitments and await developments in the spot market. Advices from Cuba said that the export committee had disposed of 50,000 tons out of the reserves there for export to other countries than the United States at 2.68½ and 2.87 for Cuba.

No changes occurred in the refined sugar situation with fine granulated quoted at 5.95@6.00 and business still confined to withdrawals on old contracts.

Gooding Sees Hope for Benefit in Coal Probe

The spirit of progress and accomplishment is behind the statement of Senator Gooding, of Idaho, that the present inquiry into coal conditions shall not be fruitless. "My hope," he said in an interview with a Sun-Telegraph staff correspondent in Washington, "is that the committee will press on and succeed in procuring legislation to restore prosperity to this industry."

It is encouraging to those of Pittsburgh and its vicinity that Senator Gooding is not dismayed by the enormity of the task before the committee, as developed in the investigation now being conducted in Washington. The mass of evidence presented, with contradictory elements in nearly every page of the record, constitutes a jungle-like maze that might easily be said to be impenetrable.

But even jungles fall before the ax. Progress is made only by men who face the problem before them with the same spirit Senator Gooding displays. A way to rehabilitate the coal industry CAN be found—will be found. We hope, with Senator Gooding, that it will result from labors in which he is engaged.

Aerial Express Service Big Step in Progress

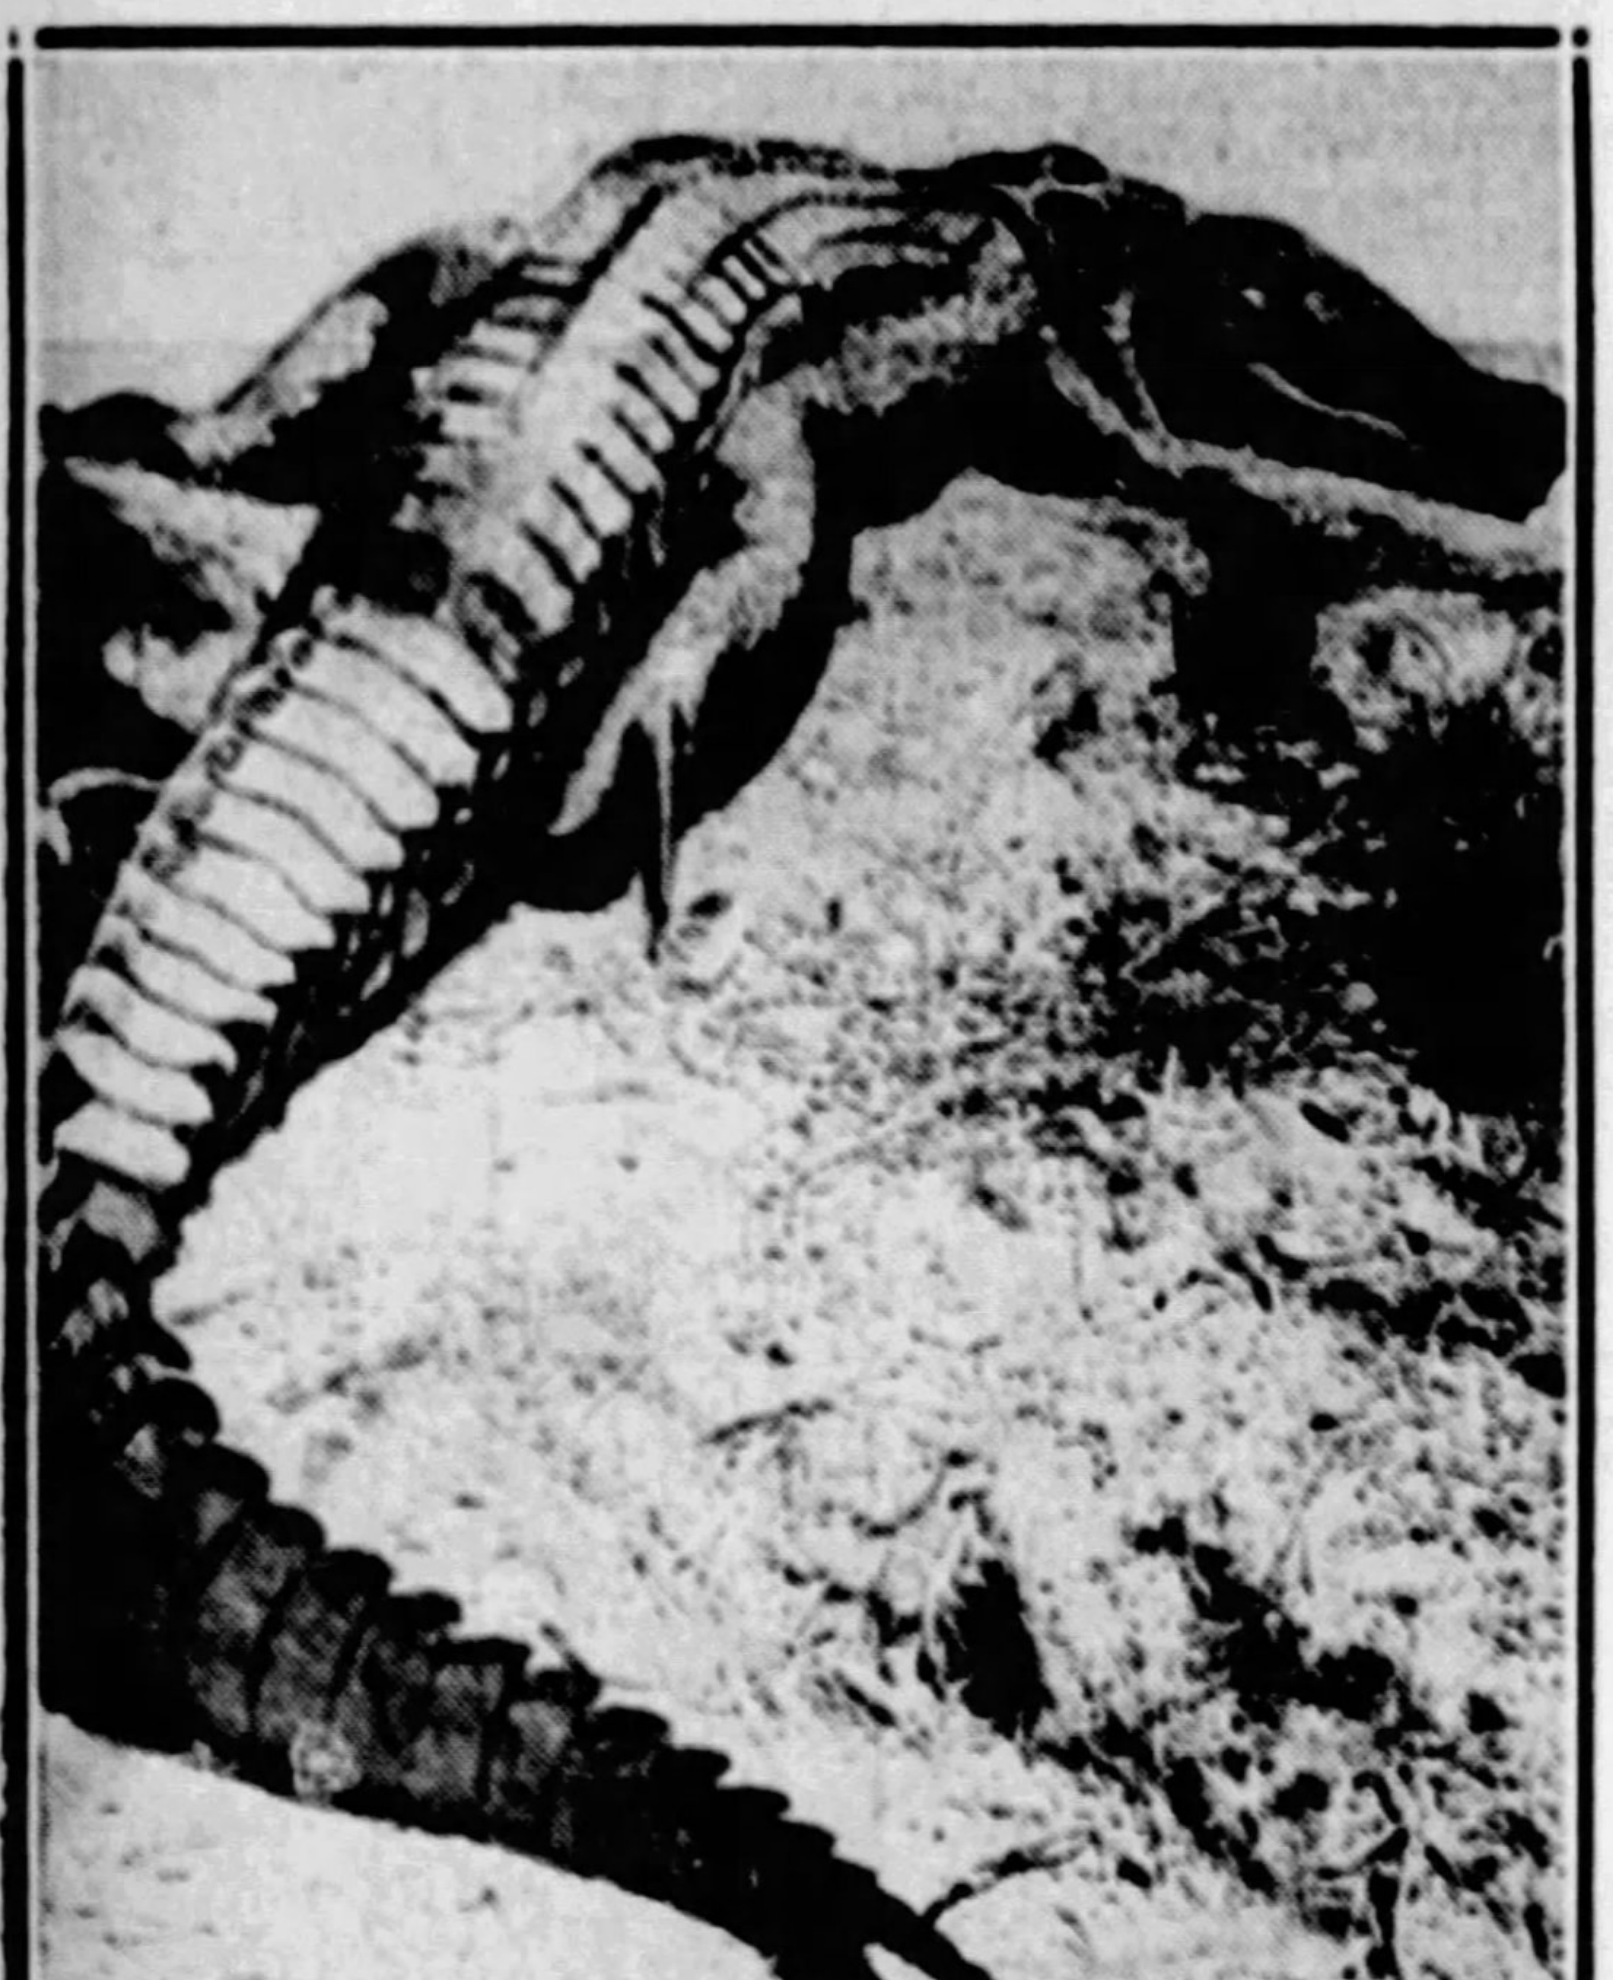
The world grows smaller. The California orange groves now are only 28 hours from Pittsburgh by aerial express, just inaugurated here with the opening of service between Bettis Field and Cleveland. Among the first shipments received as a result of the transcontinental route connections was fruit shipped in California the day before its arrival here.

And this is only the first trip. The time will be shortened as the service is perfected, as it surely will be. In time there will be more direct hops. In time landing fields will be less remote from the city. There likely will be some near the heart of the town in connection with railroad terminals.

We are pioneering in the new way of transportation. Just as the great transcontinental rails made our land more compact than that faced by the covered-wagon pioneers, we marvel at the condensation of space made possible by the airplane. Greater wonders are coming, and it is as a preparation for them that we hail the new express service as a great step in advancement.

Before an Alligator Attacks

When the "Bad Man" Uncovers the Canine Teeth



WHEN AN ALLIGATOR BENDS HIS TAIL, LOOK OUT.

Many animals, including man, indicate in some physical way their intention TO ATTACK.

A horse, before he bits or kicks, lays his ears back flat. The dog's hair rises above his shoulders and neck. The alligator, as you see in this picture, twists his tail off to one side.

Natives of Australia, among whom this alligator lives, pay no attention to the big creature's mouth, open or shut. That means nothing. But when he swishes his tail over to one side, it means that he is about to rush to the attack. Then they scatter. Alligator tail and alligator feet are included among their choicest delicacies. But they don't like alligator teeth, or blows from an alligator's tail.

Man is closely related, at least in his ways and manners, to many of the animals. He shows the tiger's ferocity in war, the greediness of the pig in business, the slyness of the fox in his dealings, and often the ingratitude of the wolf, and the laziness of the giant sloth.

At a murder trial reporters and members of the jury, male and female, watch the killer's face. They note that when something makes him angry, he sneers, and as he sneers, his upper lip rises, exposing the sharp canine "cutting" tooth. That, as the distinguished Mr. Darwin reminds you, is the sign of anger and the intention to ACT, among men, as among wolves. What we call a sneer is really getting ready TO BITE. As the man uncovers his tooth in a sneer, so the wolf uncovers his long, sharp tooth when he snarls,, and the baboon does the same when he gets ready to attack, getting the lip out of the way that the tooth may catch hold easily and without biting his lip.

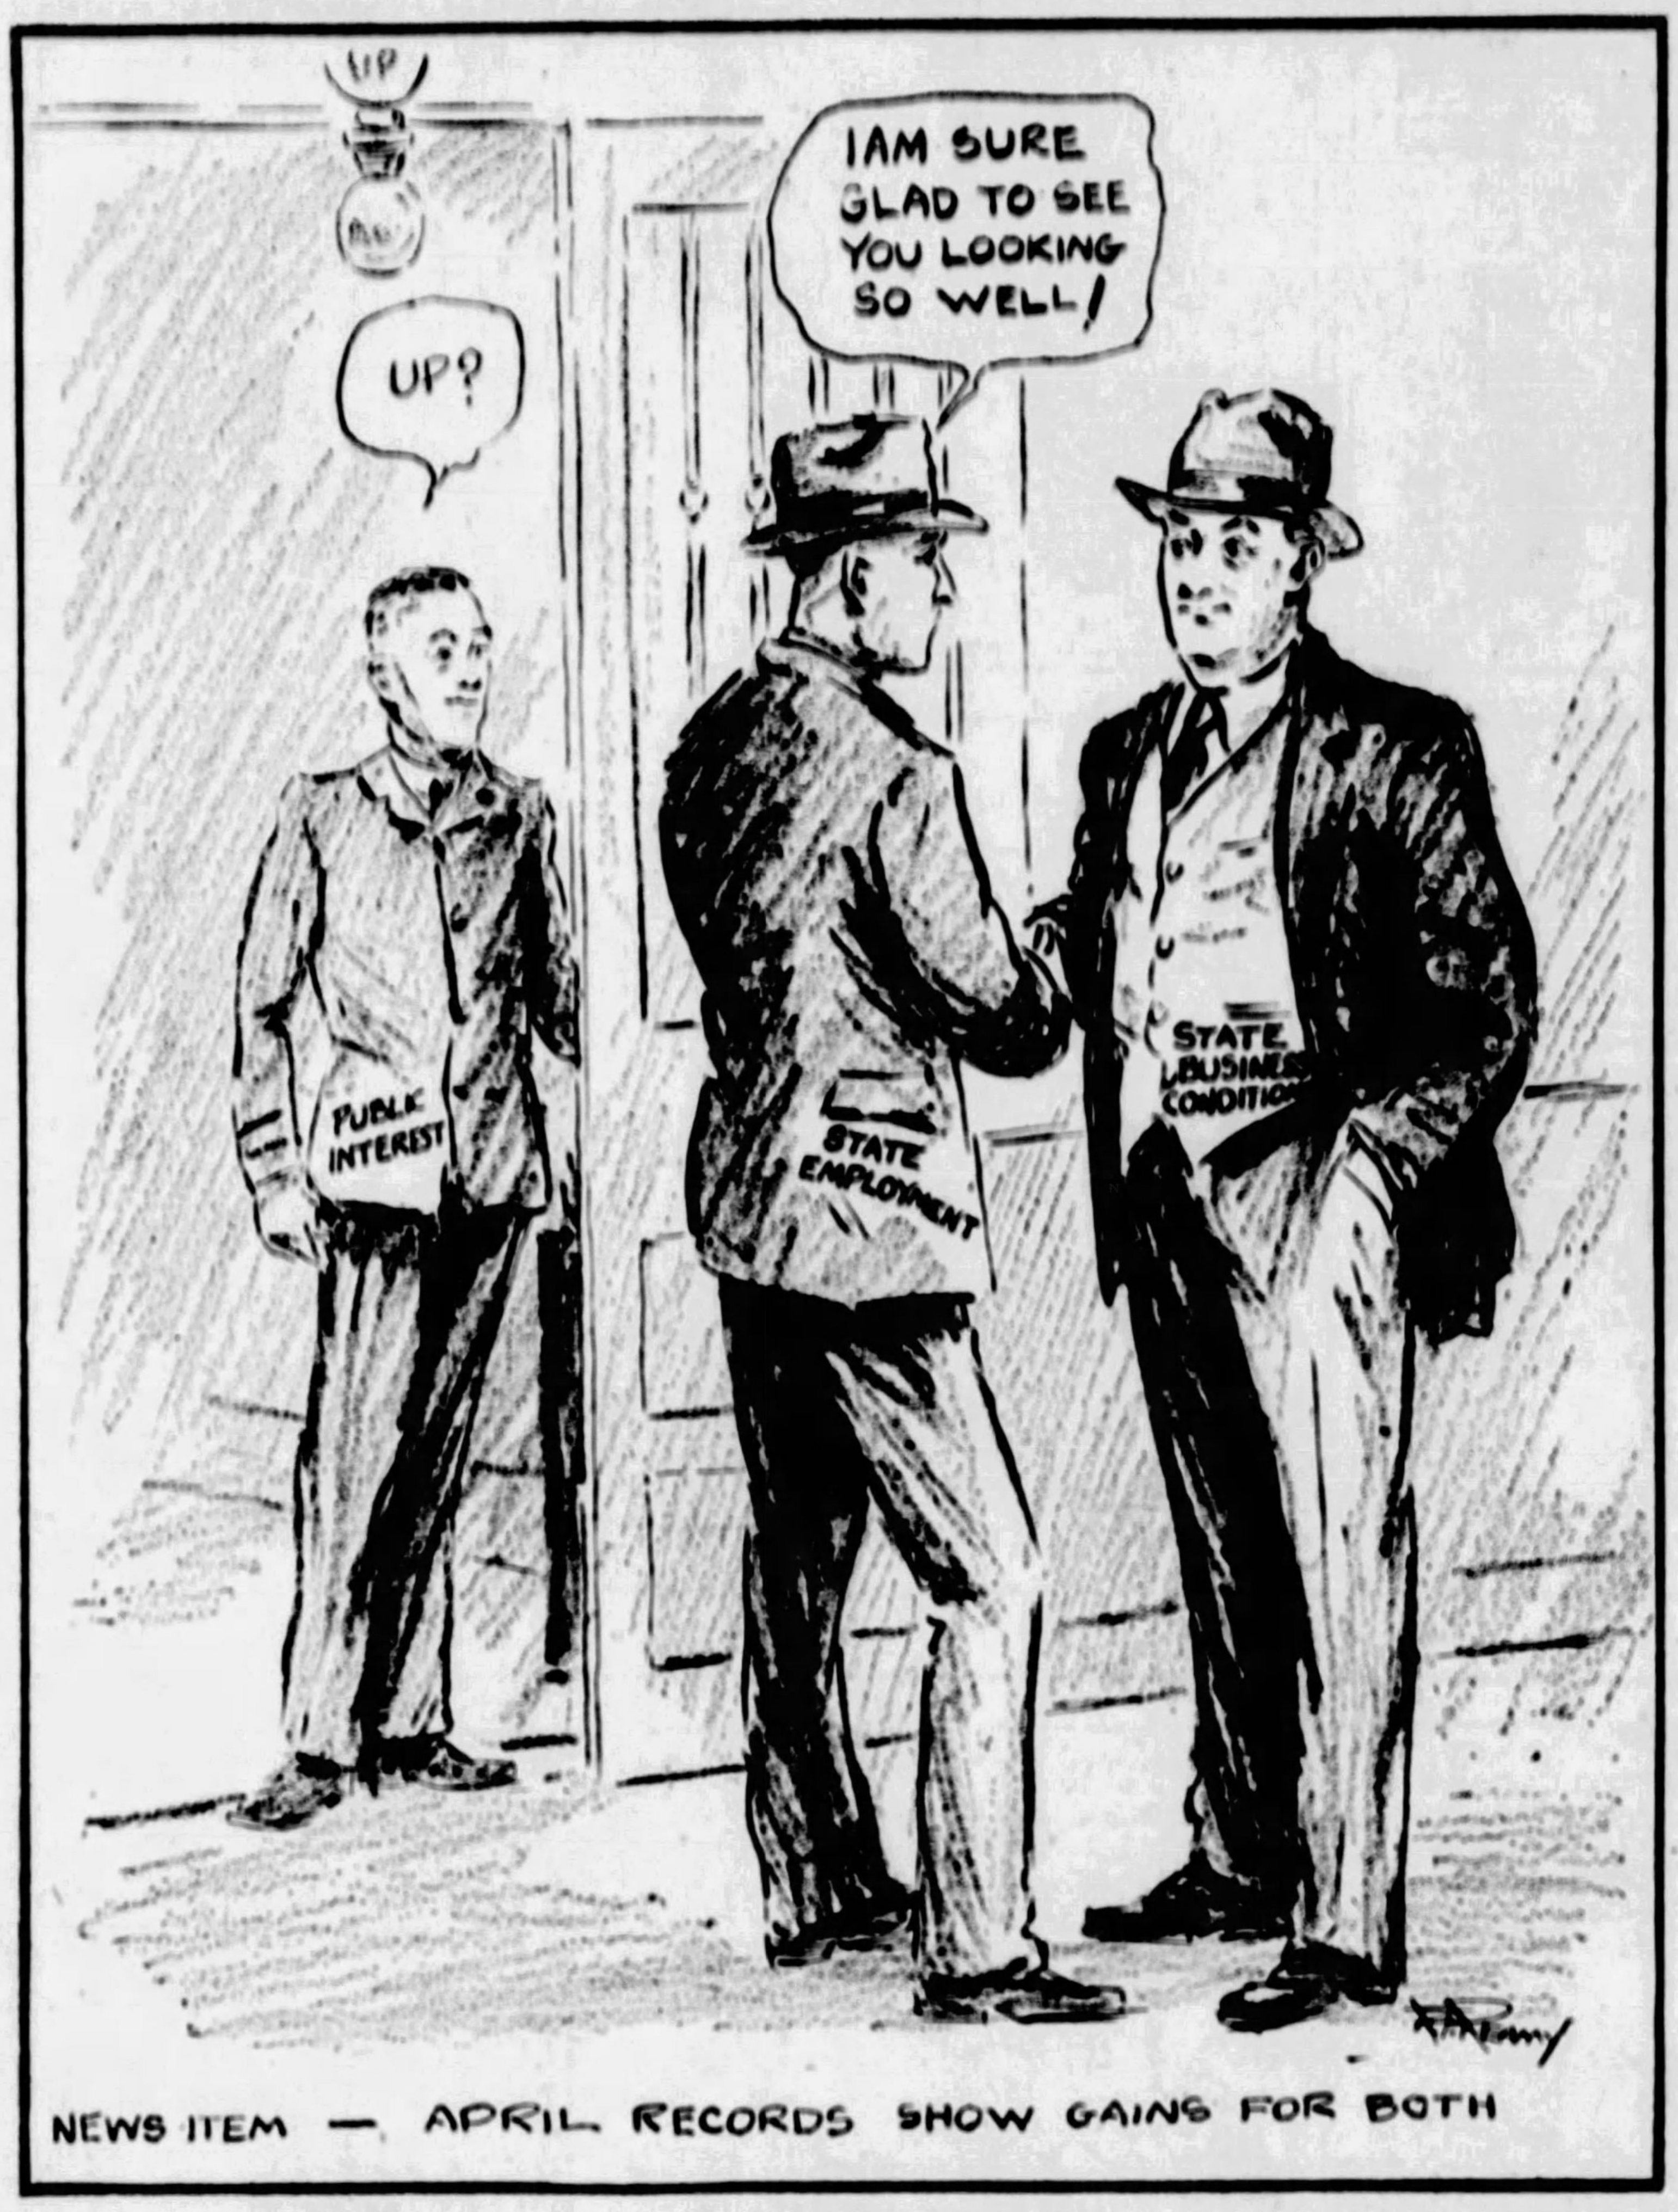
All these preparations for attack and demonstrations of anger are useful. The horse about to bite puts back his ears, because when horses bite, they bite off each others ears if they can get hold of them. The flat ear is not so easy to bite.

The dog raises the long hair on his back and neck, that the attacking dog may get his mouth full of hair before he reaches the skin.

The alligator twists his tail to one side, to get strength for the blow, when he swings it back. His tail is his chief attacking weapon.

And man, most savage of ALL animals, when he starts, unconsciously, in his SNEER, uncovers his best biting tooth, although he no longer uses his teeth in fighting, depending on his "automatic" or dagger.

SURE, THEY'RE GOING UP!



NEWS ITEM — APRIL RECORDS SHOW GAINS FOR BOTH

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Words, Words, Words

CAN you have thoughts without language? Some say you cannot. Try thinking without allowing words to occur in your mind corresponding to your thoughts. See whether you can do it. Interrogate yourself as to whether you could think at all if you had no language at all. The cry of the new born baby is its whole language; does it also give the measure of the baby's whole range of thought?

Carl Schurz, who was a master of speech, says, in his "Memoirs:"

"Since becoming known as a speaker and writer in English as well as in German I have often been asked by persons interested in linguistic studies or in psychological problems, whether while I was speaking or writing I was thinking in English or in German; and whether I was constantly translating from one language into the other. The answer was that when speaking or writing in English I was thinking in English, and when speaking or writing in German I was thinking in German; and when my mind followed a train of thought which did not require immediate expression in words I was unconscious of what language I was thinking in."

The last sentence is ambiguous, since it implies that he was thinking in some language, though he did not know what it was. Was it, then, really any language at all? If there were no words in the mind, the thinking was independent of expression.

Certainly we hear every day the statement: "I am unable to express my thought in words," and the universality of the experience behind that statement may be a proof that the mind really can think without any aid from language.

On the other hand some may object that, in such cases, what is in the mind is only something suggested by mental images of words, the difficulty of expression arising from defective knowledge of the language. Anyhow it is certain that words have a lure and a fascination of their own over the mind of the writer or speaker.

Not infrequently the occurrence of an unexpected word to the memory gives a new turn to a sentence, or even a changed structure to the development of an idea. This occasionally leads a vivid orator to disaster. He is suddenly switched off the line by a misplaced word, and then the driving throng of its associates let in by the intruder fills his mouth with things that he did not intend to say and ought not to have said. Afterward he may deny that he said them. To many a politician's epitaph might be added: "Killed by a seductive word."

If poets told the full truth about their inspiration they would admit that often a verse is shaped not by the thought but by a word that will rhyme or will fit into the meter, thereby altering the thought itself.

No better illustration of the power of words in themselves could be given than a further quotation from Mr. Schurz, in which he describes his greatest speech (three hours' long!) given in the Cooper Institute during the Lincoln campaign. Note particularly the closing sentence, which I have italicized:

"In later years I have now and then taken up the volume containing the speech to re-read certain of its liveliest passages, and then to call up once more the youthful days when my combative temperament enjoyed to the full the 'gaudium certaminis,' when the imagination ran riot, and when the music of language seemed to tinkle all around in the air."

Whether words are our masters or our servants, what would the world be without them? Hitherto books have furnished our only connection with past masterpieces of language, but henceforth with phonographic records the voices of the past, the spoken words, will live also, and who can guess the possible influence over coming civilizations?

Two Travelers

TWO very rich men are traveling. Henry Ford is seeing Great Britain. Alfred Lowenstein, the Belgian, is seeing a little of the United States.

Mr. Ford travels comfortably but without ostentation. He is easy to approach and to interview. Nothing about him indicates that he is the richest and in his field the most strikingly successful man in the world.

Mr. Lowenstein is more aloof, also fonder of the trappings of wealth and power. His progress is like that of a monarch of old.

Each reflects the spirit of his land. We like the simpler ways of Ford. But if, you can imagine the creator of the Model T having arisen to equal eminence in an equally short time in a European surrounding, the chances are he would outshine the kings.

Once Overs

Human Assets

MR. BUSINESS MAN, are you a bear about the office?

Do you think you can get as good service from your men by having iron-clad rules and issuing harsh commands?

Are your employes so afraid of you that they dare not oppose any of your orders to the extent of friendly suggestions?

You don't want arguments, of course, when you direct your men.

But are you not missing many helpful ideas by not allowing your employes to present opinions to you?

It is not in the spirit of having their own way, instead of following yours, but sometimes they feel they have something worth considering.

When you kill initiative and the desire to think on the part of those who work for you, you lose a valuable asset.

Workers cannot be interested in a job which gives them no opportunity to think.

When you encourage mechanical performers you lose the benefit of their minds.

Plots

THE tales I read are planned with art,
Conceived by master-minds;
Of subtle workmanship, each part
Its hidden thread unwinds.

And swiftly word by word reveals
The maze of fear or love;
Across the printed record steals
A sigh, then bright hopes move.

Yet all this framework intricate
Is only drawn from life
Which weaves its plots of grief or hate,
Of tenderness or strife.

Plots new and strange, these never cease
In any land or age,
So when I seek a masterpiece
I read life's living page.

Tales that are Told

Cash Payments Only

THE road was very slippery, and, to his horror, the motorist discovered that his brakes refused to hold the car.

He skidded wildly across the pavement, knocked a seedy-looking individual off his feet, and finally stopped in a shop window.

Fortunately the seedy one was not seriously hurt, and the motorist, diving into his pocket, produced five shillings.

"Here you are," he began, "give me your address and I'll send you some more."

The man looked up with an injured air.

"Look' ere, guv'nor," he said bitterly, "you don't think you can run over me on the installment plan, do you?"—London Answers.

His Prize

A GREY-HEADED old man made a sudden dive into the busy road and was sent spinning back to the pavement by the mudguard of a passing car. He was picked up by a passer-by, who addressed him thus:

"You might have been killed doing a silly thing like that. Are you hurt?"

A small crowd gathered, and to the astonishment of all the old man tore himself away and repeated the performance, this time capturing a prize which he displayed enthusiastically.

"That's what I wanted," he said. "Had I passed it I'd have been unlucky all day."

It was a pin!

More Suitable

A VERY young man bought a very old car. Informing his father of this fact, he said, "I say, dad, be a sportsman. I need one or two accessories to complete the car. Will you give me one?"

"Very good," said his father, indulgently, "I'll give you a pedometer."

The son laughed.

"Why," he scoffed, "you've made a mistake. You mean a speedometer. A pedometer measures the miles you walk."

"Yes," said the father, grimly, "I know that."

Business

THE burglar had been caught entering a bank long after the traffic had ceased to hum.

"Got you!" exclaimed a policeman, seizing him from behind.

"I beg your pardon," returned the burglar in "refrained" tones, "but I am a financial reporter."

The policeman gasped.

"But what on earth are you doing here at this time of night?" he asked, completely mystified.

"Oh," replied the other, "I was just going to take a few notes."

Unaware of It

A SAILOR just home from a long trip entered a quick-lunch bar and ordered clear soup.

After a long interval the soup arrived. It was quite cold, and the mariner scowled darkly at the man behind the counter.

"What do yer call that?" he growled, pointing to the offensive liquid.

"Soup," returned the other briefly. "Anything else you'd like to know?"

"If that there is soup," said the sailor bitterly, "I've been sailin' on it all me life and didn't know it."

Isn't It So?

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 3.—It is the claim of style experts that New York has extremely few well dressed men. London far surpasses the metropolis in the elegance of gentlemen's attire. Hollywood, in proportion to population, is said to be the best dressed American city from a masculine viewpoint.

The theory is advanced that the New Yorker's wardrobe is never complete. The excuse is made he hasn't enough closet space. What the New York dandy wears is up to the fashion standard, but it lacks variety and is rarely complete.

According to best authorities in New York and London, the well dressed man should have 12 business suits, one braided frock coat to be worn with striped trousers and silk hat, two dinner suits—one double and one single-breasted—and full evening dress.

He should have five overcoats, one for sport and one for evening wear, 15 pairs of shoes, three house robes, one dozen pairs of pajamas, 24 daytime shirts, a half dozen dress shirts, 12 walking sticks, three dinner and three full dress vests.

Too, he should have two pairs of house slippers, at least 50 neckties for business wear and a half dozen each of dinner and full dress ties, four business hats, a derby, silk and concertina hat, a dozen pairs of gloves, two dozen pairs of socks and two sets of shirt studs.

Also four pairs of every-day cuff buttons, three mufflers, 36 handkerchiefs, 12 suits of underwear—(I'm beginning to feel as naked as a jaybird)—three pairs of hose supporters, a day and evening cigaret case and the same thing in imported cigar lighters.

These are essentials—bare necessities, as it were. And, of course, you can add to the ensemble as you please. Nothing is said about an umbrella, so it is supposed a fashionably dressed gentleman is not supposed to go out in the rain. He might not know how to get back.

The idea that a gentleman must have such a complete wardrobe is all moist. As one who worries the overdraft department spending more than is necessary for habiliments, it seems to me the neatest and best dressed men are those who make scant but careful selections, but know how to wear them. That is an art men with bountiful wardrobes rarely attain.

There are a number of men who go abroad on annual shopping sprees to replenish their wardrobes. While most of their clothes are purchased in America, they like to pick up a few tweeds in Savile Row, some scarves in Place Vendome, and flashy trinkets along the narrow strip of the Rue de la Paix.

Every man is more or less "clothes conscious," even if he does not admit it. He has a secret ambition to resemble those nonchalant and natty figures of the magazine clothing ads. And the only man I ever saw in real life to attain this sartorial splendor is Adolphe Menjou, the uppity slicker of the screen drawing rooms.

One of the millinery designers for a fashionable establishment designed a stark ornament for ladies' hats that made the entire trade clap their hands in glee. Not one was sold. Prospective customers, it was said, looked upon it with superstition or something.

A taxicab company is withdrawing half of its fleet of night cabs, which would seem to indicate that nocturnal frolicking is not what it used to be. Or maybe people just go places but don't go home.

One little addendum on styles for men, and please leave the hall quietly. Dress shirt cuffs for men have for several years had square corners. The new decree is they must be rounded and—like that—a lot of perfectly good shirts are out of date.

Breakfast

By DR. FRANK CRANE

There is a unique institution in Los Angeles, Southern California, called The Breakfast Club.

Some five or six hundred men gather in the morning near the town, out under the trees, and have breakfast.

It is a queer time and an unholy hour to ask people to come out to any sort of function. Yet, strangely enough, they come.

This club has entertained some very distinguished visitors. The other day Adolph Ochs, of the New York Times, and Arthur Brisbane, of the Hearst newspapers, were present. Senator James Reed and Senator Royal Copeland have also been guests, and every morning there seems to be somebody of note.

They all express surprise that people should get up so early in the day and meet. Yet why should they be surprised?

I have always thought it would be better than to entertain people for dinner. Their minds are apt to be fresher and their outlook upon life different.

Some people's minds seem to operate better in the early morning and some people think better at night.

I knew a professor of mathematics once who never could do anything until after midnight. All of his studies were conducted in the dead of night after the family had gone to bed. Others I have known seem to do their best work in the morning. But perhaps it is all in your temperament.

And perhaps it is the peculiar climatic conditions of Southern California that favor such an organization as this.

But all united in declaring the club is a marvel. It originated in a certain small group who went horseback riding in the morning, but now it has advanced far beyond them and there attend probably many men to whom a horse would be a strange sight.

I don't know how it is with others, but I can do my best thinking in the morning. And it seems to me that an hour of conviviality and good fellowship in the early part of the day is worth more than two hours of hilarity at night. The idea of a Breakfast Club seems to me to be a good one and those who participate in its activities all seem to enjoy them. As a choice between the two I would take the Breakfast Club before a night club.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Your Mark on Eternity

ARE you discouraged today?

Do you feel that life is petty and futile and that you don't count in the scheme of things?

Be still and think.

Think back over the long years, over all the lives that have labored to produce you.

Think forward to all the years and the lives that are to come—the years and the lives upon which every least act of your life will leave its certain impress.

You are really the "heir of the ages."

All that men have done is built into your spirit. All that men have made has contributed to your life.

You could not walk upright today, without dragging your hands or slobbering over your jaw, if men had not come down from trees and crept out of caves and suffered terribly to learn the trick of uprightness.

You could not face danger if men had not had the hearts torn out of their bodies to learn courage.

You could not pat your dog on the head or play with your baby or caress your old mother or be true to your wife if men had not learned, with tremendous effort and pain, to be kind and tender and loyal and honest.

You could not read or add or cast your vote or walk on roads or breathe a free air if countless men had not struggled and sacrificed, labored and fought and died to give you knowledge and liberty and civilization.

Millions and millions of men wore out their bodies in difficult experiments to give you your body. Millions and millions of men sweated and prayed that a song might be planted in your heart and a dream in your brain.

You, as you stand today, are the fruit of man's achievement. And what others have done or failed to do for you, you are doing or failing to do for those who are to come.

Every thought, every word, every act or neglect of your life will leave its impress on the future. If you live bravely and generously, all men forever more will be more brave and generous. But if you crawl through life with a hateful cowardly spirit, life hereafter will be more hateful and cowardly for other men.

NEITHER YOUR BODY NOR YOUR LIFE WILL EVER PASS FROM THIS WORLD. IN A VERY REAL WAY THEY WILL BOTH BE IMMORTAL. OTHER BODIES WILL BE BUILT FROM YOUR BODY. OTHER CHARACTERS WILL BE BUILT FROM YOUR CHARACTER.

This very mood of discouragement, which now binds you, will leave its mark on life. Already you have discouraged someone else. Already you have failed to do some strong, heartening act which you should have done—which needed to be done.

Walt Whitman once wrote a grand line which will be like a staff to you if you will make it your own. Here it is—

"I AM AN ACME OF THINGS ACCOMPLISHED, AND I AM ENCLOSER OF THINGS TO BE."

Say that over and over to yourself. Say it proudly, with increasing fire. THEN LIVE IT.
